Mounties fret over bugging treaty

Embassies off-limits? they ask

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP Security Service has learned that it may be violating an international treaty by bugging foreign embassies here, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing was told Wednesday.

Michael Dare, director-general of the Security Service, testified that there is "some question" whether the Mounties, even with a judicial warrant to do so, can bug embassies without violating the treaty.

The treaty, ratified by Canada in the early 1970s, aims at protecting diplomatic personnel.

"Am I going to knock on an embassy door and ask 'Please may I come in'?" the 62-year-old chief of counterespionage in Canada growled.

Dare himself raised the subject of embassies as he was questioned about the legalities of bugging.

He said security service operations have become difficult as a result of "increased sensitivities in recent months," an apparent reference to the spotlight cast on the service by public inquiries. He gave the embassy situation as an example.

Efforts by reporters to question Dare after the hearing were blocked by Pierre Lamontagne, lawyer for the RCMP.

Dare gave no indication which embassies have been bugged and when.

He said the RCMP hasn't yet received a reply on whether or not the practice is legal. Government lawyers were checking with Washington and London to find how their counterespionage agencies handled the problem.

GARDOM DEFENDS DEPUTY'S CALL

NDP asks probe of interference charge by judge

Canadian Press

The New Democratic Party has called for an independent investigation into allegations that Deputy Attorney-General Richard Vogel interfered with the judicial process by telephoning a judge.

Stu Leggatt (NDP—Coquitlam-Moody), a lawyer, said an inquiry should be held into charges by Judge Phil Govan of Richmond that he had been been asked to disqualify himself from a case because a ruling he had made would be an administrative inconvenience to the attorney-general's department.

Vogel said in an interview that the judge misinterpreted his intentions. The call to Govan was to inform him what action his department was taking, he said.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said he would consider the NDP request and probably would announce a decision today.

He defended Vogel, noting that Govan, the lone family court judge in Richmond, ruled April 1 on a case before him that a section of the Family Relations Act was unconstitutional—without hearing any arguments.

The judge refused to hear any more cases related to the act, in effect throwing dozens of actions in the Richmond court in legal limbo until his ruling could be challenged in a higher court.

Gardom said the ministry disagreed with the ruling because the judge had not served notice as required under the Constitutional Questions Determination Act and because no arguments for or against the ruling were heard.

He said the ministry then asked the B.C. Supreme Court to order Govan to proceed with the case under the act, and the higher court did, so on April 23.

The attorney-general said that on May 9, when the case was to be heard, Govan was asked by the ministry to disqualify himself because of his earlier judgment. The judge declined and presented his judgment the next day.

In his ruling, Govan said the transfer request was made beween April 1 and April 10, and he inferred from it that the attorney-general's ministry was looking for a "more complacent judge who would hear and make orders without enter-

Society moulds rapist, victim

Society has conditioned men to be rapists and women to be their victims, according to a report tabled in the Legislature.

"Our culture condones the use of physical aggression and violence under certain circumstances," it says.

The document arises from a two-year-long study of rape in British Columbia by Nancy Goldsberry, long-time co-ordinator of Victoria's Rape Relief Centre, for the attorney-general's department.

Its findings and recommendations are detailed on Page 42.

Guard downs planes

Colonist wire services

MANAGUA — Nicaragua's National Guard (army) on Wednesday shot down four planes reported to be flying arms and ammunition to Sandinista guerrillas, a senior parliamentarian said.

Luis Pallais Debayle, National Assembly vice-president and a cousin of President Anastasio Somoza, said two of the aircraft, both downed 19 kilometres south of Managua, were carrying arms from Costa Rica for the guerrillas.

Pallais said the other two aircraft were downed near guerrilla-held Leon and Matagalpa in the north.

Military sources said one pilot was captured and was being interrogated.

Meanwhile, Somoza sent National Guard reinforcements to southern Nicaragua where his troops are caught between two guerrilla forces, one entrenched along the Costa Rican border and the other battling for control of the provincial capital of Rivas, where unconfirmed reports said the rebels held all but the guard headquarters.

A government source said, "Realistically, we're looking to another three months of fighting."

He said President Somoza, who is under heavy pressure from the Organization of American States—including the United States—to resign, had reaffirmed his vow not to step down until he wins a military victory.

Carter suddenly cancels tonight's energy speech

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Carter abruptly cancelled his nationwide energy address Wednesday, catching top aides by surprise. A senior official said the president was apparently unhappy over the draft of the speech.

Press secretary Jody Powell telephoned a terse cancellation message to reporters from Camp David.

The speech was originally scheduled for tonight.

Carter telephoned Vice-President Walter Mondale during the afternoon, apparently to explain the cancellation, but not Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal or domestic affairs aide Stuart Eizenstat, all heavily involved in preparing the address.

U.S. pressing whaling ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will propose a ban on all commercial whaling at an international conference next week, officials said Wednesday.

They said the U.S. delegation planned to ask the International Whaling Commission, at its July 9-13 meeting in London, to impose a moratorium until about half a dozen conditions were met.

The conditions include a end to "pirate" whaling—that done by ships of non-member nations in disregard of IWC quotas, often using ships purchased from IWC nations.

Officials said the United States also wanted a new plan on which to base whale kill quotas, better estimates of whale populations and a doubling of the IWC budget.

In addition, the Americans want nations to be required to provide commission scientists with information on whale stocks they have been withholding.

On the other hand, the U.S. government is also expected to request continued clearance for Eskimos to kill the endangered bowhead whale off Alaska, pending a 1981 review of bowhead population data.

The Eskimos say the hunt is essential to their nutrition and culture.

The United States needs a three-quarters vote for approval of its commercial moratorium proposal.

The commission will also be considering Australia's call for a complete ban on commercial whaling.

Air collision kills seven

ASHDOWN, Ark. (AP) — Bodies of seven persons, including that of a four-year-old girl, have been recovered from the wreckage of two light planes that collided in the air Tuesday and plunged into Millwood Lake in southwestern Arkansas.

Ottawa bending on servant slash

OTTAWA (CP) — The government now seems willing to be flexible in implementing a plan to cut 60,000 public service jobs, Andy Stewart, president of the 180,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, said Wednesday.

After meeting Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens, Stewart reported: "I think there is more flexibility."

The jobs are to be eliminated by attrition over three years, but the government has not said when the three years will start, and may even lengthen the period, Stewart said.

However, it was clear the government still intended to cut 60,000 jobs, and Stewart repeated earlier warnings that this "will seriously impede operations of the public service."

Stevens has said 40,000 jobs will be cut by attrition in the regular public service and another 20,000 jobs will be eliminated by selling crown corporations to the private sector.

The government was to announce later this week a number of crown corporations to be turned over to the private sector, Stewart said.

Stewart and other PSAC executives went into Wednesday's meeting demanding full disclosure of the government's future staffing plans.

He would not say later whether he got it. "I can only report that there were some positive aspects" to Stevens' response.

Stewart would not elaborate, but he said progress was made on two other issues: job security for public service and a PSAC demand that all employees on long-term contracts be made permanent public service employees.

He would not give any details, but reported that "we had a very reasonable exchange with the minister and I believe something positive will come of it."

The PSAC demanded that the government immediately end a two-month hiring freeze which is to end in August. The freeze was imposed to give departments time to decide where cuts can be made.

The alliance wanted the government to give permanent employment to persons on long-term contracts because in many cases they are doing the work of full-time public servants, Stewart said. The PSAC also wanted the government to cease contracting work out to private companies.

Stewart said morale in the public service was at its lowest level ever.

Held 14 years, Ben Bella free

ALGIERS (Reuter) — Ahmed Ben Bella, the flamboyant rebel who became first president of independent Algeria, was released from detention Wednesday more than 14 years after his overthrow by the late Houari Boumedienne.

The Algerian news agency said Ben Bella, 62, was released for the 17th anniversary of independence.

He vanished from public view in the dawn coup of June 19, 1965, and had been under house arrest ever since.

The tall, athletic intellectual started his campaign for Algeria's independence from France in 1949, but spent most of the bitter seven-year rebellion in a French prison.

He became president in 1963. Boumedienne, who succeeded him after the virtually bloodless 1965 coup, died last December.

Ben Bella had been reported living under strict military guard at a villa 40 kilometres south of Algiers, with his wife and two adopted children.

Well capping fails

CIUDAD DEL CARMEN, Mexico (UPI) — Divers tried but failed in bad weather Wednesday to cap a runaway oil well with chemicals and cement before it becomes the world's worst oil spill.

A Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex) spokesman said chances were "good" that the effort would eventually succeed though "we don't have a time limit. It depends on many factors."

The BLOB

It dwarfs whole clusters of galaxies and we may collide with it some eon

LONDON (Reuter) — Two British astronomers say they have discovered evidence of a mysterious blob of matter deep in outer space, 10 times larger than the biggest cluster of galaxies yet perceived by scientists.

Andy Fabian of Cambridge University and Bob Warwick of Leicester University said X-rays detected by a British satellite, Ariel 5, indicate the existence of a huge, unexplained mass located perhaps 10 billion light years from Earth.

Our galaxy's nearest neighbor, the Andromeda Galaxy, is two million light years away.

The mystery object might be pulling our own and our neighboring galaxies toward it by the force of its gravity, the astronomers say in a report in Nature magazine.

The report says a hitherto unlocated galaxy, much closer to earth than the supposed blob, might be the source of the X-rays.

But other recent evidence, from scientists at the University of California at Berkeley, suggests that Earth is moving relative to background microwave radiation from space.

The gravitational pull of the blob would explain this.

Will the Earth collide with the mystery object, or "inhomogenity" as the researchers call it?

Fabian said this would depend on the nature and duration of the universe. If it did happen it would not be for millions of years.

Wing-slat breakaway helped save airliner

WASHINGTON (AP) — An airline pilot who saved his plane and 87 passengers and crew members from a nosedive crash in April by lowering his landing gear might have gotten crucial help when a wing slat broke off, a safety investigator said Wednesday.

The slat on the leading edge of the right wing of the Trans World Airlines jet sheared off under the tremendous pressure of the plane's accelerating dive over Michigan, said Leslie Kampschror, in charge of the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board investigation.

The plane, on a flight from New York to Minneapolis April 4, suddenly went into two barrel rolls and plummeted about 10,000 metres before the pilot, Capt. Harvey Gibson, managed to lower the landing gear.

Gibson then recovered control of the Boeing 727 and made a safe landing at Metropolitan Airport in Detroit. Three of the persons aboard suffered minor injuries.

In a telephone interview, Kampschror said simulations of the harrowing incident showed it was "still possible" but questionable whether Gibson could have averted a crash simply by lowering the landing gear to provide a drag on the plane's rapidly building speed.

He said it was more likely that the airliner was saved by a combination of the landing gear manoeuvre and the breaking away of the slat. The slat was extended for unknown reasons and this caused the plane to go out of control, he said.

Slats obstacle to DC-10 return

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal Aviation Administrator Langhorne Bond said Wednesday that wing slats, which apparently malfunctioned on the DC-10 involved in the worst air disaster in U.S. history, were the main obstacle to putting the jetliners back into the air.

Bond said he would have to decide whether the slat malfunction was a freak occurrence or one which might happen again.

The wing slats extend on takeoff and landing to provide greater lift. In the May 25 crash in Chicago, one slat extended but the one on the left wing did not, creating unequal lift.

Five in bike gang slain in 'July 4th massacre'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Five members of the Outlaws motorcycle gang, one of them a woman, were shot and killed Wednesday in a "July 4th massacre" that an investigator said might spread a biker's war across the nation.

Police said it appeared most of the five were slain in their sleep in their tiny, two-room clubhouse in northeast Charlotte. Four of them were found inside the house while the fifth was found outside with a shotgun across his chest. One of the bodies had been mutilated.

Authorities said shell casings from a revolver and an automatic rifle were found on the floor of the clubhouse.

"You've heard of the St. Valentine's Day massacre?" asked a police officer in reference to the 1929 slaying of seven gangsters in a Chicago warehouse. "Well, this is the July 4th massacre."

The group's self-acknowledged leader, who called himself "Chains" (police identified him as William Kincaid Flamont) said the house was full of blood when he found the bodies at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Police officer Walter C. Hilderman III, the force's expert on the motorcycle gangs, said he was certain the shootings were part of an ongoing fight between the Outlaws and the Hell's Angels gang over control of Charlotte's massage parlors and drug traffic.

"The shoot-out was just a matter of time," he said.

The two groups also have been fighting each other in Canada this summer, he said, and a least two bikers have died there.

"A lot of the local Outlaws had gone to Canada and gotten into the festivities up there and I suppose this is a way (for the Hell's Angels) to pay them back," he said. "If it (the violence) has gotten this far it could go nationwide."

City police identified the woman killed as Bridgette Benfield, 17, of Mount Holly and one of the men as William Franklin Allen, 22, of Charlotte.

Single Concorde out of Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — British Airways is selling 75 seats for a special one-time flight of the supersonic Concorde aircraft to London from Toronto, the first commercial operation of the plane from Canada.

Seats for the Sept. 1 flight cost $1,069 each, more than double the regular fare for conventional jets. The Air Canada one-way fare is $496.

The flight will follow the Concorde's appearance at the International Air Show at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Flying time for the journey will be four hours—three hours less than regular jets. The Concorde will use a special air corridor and reach supersonic speeds crossing the Atlantic.

British Airways spokesman John Dawe said the airline did not have plans for a regular Concorde service to Toronto, although about 200 Canadians a month used the airline's supersonic service between London and New York.

ing upon this constituional inquiry."

Leggatt said Govan's judgment cries for some objective investigation into what the ministry was suggesting.

"There is enough on the surface here to indicate that there was some interference."

He accused the ministry of negligence and said it should have tested the constitutional validity of the act in the courts.

Gardom denied there was any interference and said the calls were "routine, expected and anticipated in the performance of his (Vogel's) duties."

Vogel said he did phone Govan, but only to outline the department's strategy and give notice that it planned to question his ruling before the supreme court.

He said "some confrontation is clearly required but I'm not saying anything more until the attorney-general decides on the request for an inquiry."

Times hopes rising

LONDON (AP) — A negotiating session aimed at ending the lockout that has shut down the London Times ended Wednesday with both sides optimistic.

Union leaders said Times Newspapers offered jobs to thousands of printers and other staffers fired during the seven-month lockout.

Union leader Barry Fitzpatrick said The Times and its sister publications could be back within "weeks rather than months."

The lockout is reported to be costing the owner, Canadian-born Lord Thomson of Fleet, $4.4 million a month.

Two weeks ago, it appeared likely the newspapers would die.

Management was insisting on introducing computer typesetting and an end to overmanning and wildcat strikes.

About 3,100 of 4,800 staffers were fired as the dispute dragged on. Managers and 500 journalists remained on full pay.

In a surprise move June 29, unions and management agreed to shelve the new-technology question for up to a year.

U.S. antitrust suit sets OPEC boiling

Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

Threats of devastating economic reprisals were levelled at the United States Wednesday in response to an antitrust suit filed in Los Angeles against the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The threats came from an attorney who said that he had OPEC connections and that the 13-nation oil cartel could impose another oil embargo on the United States and withdraw more than $300 billion invested in U.S. treasury notes.

He said these actions would have a catastrophic effect on the United States, plunging the nation into economic calamity unmatched since the Great Depression.

But the threats were dismissed by one of the lawyers who brought the suit. He said the reprisals were "not reasonably possible."

Moreover, he said, OPEC's U.S. investments did not even approach $300 billion.

The antitrust suit was filed in U.S. District Court last December by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. It accuses OPEC of price fixing, a practice forbidden by U.S. antitrust law. The machinists contend OPEC countries engage in price fixing every time they get together and agree on what to charge for petroleum.

The plaintiffs seek money damages and an injunction that would prevent any portion of OPEC oil prices traceable to price fixes from being passed on to U.S. consumers.

None of the OPEC nations has answered the suit. The matter comes up next for hearing on Aug. 20.

Khalid Al Monsour, a San Frnacisco attorney who said he represented OPEC interests informally, told The Associated Press in London that OPEC nations had not answered the suit because they consider it "illegal."

"If there is a judgment against them," he said, "they say they will definitely withdraw the funds (invested in U.S. treasury notes) and place at least a partial embargo on the United States."

Al Mansour said he conferred with OPEC leaders at their price-setting meeting last week in Geneva. He said President Carter would be wise to intervene "and make sure the case is not heard."

Al Mansour said he had filed a brief in Los Angeles federal court, asking that the suit be dismissed.

Shoot only, troops told

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli soldiers on an invasion of southern Lebanon last year were apparently ordered to shoot suspected guerrillas and not to take prisoners, an Israeli parliamentarian claimed Wednesday.

The assertion by Meir Pail of the leftwing Sheli party came during a debate of no-confidence in Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government in the context of new allegations of misconduct during the Litani Operation—the three-month occupation of southern Lebanon that began in March, 1978.

The Knesset, or parliament, defeated the motion by a 54-to-4 vote with 25 abstentions. Pail's party had demanded the government's ouster for failing to fire army Chief-of-Staff Lt.-Gen. Raphael Eytan after he reduced the sentence of a lieutenant convicted of murdering Arab prisoners.

Pail said Eytan had not exceeded his legal authority by reducing the lieutenant's eight-year prison term to two years but he charged the army commander had used poor judgment in a case of a war crime.

Pail told the Knesset: "If I put this on the background that orders have been given, apparently also during the Litani Operation, not to take prisoners, meaning to kill them, and if it is true that during the Litani Operation orders were given that every armed person should be shot at once and not taken prisoner," then the government is not enforcing standing orders "and is not fit to govern."

Basques continue their terror fight

MADRID (AP) — Basque separatists spread terror through Spain Wednesday, bombing two tourist hotels in the south and three agencies of a French automaker in the northern Basque region.

Nobody was reported hurt in the bomb blasts as warnings were given beforehand. But hotel-keepers said fear was ruining business, and the government ordered extra plainclothes police to the Mediterranean coast to reassure tourists, who are Spain's No. 1 revenue producer.

The government also ordered police protection for members of a parliamentary commission on Basque autonomy after four gunmen ambushed and seriously wounded Gabriel Cisneros, a 38-year-old commission member, in Madrid on Tuesday.

Cisneros, press spokesman for Premier Adolfo Suarez' Centre party, was shot in the stomach as he was parking his car outside his apartment.

Suarez told reporters that witnesses heard the gunmen shout the Basque Nation and Liberty (ETA) slogan as they escaped.

ETA, which wants independence for the Basque provinces near the French border in the north, has waged a terror campaign that has taken 43 lives this year. Cisneros was the first politician to be attacked.

A chief object of the terror campaign has been tourism, and hotel operators were reporting business at half capacity Wednesday.

On Wednesday, hundreds of tourists—mostly Scandinavians, British, French and Germans—had to spend hours on roads outside their hotels after being evacuated in bathing suits.

In sunny Fuengirola on the Mediterranean coast 80 kilometres northeast of Gibraltar, a bomb ripped into the first floor of a luxury beach hotel, Las Palmeras, causing much damage. But police had been warned six hours before and had evacuated all hotels in the town.

Tourism was reported up 14 per cent in the first five months of this year—before the anti-tourism campaign.

Now, some beaches are reported deserted at the height of the season, and cancellations are piling up.

The campaign is causing some concern in Pamplona, where an annual eight-day festival of drinking, dancing and bull-running begins Friday.

Just who is irresponsible?

IS THE FIRST OBLIGATION of a hospital board to patients or to the provincial health ministry? The board chairmen of Victoria's two general hospitals have delivered radically different answers to this critical question.

Chairman Alan Patterson spoke for all the board at Victoria General Hospital last week when he said that hospital has gone as far as directors are prepared to go in cutting funds for patient care. If need be, he said, the hospital will deliberately operate at a deficit to maintain the quality of care at what the board sees as an essential level.

For this the trustees were called "irresponsible" by Health Minister Robert McClelland.

Terry Prentice, board chairman at Royal Jubilee Hospital, says that hospital is determined to stay within the operating budget assigned it by the health ministry, even if it means closing down wards or reducing medical services.

He tells us that the hospital's problems would be solved if people took better care of themselves because then fewer of them would get sick. Hardly profound — and not likely to influence the rate of admissions.

Jubilee will try to discourage unnecessary operations, says this chairman.

"If we could reduce the number of requests for operations, we could bring our costs into line," says Mr. Prentice. He says there are alternative methods of treatment available.

Now that's irresponsible.

Mr. Prentice is saying in effect that doctors using Jubilee are now performing needless operations. That is a very serious charge. Which doctors? Where is the proof? Jubilee, like every other major hospital, has a sophisticated routine for monitoring all surgery to guard against just this sort of abuse. The board chairman makes no mention of this. Instead he has indicted the doctors who voluntarily serve in this monitoring role and has cast a shadow over all the surgeons on staff, not to mention the general practitioners who recommend surgical treatment for their patients.

Specifically Mr. Prentice notes that doctors at Jubilee want to increase open heart surgery from six to eight cases a week.

"That would increase our costs. I don't see how we could afford that. This is an example of the kind of pressure we face," he says.

But doctors advise that two patients died in the past two weeks while awaiting this expensive but immensely successful surgery. They were family men in their fifties who probably would have returned to active, productive lives. Humanity apart, that is also a part of the economic question.

To return to the original question: is the first obligation of a hospital board to patients or the provincial health ministry which funds the hospital?

First, we should never forget where the money really comes from. Not the health ministry but from all of us, patients and potential patients.

Hospital trustees are laymen for the most part, elected or appointed as the voice of the community. They find themselves sandwiched between the provincial bureaucracy, the doctors and the patients. They have obligations to all — but their first obligation should be to their patients. The board of Victoria General Hospital has recognized that. The chairman of the board at Jubilee has not.

COMMENT/BACKGROUND

From a doctor a profile in courage

Peter Worthington

TORONTO — Of all human virtues, courage is perhaps the most attractive.

And there are different types of courage. Straight physical courage is the cheapest, the most common; moral courage the hardest, the rarest. Courage is often confused with absence of fear, which is entirely different. A "fearless" person is not necessarily a courageous one. In order to have true courage, there must be the quality of fear to overcome.

And courage requires stamina. That used to distinguish the British soldier. As General Slim, commander in Burma, once remarked: "The British soldier is not braver than other soldiers, he is just braver longer." A profound observation.

The greatest courage I've witnessed in recent years involves Dr. John MacDonald, a Toronto surgeon whom I knew mostly as a fellow-tennis player at Moore Park. He and his family dominated tournaments and social activities.

In 1975 John shocked all who knew him by having open-heart surgery. Quietly, unobtrusively, matter-of-factly he went into St. Mike's one weekend and underwent what most of us considered an appalling and dangerous operation. Those who knew him were awed by his spirit and grit. It seemed so unfair that one so fit should be striken. But it turned out well. He rebounded with remarkable speed and cheerfulness.

Then we learned that John had terminal lung cancer — word was that he diagnosed it himself from his X-rays. His chest was opened again. The results couldn't have been worse for a man in his mid-forties, in blooming health, happy with his second wife, Madeleine, whom he married in 1971 after his first wife died of, you guessed it, cancer, leaving him the sole parent of seven kids, the oldest in his young teens.

Madeleine and John added a child of their own to this tennis-playing brood. It was a family such as you rarely see — tight-knit, loyal, concerned, cheerful, courteous, friendly, self-reliant, bright — everything you'd want of kids.

And this is where the courage comes in. John MacDonald overflowed with it. He was given six months to live. So he adapted his philosophy to live one day at a time. He relaxed, got out of the rat-race, and was like a sponge with life. He absorbed everything, was concerned about everyone, radiated enthusiasm, made no secret of his plight, talked openly, eagerly about his fears, his new philosophy, his fate.

He adopted a "policy of hope" and had a remarkable effect on everyone. He wrote a remarkable, sensitive book that McClelland & Stewart published last February and which is now to be published in the U.S. — When Cancer Stikes. It outlines how he and his family coped with the reality that he was on borowed time. He tried to help others similarly afflicted.

John MacDonald's courage and elan are obvious and exceptional. As impressive was the attitude of his family — the kids, now young adults down to young John, who was born a couple of weeks before his mother died, and Hilary, his and Madeleine's daughter, now five and the family pet.

All knew John could die anytime. All lived with it, were prepared by their wise father and equally remarkable Madeleine, to accept death as being as natural and inevitable as birth. They exuded optimism and healthy fatalism and poise through difficult months when fear gnawed at their souls, and their inner anguish knew no solace.

Yet John defied predictions. His six-months life expectancy in 1975 extended to three-and-a-half years. At times he seemed to flourish. He still played tennis and — even ravaged by cancer and his by-passed heart — won more tennis trophies to clog the family home. John seemed a walking miracle; newspapers wrote feature articles about him and his exceptional family.

This tennis season John Macdonald was absent. I went to see him on the eve of the general election. He was finishing another book — Facing the Scalpel. It is a unique view of surgery from the patient-doctor perspective. A month ago John seemed frail, but vital. Friends worried — but his courage was infectious.

Late last month John Alexander MacDonald died at his home. He was 49. There are conventional obituaries which describe his achievements as a surgeon and professor at St. Mike's and University of Toronto. Others can assess his research papers.

In a way, Dr. MacDonald wrote his own obituary in the last words of his book When Cancer Strikes: "I believe that death . . . may be the most important part of life. I believe that life is infinitesimally short in relation to the immensity of eternity. I believe, because of my religious faith, that I shall 'return to the Father' for eternity in an afterlife that is beyond description. I believe unequivocally in life after life.

"I believe that though my life was short in years, it was full of experience, joy, love and accomplishment; that my own immortality will reside in the memories of my loved ones left behind, mother, brother, wife, sons and daughters, relatives and dear friends. I believe that I will die with love close by and, one hopes, achieve that great gift of God — death in peace and death with dignity."

How can one remain immune to such an example?

"Eureka! I've found it — take an ounce of gold and convert it into a pint of gasoline!"

A century after Custer fell the Sioux are down, not out

Marquis Childs

RAPID CITY, S.D. — It has taken more than a century for history to catch up with the rights and wrongs of the conflict with the Sioux Indians over possession of the gently rolling Black Hills, which are an oasis of sorts in the long sweep of the plains of South Dakota.

General George Armstrong Custer met defeat and death from the Sioux at the Little Big Horn on June 25, 1876, and thereby became a national folk hero. Custer had earlier led the expedition that discovered gold in the Black Hills. That led to a rush of gold seekers invading the lands that the Sioux claimed were their tribal heritage.

The government in Washington secretly ordered that the food supplies they had promised the Sioux be cut off as a form of blackmail to force them to lay down their arms. From then on the record consisted of a long series of court wrangles, with the Indians demanding compensation for the lands that had been taken and the gold that had been mined out of the hills. It ended the other day with a dramatic decision answering the promises made so long ago.

The U.S. Court of Claims found that the Sioux were entitled to more than $100 million in satisfaction of their claims. The actual amount of the claim — $17,553,474 — is comparatively small.

But the question the court was called on to decide was whether the government's acquisition of the land in 1877 was a "taking" as defined under the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. The court found that it was a "taking," and therefore the Sioux were entitled to interest on the amount of the claim. The court estimated that the century of interest would be between $90 and $115 million, and that made the award a record for an Indian claim.

The glitter of that gold for the estimated 60,000 Sioux who would be eligible to share it is a promise that, like so many promises made to the Indians, is in the distant future. The Claims Court decision may be appealed to the Supreme Court. And — equally important — the money must be appropriated by Congress and at a time when sentiment against the Indians is growing.

Those in Congress who represent states with an Indian population are acting to abrogate treaties and cut back benefits. It is part of the money pinch as state legislatures scurry around to try to make ends meet with drastic reduction in tax levies.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs claims to have the whole business computerized so that within a year it will be possible — other uncertainties having been resolved — to start paying the claimants. The computer will record each individual's measure of tribal inheritance and blood origins. The bureau's claims are taken with a great deal of skepticism here, notably on the part of the Indians who have had many unhappy encounters with that bureaucracy.

The great majority of the Sioux live on reservations in South Dakota, and their plight could hardly be worse. Unemployment runs from 70 to 80 per cent and gainful work is often nonexistent. The alternative is welfare. Far more than any other minority, these Native Americans live on a margin that is a blurred semblance of the tribal past, with little or no relation to the contemporary world.

Geography has a lot to do with it. The Pine Ridge reservation is 60 miles from Rapid City, with roads and communication at a minimum. Anyone venturesome enough to start a small factory, largely on a handwork basis, would find that his first problem would be to organize sources of raw material. So, often, after a year or two, these ventures have faded away.

Yet Pine Ridge has its pride out of the proud past. The tribal chairman and the chiefs have declared that they do not want to accept any part of the claim money. The Black Hills are not for sale.

The indifference of the Sioux to the electoral process is understandable. Presidents and Congresses come and go, making little or no change in their abysmal lot. Their average income is $1,900 a year, well below the poverty line; and while the glory of the sky and the wide sweep of the land may be some compensation, that is very little money for existence.

A rigid sentencing system wouldn't solve the problem

Donald J. Purich

SASKATOON — Public concern about crime in this country is mounting. Some people feel that sentences handed out by our courts are too lenient and encourage crime. Some advocates of tougher sentencing call upon our legislators to pass laws requiring mandatory jail terms for more offences. They feel that giving courts discretion in determining sentence is only a licence for lenient sentences. According to the "get tough school" more jail terms and fewer suspended sentences equals less crime.

The move to tougher mandatory sentences is evident in the United States. A 1975 Massachusetts gun control law requires a one-year jail term for possession of a gun without a permit. A New York law requires a 16-year jail term for certain drug offenders. A California law (recently ruled unconstitutional by the courts) required a jail term for anyone committing a crime with a weapon. In some states parole board powers have been severely curtailed and in a few states parole boards have been abolished.

Harsher legislated sentences have their advantages. If there were a law requiring a mandatory jail term for theft more people might be discouraged from stealing.

Disparities in sentencing are reduced by mandatory minimum sentences. If there were a law requiring a six-month jail term for theft, thieves in both Rankin Inlet, Northwest Territories and Hamilton, Ontario would get six months. Such a law would also mean that a thief who took $900 and one who took a package of cigarettes would both get at least six months.

If the law required a jail term for theft and you believe that vengeance has a role in sentencing, the knowledge that a judge must send a thief to jail will cause more satisfaction than if the judge has the option of giving a jail term, a fine or a suspended sentence.

But the advantages of laws which require mandatory minimum sentences must be weighed against the injustices which can result from such laws. There are cases where an accused deserves a break; mandatory minimum sentences mean that no one gets a break. The severity of each crime varies - the theft of $900 is more serious than the theft of a package of cigarettes. Mandatory sentencing laws treat each case alike.

For example: a law can be passed requiring that anyone planning a crime with another person be given a minimum two-year jail term.

When the organized professional criminals got caught planning a credit card fraud no one would think the law was unduly harsh. But what of the two high school students caught planning a heist of a cartoon of cigarettes from the corner grocery store? Should they also get a two-year sentence?

Criminal laws must be drafted in general terms; it would be impossible to draft laws spelling out in detail each possible combination of circumstances. The task of judging the severity of each offence and distinguishing the professional criminal from those who have fallen into crime by inadvertence is best left to the judges.

Criminal law and the sentences imposed for criminal offences are a matter of federal jurisdiction. In a country as diverse as Canada, with social, economic and political conditions and crime rates varying from region to region, sentencing laws must be general enough to allow courts to tailor sentences to local conditions.

Speaking at a recent sentencing conference in Saskatoon, Mr. Justice Calvin Tallis of the Northwest Territories Supreme Court pointed out that in sentencing in the NWT a judge has to take into account the level of sophistication and understanding of the law in each community.

As well, he said, the realities of northern living had to be taken into account in determining sentence. With hunting a way of existence for some northerners it would be impossible to prohibit an accused from ever using a gun, he said.

Thus, while a law prohibiting anyone convicted of a criminal offence from having a gun might not cause difficulties in Toronto it certainly would in the NWT.

One of the reasons for sentencing criminals is to deter others from committing the same type of offence. With crime rates higher in some parts of the country than others, deterrence is obviously more necessary in some parts of the country.

Crime rates have dramatically increased in Alberta (particularly in Edmonton and Calgary) in the last few years. The crime rate in Prince Edward Island has not increased in the same manner. Obviously, sentences in Alberta should reflect the need to deter others from committing crime, more so than in Prince Edward Island. In the opinion of many lawyers, sentences in Alberta are much tougher than in other parts of the country.

A law requiring a mandatory minimum would not allow such variances in sentence from one part of the country to another. A law passed by Parliament in Ottawa prescribing minimum sentences might produce too harsh sentences in Prince Edward Island and too lenient sentences in Alberta.

Certain crimes are more prevalent in some parts of the country than in other parts. Cattle rustling has been a major concern in rural Saskatchewan for a number of years. Drugs are a major problem in Vancouver. Organized crime is much more prevalent in Toronto and Montreal. Surely sentences should be tailored to provide deterrence to crimes of major concern in a particular area. Tailoring sentences to local conditions can best be achieved by the judge hearing the case; not by legislators trying to enact one standard across the country.

(Mr. Purich is a lawyer and author.)

Edmonton Journal

The Lougheed government displays its arrogance in many ways, and sometimes the petty incidents are most revealing.

Speaker Gerry Amerongen warned the legislature this week that certain MLAs might breach parliamentary rules if they voted on a piece of legislation which directly affects them. The bill allows MLAs to accept pay for serving on government boards and agencies, and 22 government members had already been given appointments either to the boards mentioned in the bill or to similar government agencies. So the majority of those Tory MLAs quite correctly left the chamber.

But four of the Tories stayed and voted for the legislation. With the huge Tory majority, there was no question of the bill failing; the four simply didn't bother to leave.

Later, under some pressure, they wrote letters to the Speaker requesting their votes be stricken from the record. But they remained recalcitrant, insisting they had done no wrong; they were backtracking simply to "play it safe."

Half-hearted retractions aside, the four MLAs deliberately defied parliamentary tradition. If the government had a code of ethics they would have broken the code as well.

But this government doesn't have a code of ethics because the Tories say they don't need one. They may be right. If they don't obey the rules we do have, why bother with new ones?

GORDE HUNTER

one man's opinion

It all depends whose ox is gored and right now it's my ox.

I am one of those patients awaiting open heart surgery and when I hear that the medics' request to increase that surgical procedure from six to eight per week, has been branded as "cost increasing," then I get mad as hell.

I get mad as hell at an engineer, Royal Jubilee hospital board chairman Terry Prentice, when he says costs will rise as citizens "demand" more medical services.

Demand? I wonder if engineer Prentice's slide-rule brain can absorb the fact I — and all the other open heart patients on the back burner — didn't exactly welcome that first heart attack and we certainly didn't twist our doctors' arms demanding this medical service?

Doesn't Prentice realize that such an operation can be the difference between life and death? This is something removed from a cosmetic thing like putting blobs of silicon into miniature breasts. And doesn't he realize that two extra operations per week will save lives and isn't that what the whole medical idea is all about?

Make no mistake Mr. Prentice, there are those on waiting lists who do indeed die before their turn on the table comes up.

HEALTH MINISTER Bob McClelland and I have had our differences in the past, mainly in the site selection for the new Helmcken hospital, but I guess you could call it a friendly difference of opinion. But this is no longer a friendly battle. Bob McClelland would hold hospital costs and thereby endanger my life and the lives of others. That makes him no friend of mine nor theirs.

What monumental kind of rank stupidity is this? What kind of fiscal irresponsibility is Bill Bennett guilty of? He casually spends $20 million on the distribution of BCRIC shares and at the same time, says we can't spend more to keep two extra people alive per week — 104 people per year.

Mr. Bennett, this adds up to horsebleep ignorance and on this basis alone, you do not deserve to lead this province.

What kind of fiscal irresponsibility is it, Grace McCarthy, to promise millions of dollars support for an Olympic Games, when you refuse to look after the physical needs of British Columbians? Your ignorance is every bit as alarming and just as shameful.

Whatever cultural expenditures you have on the book, Mr. Bennett, should be junked until such times as we can afford them, and we damned well can't afford them if we can't afford to keep people alive.

McClelland has his orders from Bill Bennett and while it would be nice if McClelland would stand up and fight for what he must surely know is right, I realize that as a team member he isn't about to do this and so the final blame can not be dropped on his porch.

Bennett must shoulder the blame and Bennett must accept the responsibility for any deaths that might occur because of his callous bookkeeping approach to human suffering.

YOU, BILL BENNETT, are a healthy man. You have no idea of the mental traumas experienced by the physically sick every day. If you had been forced to sit on that open heart surgery waiting list, I have no doubt your approach would be completely different today.

I wonder, Bill Bennett, if you realize this particular waiting list can be three, four and five months long? I wonder if you have any real inkling of the fear experienced by these people — fear that comes at any time of any day or night? Every little chest pain can be magnified to the onset of another heart attack. Every arm pain becomes immediately suspect and if you've never been gripped by the cold sweat engendered by such fear, you therefore have no idea what these people go through, what they suffer. One doctor told me the mental punishment is far greater than any physical ache or stab. Mr. Bennett, try to understand what living with such fear means. Try to think that these people are never without this fear.

And finally, another quote from Terry Prentice, chairman of that Royal Jubilee Hospital board.

"If people would live better they wouldn't get sick so often." Marvelous, Terry, marvelous — a tremendous grasp of the obvious — but no consolation whatsoever to those who are sick (some of whom lived by most of the good health tenets,) and who cringe at the cold calculations produced by your engineering thought process.

I pray, Terry, that your own good fortune continues.

Napping in the gallery?

ICBC and the Socred cabinet are coming under veiled accusations for not giving more publicity to changes on March 1 to put impaired drivers under the gun. It obviously was not to their advantage to hush this up.

It is probably the case where a civil servant had not yet awakened from a long winter nap. (I am still waiting, after nearly 11 months, for a reply I was told I would receive within a week.)

What of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition? Were they so busy telling everyone how many bathroom walls they were going to paper with BCRIC shares that they did not have time to keep up with their homework and read the B.C. Gazette where this information was apparently published?

Of course, we cannot expect too much from either the government or the Opposition because they both owe their positions to the vagaries of the voters, who at times make the most incredible choices, ignoring completely past performance and logic.

What is really disappointing, and a bit frightening, is that none of the media picked this up from the B.C. Gazette. We have come to depend on them to keep us informed of these things, and in turn to keep the various governments honest. They have their positions through hard work and the ability to dig out news, and not from sweet talking some voters.

Perhaps the two largest B.C. dailies being on strike had lessened the competition so some of the Press Gallery have joined the civil servants in a nap!

Energy crisis part of vast cosmic script?

Is it possible for a moment to conceive of the events of the world as action taking place within a vast cosmic script, the actors assuming they have some control over that action, but in fact in spite of free will, being subject to destiny and to a necessary law of action and reaction that fulfills itself both in the collective and individual experience of man?

If we thus view the present energy crisis, we may find a metaphor that will enable us to benefit from the pressure of this event. Let me explain.

Western industrialized man has for a long time exploited nature for his own material needs. It is as if man has assumed natural resources exist in an infinite supply and are there to be used in proportion to man's desires for comfort, for satisfying the requirements of his lifestyle. This without any sensitivity to the natural balance or relationship that exists between exploitation and its effects on the earth.

Now in terms of the script, Western man is being confronted by the sense of isolated egohood that made him believe he could live on this planet without feeling any sense of appreciation for how that planet served, nourished, supported him — the feeling that would humble him, and partially create the sense of interrelatedness that would link him to the mystery of his origin, to the mystery of his own unfathomable existence. After all he is made of the elements of the earth, is the most intelligent resource of nature, the one creature capable of affecting the universe so as to transform that universe — both creatively and destructively.

The Overseas Petroleum Exporting Countries naturally relish the power they can exert on the major industrial nations, and no doubt act out of a sense of enjoying that pressure they can bring to bear on countries whose egos have never before been subject to the whims of smaller countries.

Rather than condemning their actions, however, and pouting or lashing back, we should understand this action to be part of the script, that they are the instruments of our fate, and ultimately we can, because of their response, learn to restructure our relationship with the earth, restructure it in such a way so as to insure our prosperity, but within a design that drives us into a more profound sense of that relationship, that makes us work more creatively to maintain the ecology of our own beingness — that is, the reality of ourselves as a species of life fully responsive to the miracle of possessing a nervous system capable of experiencing a sense of "I", the sense that makes us responsible for our destiny, or at least for doing justice to the poetic freedom we have, as a result of the script, to decide whether we are free or determined.

We are "evolution made aware of itself," and as such must demonstrate to nature our willingness to change our habits of ego-separateness, when such separateness places us in the predicament we now are in.

It is thus a tremendous challenge we face now in developing new sources of energy, in conserving our present sources of energy; but instead of lamenting this fact, we should perhaps consider our present condition as but the reminder of our place in the scheme of things, and the physical fact that expresses a much more powerful truth: that we must be more thoughtful, unselfish, and creative in order to deserve the miracle of our existence.

ROBIN CARLSEN,
1225 Sunnyside Ave.,
Victoria.

Civic Scene by Hubert Beyer

With the summer sun beating the brains of our local body politic to a pulp, things aren't moving too swiftly at city hall these days and the time is opportune for a bit of election talk.

Who will be doing what to whom next November and with whose help?

Unless Mayor Michael Young suffers sunstroke between now and November, he will step down. No ifs, no buts.

Anyone interested in a job with long hours, mediocre pay and guaranteed criticism? You bet. The masochists are lining up.

First in line are the two favorites, Ald. William Tindall and Murray Glazier, but someone else is waiting in the wings. Ald. John Hayes thinks it might not be a bad idea to take run at the mayor's job.

It was Ald. Robert Wright who put Hayes up to it. Wright has his own reasons for wanting Hayes to run and his logic is compelling.

NEXT TO A WORLD without killer whales, nothing scares Wright more than the prospect of Glazier becoming mayor of Victoria. So why doesn't he take Glazier on at the polls?

Wright may not want to be mayor himself or he may not feel confident enough to knock off Glazier. At any rate, he isn't going to oppose him. Someone else has to do the job for him and it doesn't much matter who.

Tindall would do fine, as far as Wright is concerned, but he says he believes that Glazier would clean Tindall's clock in a two-way fight. And he may be right. When it comes to stalking the political corridors, Tindall is no match for Glazier.

But Wright says a third candidate would be able to run away with it. And that's where Hayes comes in.

That isn't to say Hayes is being manoeuvred by Wright. Hayes has put in four years as an alderman and his civic duties cut heavily into his job. Another term as alderman doesn't look all that enticing to Hayes. The mayor's job is something else.

Hayes may go for broke and run for mayor. If he loses, he'll be out, which is all right with him. If he wins, so much the better.

AND JUST WHAT WOULD Hayes' chances be of becoming mayor, and how certain is it that both Glazier and Tindall will run?

The latter is fairly certain. Glazier can't afford to wait for another two years. Although he wouldn't have any trouble being re-elected as alderman, he wouldn't get enough support to get him back into his job as chairman of the Capital Region Board. And without that, Glazier would be deprived of his most effective platform.

Already he's using that position to turn himself into a sort of roving ambassador protecting the local beaches against the disasters of potential oil spills.

If he waits two more years before taking a stab at the mayor's office, he'll also have to deal with his colleagues Robin Blencoe and William McElroy, both of whom have higher political ambitions, and either of whom could count on the New Democratic Party machine for support.

So, Glazier has to make his move this time. Tindall, on the other hand, finds himself in much the same position as Hayes. He's been around as an alderman for eight years and unless he can snare a bigger catch, he's ready to call it quits. He, too, will run almost certainly.

THAT GETS US BACK to the third candidate and, yes, his chances of beating both Glazier and Tindall would be good. He wouldn't be a guaranteed winner, but then, he won't have to be.

The way Wright looks at it, Glazier and Tindall would draw from the same base, the conservative, business-oriented crowd. Hayes would get a lot of community support. He's done a good job looking after things, such as the Neighborhood Improvement Program and he's made a lot of friends in the process.

Hayes would also get support from the NDP machine, albeit in a more reserved fashion than would Blencoe or McElroy.

And he would get Wright's support. Or would he? Wright wouldn't encourage Hayes to run, expecting him to split the vote in favor of Tindall.

Or would he?

Priority on arms rather than child

This year has been declared by the United Nations to be the International Year of the Child. What have the people of Victoria (indeed of Canada) done to observe this year?

There have been international art shows, school programs dedicated to IYC, conferences and exhibitions with IYC themes. All these are commendable. But are they doing anything to improve the lot of the world's children (including our own)?

We have all read, heard and perhaps seen the poor, inadequate conditions in which children of the underdeveloped countries live. But what about Canadian children?

In our own country thousands of children are undernourished; adequate housing is becoming difficult to attain for many; education and medical facilities are becoming less than satisfactory. Examples can be seen among our native Indian population — infant mortality is 26.1 per 1,000 as compared with 14.3 for the rest of the population; more than 70 per cent of their homes have no indoor toilets.

While our government is reducing its social services expenditure by $2.3 billion, the 1979 arms budget is $4.4 billion and in addition $2.3 billion has been designated for new fighter planes. And our new government has pledged to increase the arms budget.

It seems our priorities are backwards. Instead of spending our tax dollars to improve our lives, the government is wasting the money and perhaps bringing us closer to annihilation. During this IYC what better way can there be to give our children a future than to demand that the government of Canada reverse its priorities by cutting the arms budget in half and use the funds thus set free to give our children a chance.

Planning shifts inspire humor

As the big spending starts on the hospital planned so no one can get to it without miles of driving in a car, Saanich and the region catching each other out on regional planning is almost humorous.

Why does the region now hint at going back on its promises and allowing more intense development around the hospital? Why does Saanich want another big shopping centre for the area? Who gains? Perhaps there is nothing wrong with getting as much traffic as possible onto that new highway to see how quickly we can bring more of the interchange way of life here. But is this 1950 or 1980?

Let us hope the region maintains its own commitment at Helmcken and establishes a sensible conclusion with Saanich at Tillicum. And let us hope these solutions establish both the region's rights and its abilities at regional planning.

Uranium 'find' isn't really

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city manager of a Japanese exploring firm Wednesday denied a report from his Tokyo office that a promising uranium deposit had been found in British Columbia.

The report quoted a spokesman for the Power Reactor and Nuclear Fuel Development Corp. as saying its Canadian subsidiary found the uranium in the Pearson Creek area near Kelowna.

General manager Masaaki Suginohara of PNC Exploration Canada Co. Ltd. said, however, that only anomolies had been discovered and "these are not real ore bodies."

"We have no idea how many tons are there," said Suginohara.

The Tokyo report said deposits were estimated at several thousand tons in terms of uranium content.

Suginohara said he would contact his Tokyo office to find out why such a story was released.

A spokesman for the B.C. mines and petroleum resources ministry said he was baffled by the sudden announcement in Japan and was sure the discovery was not a new one.

"It's not a new area," said Jack Garnett, a senior ministry geologist from Kamloops who knows the Pearson Creek area. "They made a submission to the uranium inquiry and, as far as we know, that covered the areas they are working."

A royal commission has been conducting hearings throughout the province and hopes to have an interim report ready next month for the B.C. government on the future of uranium exploration.

Pound up, up, up

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar slipped against major currencies Wednesday and the British pound hit another new four-year high. Gold prices rose by more than $1 an ounce.

The pound jumped by more than two cents to finish at $2.2250 (U.S.) late Wednesday, compared with $2.2018 at Tuesday's close. The pound, riding high on Britain's North Sea oil and steep interest rates, has gained 15 cents against the dollar since June 1, a seven-per-cent rise.

The pound continued to climb against the Canadian dollar, with the rate falling for the Canadian currency in its relationship to the U.S. dollar. It now takes $2.59 Canadian to buy a pound in Montreal.

In Tokyo, where business ends before it begins in Europe, the dollar closed at 217.575 yen, down from Tuesday's 218.20 yen. It continued falling today, opening at 216.70 yen and fading in slow early trading to the 216.30-.50 range.

Late dollar rates Wednesday in major European financial centres late Wednesday, compared with Tuesday's late rates:

Frankfurt — 1.8344 West German marks, down from 1.8426; Zurich — 1.6498 Swiss francs, down from 1.6570; Paris — 4.2647 French francs, down from 4.2800; Amsterdam — 2.0225 guilders, down from 2.0320; Milan — 824.05 lire, down from 830.05.

Gold bullion prices in London rose by $1.25 to $283.50 a troy ounce. The metal improved more sharply at Zurich, Europe's other big market, to $283.125, compared with $281.875 on Tuesday.

More than beer

TORONTO (CP) — Stockholders wanted to talk about more than beer when they faced company officers at the annual meeting of Carling O'Keefe Ltd. Wednesday.

One shareholder suggested the company should stop putting money into sports teams and start researching the use of alcohol as a substitute for gasoline.

Chairman J. C. Lockwood defended Carling's ownership of the Quebec Nordiques hockey team and the Toronto Argonauts football club, saying the association with the Nordiques has increased sales of the brewery's products in Quebec.

Another shareholder criticized director Conrad Black, chairman of the giant holding company Argus Corp., for missing more than 25 per cent of Carling board meetings in the last year.

Black, whose father was once president of the company, replied that other activities have cut into his time. In the last 12 months he was married, acquired control of Argus and with it control of Dominion Stores Ltd., Massey-Ferguson Ltd., Hollinger Mines Ltd. and Standard Broadcasting Ltd.

President Roderick McInnes said Carling has established a tougher sales target this year and is cautiously optimistic about reaching it. Rising costs continue to plague the industry, he said.

Carling plans capital spending of $25.5 million this year, down from $26.5 million in 1978. Major items include exploration and development of oil and natural gas reserves of its subsidiary Star Oil and Gas Ltd. and the improvement of brewing facilities in Canada and Ireland.

Bus business goes on block

HAMILTON (CP) — Travelways Ltd. of Hamilton will buy the school bus operations of McLeod Motors Ltd. of Stoney Creek, Ont., for an undisclosed amount of cash and notes. Travelways said the purchase, subject to regulatory approval, would add more than $2 million to its annual revenues.

Volkswagen-U.S. boosted

BERLIN (UPI) — Volkswagen will hike the output of its Pennsylvania plant and launch a U.S.-produced pickup truck based on the Rabbit, company board chairman Toni Schmuecker told a shareholders' meeting Wednesday.

Capacity of the Westmoreland, Pa., plant will be increased from 800 to 1,040 cars daily before 1981, Schmuecker said. Volkswagen sales are up 45 percent in the United States this year.

Schmuecker said Volkswagen was discussing the building of a second U.S. plant, but no decision has yet been made.

Der Spiegel magazine said in its latest issue that Volkswagen would invest $20 million in U.S. expansion.

Schmuecker's report to the meeting made no mention of a purchase of Chrysler. Despite vehement denials by both companies, reports of a Volkswagen takeover of the ailing U.S. automaker triggered a run on Chrysler shares.

In a $3.08 billion investment program for 1980-81, Schmuecker said Volkswagen will build a new factory at Pueblo, Mexico, to produce 1,600 engines daily for the U.S. market.

Chinese ads seen for U.S. TV?

By ROBERT CRABBE

PEKING (UPI) — American TV viewers may soon see commercials for Chinese musical instruments, clocks and other consumer goods, executives of three New York advertising agencies said Tuesday.

"China has come to the threshold Japan reached 20 years ago," said Clay Timon, senior vice president of Doyle Dane Bernbach International.

"The Chinese must decide now if they are going to sell low quality goods at low prices, or high quality goods at high prices. I think they are tending toward the latter."

Timon's firm is one of three invited to Peking by the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Trade to explain the role that advertising plays in distribution of goods in the American market.

The others are N.W. Ayer International and Compton Advertising Inc. They are the first American agencies to get official invitations to China.

The three-agency mission has been in Peking since June 27, explaining American marketing techniques to the Foreign Trade Ministry and the 16 government-controlled corporations that carry on China's foreign trade.

"The object is to help China increase its trade balance with the United States," said the delegation leader, Gilbert A. Robinson, chairman of the U.S.-China Business Development Corp.

"Besides arts and crafts and traditional products, they have light industrial goods, hand tools, machine tools, and things in the chemical and medical line," Robinson said.

Other members of the delegation said Chinese musical instruments, including pianos and sporting goods, might also find markets in the United States.

"We have got to help them generate the dollars so they can buy things they need for modernization," said Thomas C. Sweitzer, senior vice president of Ayer.

"They are competitive in some areas. In others their technology is not so far advanced. The Chinese are smart enough to know that they need help."

Sweitzer said that "inevitably China is going to be a huge market, and it is important to get in and start learning about it."

The advertising executives left Peking Wednesday for a five-day visit to Shanghai, China's style and fashion center.

It's all Mazda

Mini-Test — Mazda 626: A few years ago Mazda was almost exclusively into rotary engines and it nearly proved to be their downfall. The Wankel design of that time tended to be thirsty and dirty, hardly the ideal technology to carry on through the jungle of ever-tightening emission/fuel economy legislation of the 70s. And when General Motors dropped its rotary activity — it was slated for the Vega — it looked as if the Wankel was dead.

But the ingenious and tenacious Japanese went back to the drawing board, made some real engineering advances in emission control and economy with the rotary, and brought it back in the fabulous RX-sports car.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS & VIEWS By Bill Vance

But this piece is about a reciprocating piston engine car, the one that Mazda sees filling the "world car" size slot between its subcompact piston engine GLC and the rotary RX-7.

The Mazda 626, introduced in 1979, comes in 2-door coupe and 4-door sedan configurations. The one tested was a coupe but the characteristics for both are similar. Power comes from Mazda's 2-litre, overhead cam truck engine which was found to be smooth and quiet in spite of its relatively long stroke (bore and stroke are 80 x 98mm). It idles smoothly and quietly at 1,000-1,200 rpm and revs freely up to about 5,000 rpm (redline is 6,000), but due to the engine's good mid-range torque, most driving will be done well under that.

The fifth gear is an easy striding highway ratio which allows the engine to loaf along at 2,800 rpm at 100km/h.

Mazda has paid a lot of attention to reducing aerodynamic drag through such tricks as flush-fitting windshield pillars, a front spoiler, and sloping hood and grille. This contributes to excellent fuel economy for a car of 1135 kg (2500 lb.); I got 10.1 L/100 km (45 km/g) in urban driving which we consider very good. The Transport Canada combined rating is 8.4 L/100 km (53 km/g) which puts the 626 right up there near the head of its class.

There is good performance to go along with the ecomony. The acceleration from 0 to 80 km/h came up in 7.5 seconds, while 0 to 100 km/h took 11.9. It has a distinctive exhaust rap when being pushed that may be annoying to some.

The 626 is loaded with those clever little convenience feature in which Japanese cars abound. Such things as a remote electric trunk release and electrically-adjusted rear-view mirror and a passenger seat in the coupe which, at the touch of a lever or a toe pedal, not only tilts the seat back forward, but slides the whole seat ahead to aid entry and exit for rear passengers. It also must hold the record for storage areas. There are left and right hand glove boxes, pockets in both doors and on the backs of the seats and a console bin. The left glove box was the handiest place yet for a road test notebook.

Driving the Mazda was fun. It handles well and has ample acceleration. All of the controls are conveniently located and smooth in operation. It comes with so much standard equipment, such as 5-speed transmission, AM/FM stereo and a digital clock, that about the only options are automatic transmission and air conditioning. If you are in the market for an imported 2-litre car, the Mazda 626 represents good value at $7,295 for the sedan and $7,695 for the coupe. (Toronto prices).

Alcohol Fiats ready

BELO HORIZONTE, Brazil (UPI) — Fiats's Brazilian factory has begun assembly-line production of alcohol-powered cars, factory officials said Wednesday.

They said production of Fiat model 127s with engines designed to run on alcohol was begun Tuesday with an output of 10 cars per day.

Brazil has launched an ambitious program to develop alcohol as a major alternative energy source and aims to produce 2.5 billion gallons of alcohol per year by 1985. The alcohol is made from sugar cane.

Brazilian cars already run on gasohol, a mixture of 20 percent alcohol and 80 percent gasoline, but the government is promoting a switch to total alcohol in order to save petroleum.

More Royal bankers move to U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada plans to move most of its U.S. operations to New York from Montreal within the next few months to strengthen its position south of the border, bank spokesman Rae Turley said Wednesday.

Miss Turley said about 10 executives in the bank's U.S. division, ranging from vice-president to support staff, would be affected by the move.

Miss Turley said the move was part of a decentralization program that has been underway at the bank for several years and "people shouldn't read any more into it." She noted the bank relocated its European operations to London in 1972.

"As you know, we see the U.S. as our number one international market so we just want to have our people stay closer to the whole thing."

The Royal Bank recently opened its first branch in the U.S., in Portland, Ore., and has more than half a dozen representative offices in the U.S. It plans to open two more representative offices in Denver and Pittsburgh later this month.

Miss Turley described as "premature" a published report that the bank is also planning to move its Caribbean and Latin American operations to Miami from Montreal, but acknowledged that such a move is being considered.

'Sword of Damocles' hung over RCMP security

OTTAWA (CP) — Long before Robert Samson, an RCMP constable arrested for a bombing in Montreal, triggered a series of public inquiries into the RCMP Security Service, the service looked upon him as "a sword of Damocles" hanging over its head.

Documents tabled before a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing, and made public Wednesday, disclose that in 1974, the Security Service feared that Samson would make public RCMP involvement in an illegal 1972 raid in Montreal and in the theft of Parti Quebecois membership lists in 1973.

RCMP fears turned out to be partly correct. In 1976, during his trial for the bombing, Samson disclosed Mountie involvement in an illegal break-in at a left-wing Montreal news agency.

The correspondence was made public as Michael Dare, 62, director-general of the security service since mid-1973, took the stand to testify before the inquiry.

As Dare denied personal knowledge the RCMP had been opening first-class mail, Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, the commission chairman, warned the audience of lawyers, reporters and Mounties against any gesture of "approval or disapproval" of Dare's testimony.

Dare testified that he initiated a "damage report" after Samson, a security service agent in Montreal since 1969, was arrested in March, 1974. He had been injured planting a bomb near the home of supermarket executive Mitzi Dobrin.

Dare warned Maurice Nadon, then RCMP commissioner, that if Samson made public his part in an illegal 1972 police break-in into offices of the left-wing news agency, this would "open the force to charges of poor supervision in the delicate security field."

Accompanying his Aug. 20, 1974, letter to Nadon was a "damage report" warning that Samson had threatened to spill the beans unless those close to him were better treated by Montreal police conducting the bombing investigation.

Dare suggested that the RCMP better get together with Montreal police to agree on a "scenario" in case Samson made public the 1972 break-in, in which Montreal and Quebec police had taken part.

Samson, later sentenced to seven years in prison for the bombing attempt, triggered a series of inquiries into the RCMP when he disclosed in court in 1976 that he had done worse things as a Mountie than plant the bomb.

He said at that time that he had been among the police who in 1972 broke into the offices of the news agency—the Agence de Presse Libre du Quebec—and carted away documents.

Authorities had denied that police were responsible for the break-in. But an investigation after Samson's testimony led to guilty pleas by three police officers, including Donald Cobb, a Security Service man, of authorizing a break-in without a judicial warrant.

Ottawa pledges pension probe

Colonist-FP news service

OTTAWA — Veterans Affairs Minister Allan McKinnon said Wednesday he and his officials would be taking a long hard look at the 48 per cent rule that denies a veteran's widow a pension in cases where the veterans disability was below that level.

He said it would not be possible to abolish that rule but he and his officials would be considering a recommendation that those below the 48 per cent be placed on a prorated basis for paying pensions to widows.

In this way the veteran's widow would get a pension even though the veteran's disability was below the 48 per cent level. The minister agreed that there should be some change made. He was commenting on remarks made in an interview by Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party MP for Winnipeg North Centre.

Knowles said he had four basic issues he planned to raise with the new minister of veterans affairs, who is also the minister of defence, as soon as parliament resumes sitting in October.

THE SECOND issue that Knowles intends to raise involves the need to keep the disability pension rate in line with the take-home pay of the five designated categories in the public service. Knowles complained that as it stood now the veterans got the pension rate adjusted but only after a long lapse in time. They are always playing "catch-up".

The minister said he was aware of the unfairness. But he pointed out that to make such changes depended upon funds being available, which was just not the case at the present time. He said if it couldn't be adjusted this year he would keep it in mind to consider changes later.

McKinnon said he would like nothing better than to speed up the handling of disability cases.

KNOWLES HAD complained that the handling of such cases used to take four or five months but now it takes seven to eight months.

The minister said the Pension Review Board had to be brought up to strength and the Pension Commission had to have its vacancies filled.

The minister said the veterans affairs department has done a lot of planning for its move to Prince Edward Island. However, he said until the move was accomplished, and the department settled into its new location it was doubtful there could be much acceleration in the handling of disability cases.

The noble art of frisbee throwing comes to Henderson Park

There were no reports of UFO sightings by park neighbors but things were more than a little "spinny" for young people taking part in a summer sports adventure program session Wednesday afternoon at Henderson Park recreation centre. Bearded frisbee experts Ron Leithwood and Bob Blakely put on quite a show as they demonstrated fine points to art of handling saucer-shaped missles. At left, Leithwood makes nifty finger-tip reception before admiring audience. Centre, Blakely and Leithwood dodge fast-flying frisbee. In third photo, Blakely executes classic backhanded, under-shoe grab. About 60 children ages 10-14 are registered in each two-week session, which will introduce them to variety of sports.

B.C. ombudsman hears beefs Oct. 1

Canadian Press

B.C. has its first ombudsman but he won't be opening up shop yet.

Dr. Karl Friedmann, 40, was sworn into office Wednesday but he said he would not be ready to accept complaints until Oct. 1 because he has to hire staff and because the law which governs his office would not be effective until that date.

Any complaints received before then—and he has received more than 200 so far—are being returned to the person making them in case alternative action can be taken before it is too late.

Friedmann, an associate professor of political science at the University of Calgary, is an acknowledged expert in his new job.

He was appointed to the six-year, $52,000-a-year position on the unanimous recommendation of an all-party legislative committee. That decision was ratified unanimously this year by the legislature.

"This will give me a chance to put into practice what I have been preaching for years," said Friedmann.

He said he believes the ombudsman should keep in close touch with the public and the press, noting that each time he was interviewed, complaints flowed.

The ombudsman's basic function is to investigate complaints from people who feel they have been shafted by government. And in cases where there has been an unfair decision or practice, he is empowered to make enquiries, gather all necessary information and make recommendations to the authority concerned, the provincial cabinet or to the legislature.

Friedmann at swearing-in

Friedmann said advisers told him that he was being optimistic in expecting to open his Victoria and Vancouver offices in three months. They suggest that it would be more realistic to think in term of six months.

He said he did know whether his $300,000 budget for the first six months would be sufficient but hopes to hire the best people for the job.

As his staff acquires expertise and expands, his jurisdiction will be increased to include such areas as municipal government, school districts, hospital boards, and organizations such as the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Friedmann said he could not order anyone to right any wrong he might find because "no ombudsman in the world can tell a government what to do."

But he expects that his suggestions will be accepted by the body involved 98 to 99 per cent of the time.

Failing acceptance there, he can then take the case to cabinet and ultimately to the legislature.

He said he hoped to make access to the office of ombudsman accessible to all in B.C. and, once his powers are enlarged, he hopes to open branches in smaller communities such as Prince George, Kamloops and Kelowna because "it will be easier to have a man on the spot than to send someone in from Victoria or Vancouver."

Boy, 7, saved

It was seven-year-old Kerry Manhas of 322 Beckley who was rescued Tuesday from the Inner Harbor by 14-year-old Russell Roemer of Coquitlam, Victoria police said Wednesday.

The previously unidentified child fell into two metres of water at Fisherman's Wharf about 6 p.m. Tuesday and was rescued by Russell. He was shaken but unhurt in the incident, and police said Russell's quick action prevented a possible tragedy. Kerry is a non-swimmer.

Russell, who lost a wallet and prescription glasses in the rescue, found his wallet at low tide Wednesday, but his glasses are still missing.

Use fighter jet cash for social ills—labor

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

Organized labor in Victoria, concerned with what it sees as the madness of the arms race, wants Canada to shift $4 billion in planned spending from fighter planes to social needs.

Secretary Larry Ryan told the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night that the plan to purchase 125 such planes for $4 billion over 10 years was in conflict with principles voiced by the United Nations. At a special session on disarmament last summer, the UN took the stand that no enduring security could be based on a continuing accumulation of weapons.

Ryan was speaking on an executive recommendation that the council urge Prime Minister Clark, through the Canadian Labor Congress, to review the military commitments the recently defeated Liberal government made to the strengthening of the NATO fighter forces.

The labor council resolution, passed unanimously by delegates, asks Clark to consider policies "more in line with the national and human requirements of a changing world."

It calls for the re-allocation of the $4 billion to the fight against unemployment, improvement of the unemployment insurance system, home construction projects, the establishment of a Canadian merchant marine and the funding of health and welfare services.

Delegates were told the Clark government appeared to favor the Liberal plan, something that would mean purchasing the planes from the U.S. This, in turn, would provide few new jobs for Canadian workers, would worsen the country's international trade deficit and add to inflation, the executive resolution said.

Ryan, noting that Conservative policy called for a reduction by 60,000 in the federal employee work force, as well as cutbacks in unemployment insurance and other areas, described the multi-billion-dollar defence plan as "a great irony, a great contradiction."

On other matters, the council:

- Called on local Conservative MPs Allan McKinnon (defence minister, Victoria) and Donald Munro (Esquimalt-Saanich) to take a stand against the "denationalization of PetroCan;
- Agreed to inform the CBC it was deeply disappointed with its decision to abandon its plan for a Victoria TV station;
- Joined the CLC and Ontario Federation of Labor in in opposing Candu reactors for Argentina because of that country's suppression of organized labor.

Robber gets $2,000

A lone robber got away with about $2,000 Wednesday afternoon from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at 1555 McKenzie in Saanich.

Saanich police said the man entered the bank about 1:30 p.m., went up to teller Leona Erickson with a brown paper bag and a note which read: "Put all the bills in the bag. Don't say anything."

After getting the bag back with the money in it, the robber fled out the Shelbourne Street entrance to the bank.

He is described as having a dark complexion, brown eyes and a round, heavy face.

His height is estimated at five feet, eight inches, he is of medium build and believed to be in his mid-20s.

Labor backs General

The Victoria Labor Council joined the growing health care squabble Wednesday night, coming out on the side of Victoria General Hospital against Health Minister Robert McClelland.

Budgeting guidelines which have created a province-wide controversy over reported alleged hospital staff reductions and curtailed services, moved into the local arena last week when the Victoria General Hospital Board decided to ignore the restrictions. When McClelland accused it of being irresponsible, the board challenged him to dismiss it and take over himself. It said it would not cut back and see needed services deteriorate.

Acting on a motion from the floor, labor council delegates condemned the attitude of McClelland and the provincial government. It also quickly passed another motion commending the Victoria General board for its "courageous" stand.

In so doing, however, it aimed some criticism at the board of Victoria's other major hospital—Royal Jubilee. It found deplorable the Jubilee board's position that the hospital must operate within the budget even if it means staff cuts and a limitation on surgery.

Touchy subject goes behind closed doors

Capital Region Board directors have discovered that no one wants sewage lagoons or disposal plants in their neighbourhood, so they went behind closed doors Wednesday to talk about that discovery.

They emerged after about an hour, tightlipped but calm.

It seems they have decided to use land at Macaulay Point, which they have always claimed was available for a sewage treatment plant. They hope to build a reception station there for septic tank trucks, so that effluent can be pumped out into the ocean.

Dave Hill, chairman of the solid waste handling committee, was evasive when questioned by reporters.

He did say, however, that the CRD would be unpopular if it tried to put septage disposal plants or lagoons anywhere in the region.

"That solution is pretty well down the tube," he said.

The committee had discussed various sites where a receiving station could be built, and had decided that a different approach to the problem was necessary.

Directors, he said, were no longer considering any type of lagoon, but had been looking at various treatment plant sites. Federal officials, he said, will be consulted and a solution offered to the board by next Wednesday.

The only treatment plant site mentioned by the CRD in the past has been ten acres at Macaulay, adjacent to the pumping station.

Directors have claimed that they have an option on the property, but no confirmation of this claim has been available.

Hill said the CRD is allowed to spend up to $200,000, including capital costs, to solve the problem of disposal of the contents of septic tanks.

However, the federal government has not yet put a price tag on the property, or said that it is in fact willing to sell.

ARSONIST BLAMED

Victoria fire inspector Pat Graham said Wednesday he was certain three fires Tuesday night in Market Square were the work of the same arsonist.

The fires occurred within an hour but caused no injuries or serious damage.

Director should quit–MD

The chairman of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board should resign following reports that he had said Victoria physicians were clogging the hospital with unnecessary operations, Dr. Scott Wallace said.

The former Oak Bay MLA said Terry Prentice had "just added another unnecessary burden to the doctors and nurses who are trying to put a gallon in a pint pot" at the crowded hospital.

Prentice was reported to have made the comments while suggesting that Royal Jubilee, unlike Victoria General, is going to attempt to stay within its budget, even if it could mean closure of addtional wards. The hospital closed a 16-bed surgical ward last month because of a lack of staff.

"Would Prentice care to list any of these unnecessary operations?" Wallace asked. "He should come with me for one day and see the real problems of people who need to be in hospital and can't get in."

The chief of the medical staff at the Jubilee, Dr. Elinor Powell said she had talked with Prentice following publication of his remarks, and Prentice (who has since left the Victoria area until July 16, according to his office) had denied making some of the remarks attributed to him.

"I'm not sure what there is to comment on," she said.

But Powell said no unnecessary operations were performed at the hospital.

"In fact the pressures on the hospital for these operations are extreme, and even our urgent cases have to put the census up to 105 (per cent of capacity)."

"The cases that come in are needing the surgery done," Powell said.

Many people waiting for elective surgery have disabling illnesses which prevent them from working, such as hernias, gallstones, or heart conditions. Their conditions sometimes deteriorate to the point where they finally get the surgery done—after they come in as emergency cases, Powell said.

Intensive care beds short

Only four of Royal Jubilee's 11 intensive-care beds are available to new patients, the hospital's acting director said Wednesday.

John Clark said seven of the hospital's intensive-care beds were filled with long-term patients needing intensive care.

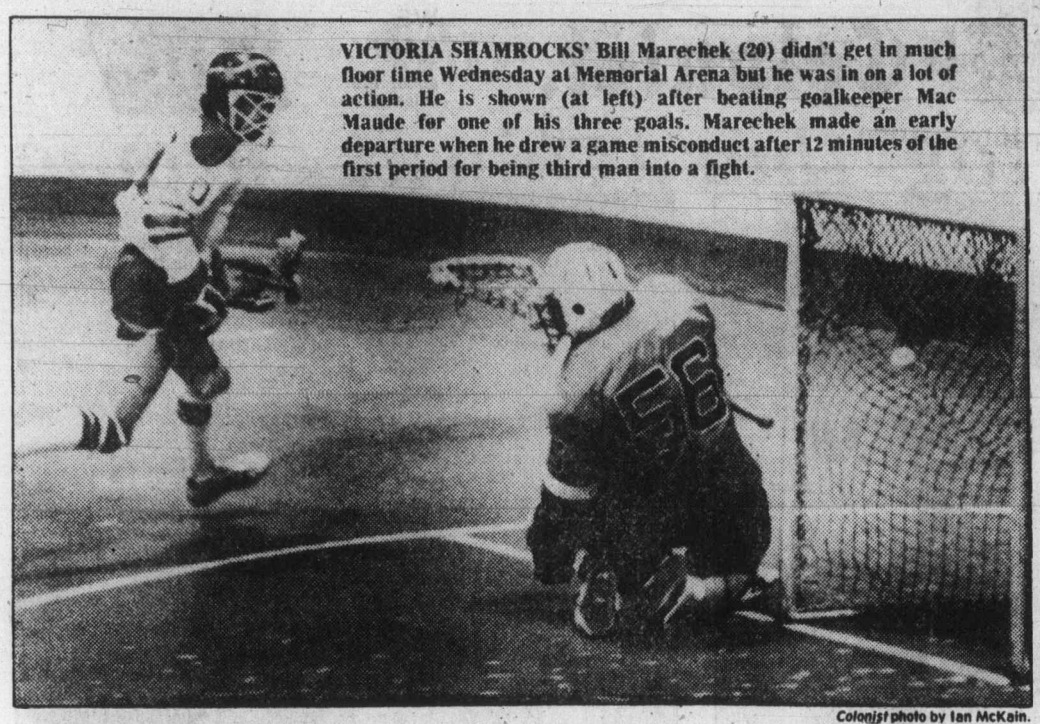
"We can't predict at this time when they will be discharged."

He said the intensive-care ward was primarily used by open-heart surgery patients, and the lack of beds was creating problems in accommodating them.

The small size of the hospital's intensive-care ward has been a bone of contention for some time, with many physicians urging expansion of the facility. Renovation plans for the hospital call for expanding it to about 40 beds.

Occupation of beds by long-term-care patients has been a constant problem for the hospital over the past few years, especially since the long-term-care program was introduced last year. Currently about 150 long-term-care patients are in acute-care beds at Jubilee.

The hospital has about 550 medical and surgical acute-care beds.



VICTORIA SHAMROCKS' Bill Marechek (20) didn't get in much floor time Wednesday at Memorial Arena but he was in on a lot of action. He is shown (at left) after beating goalkeeper Mac Maude for one of his three goals. Marechek made an early departure when he drew a game misconduct after 12 minutes of the first period for being third man into a fight.

Outcome flatters Rocks in fiery tilt with T-Men

BY STAN COOPER

Now that's more like the Western Lacrosse Association fans have known through the years.

Fast, exciting, rugged and unpredictable as blazes, Wednesday's game at Memorial Arena will go down in the records as a 16-14 win for Victoria Shamrocks over Nanaimo Timbermen.

But the score flattered the Shamrocks, who moved into first place with the victory, as the cellar-dwelling Timbermen came within two minutes of engineering the comeback of the season before about 1,200 spectators.

And it was obvious coach Bill Munroe knew his club escaped with the points as the Shamrock dressing room was locked and unavailable to reporters immediately following the game — a first in many seasons here.

However, the evidence was there for all to see as the Shamrocks, period leaders by 6-3 and 13-9, gave up nine straight goals between 14:10 of the second period and 12:00 of the final session and were hanging on the ropes before Jim Lynch finally took command.

The former National Lacrosse League rookie of the year snapped a 14-14 tie with an odd-man goal at 17:59 and added the insurance tally 56 seconds later to give the Shamrocks their 12th win in 19 games and a one-point lead over Coquitlam Adanacs.

Kevin Alexander led the Shamrock snipers with four goals, Bill Marechek had three before being banished with a game misconduct at 12:28 of the first period, Dan Green and senior "B" recruit Randy Bryant had two each and the others were contributed by Mike Yeager, Bob Cool and Dwayne Ferguson.

Doug Angrove, an Esquimalt product selected first in the 1979 draft of graduating juniors, had his finest game with the Timbermen, scoring six goals on nine shots.

Defending scoring champion Brian Evans, who must have logged 50 minutes of floor time, chipped in three goals and five assists, Pete Rushton and Charn Dhillon added two goals each and Gord Racette had the other.

But the goals didn't tell the whole story.

Nanaimo goalkeeper Mac Maude, who twice tried to remove himself from the action, was brilliant in the third period, making 12 of his 33 stops. The big netminder was ordered back into the game each time by backup Earl Nicholson, who took over coaching duties when Larry McNabb was given the heave midway through the second period after leaping onto the floor to protest a referee's call.

At the other end, Scott Marshall suffered through probably his worst game since joining the Shamrocks last season, stopping 27 shots — only five in the third period. But Munroe stuck with the WLA sophomore, who was making his first start in several weeks, as all-star Larry Smeltzer remained on the bench.

Timbermen drew 55 of the 104 penalty minutes assessed and gave up four odd-man goals while the Timbermen clicked twice on the power play and once on a brilliant shorthanded effort by Evans.

Shamrocks have a week to prepare for a July 11 game here against Vancouver Burrards while the Timbermen play host to New Westminster Salmonbellies on Saturday night.

Winston West win for Smith

PORTLAND, Ore. — Victoria's Roy Smith has become only the second Canadian to win a Winston West Grand National stock-car race.

The 34-year-old former sprint-car driver, collected $2,000 as he guided a 1979 Pontiac owned by Bob Beadle of Seattle to a first-place finish in a 100-mile Independence Day race Wednesday at Rose City Speedway.

The only other Canadian driver to win a Winston West event was George Stuart of Campbell River. He won the Victoria 100 in 1977 at Western Speedway.

Jackie Kuper of Portland took second money of $1,255 in his Chevrolet while Tim Williams of Seaside, Calif., finished third and moved into first place in the point standings.

Bill Schmitt of Redding, Calif., was the point leader going into the race but he was knocked out of race after only 10 laps. Schmitt hit the wall after tangling with Victoria's Rick O'Dell who had spunt out in a turn.

Neal Newberry of Wenatchee, Wash., was fourth and Richard White of Escondido, Calif. was fifth.

One-hitter by Carlton brings Phillies relief

Philadelphia Phillies pitching problems were temporarily forgotten Wednesday as veteran Steve Carlton came through with a sterling mound performance.

The 34-year-old lefthander allowed only a seventh-inning single to Elliot Maddox in pitching the Phillies to a 1-0 victory over New York Mets in a National League baseball game at Philadelphia.

It was Carlton's fifth career one-hitter, tying a National League record, and the Phillies' third straight triumph.

The Phillies scored the only run in the third inning and Carlton, 9-8, had a hand in the scoring. He stroked a one-out double to centre off Mets starter Andy Hassler, 1-2, and scored on McBride's double to right.

The performance was impressive but it didn't alleviate the Phillies concern over the sudden decimation of their pitching staff.

Carlton and Nino Espinosa are the only starters remaining from the start of the season as injuries have eliminated Larry Christenson, Dick Ruthven.

Christenson suffered a severe groin injury in Tuesday's game with the Mets and was placed on the 21-day disabled list.

Ruthven, who had elbow problems during spring training, but won his first six games of the season, also went on the 21-day disabled list with an inflammation of the elbow he injured in the spring.

The topper came after Tuesday's game when Randy Lerch suffered a broken bone in his right wrist during a scuffle with a gang of youths.

Lerch said that he, his wife and another couple, went to dinner after the game. After dinner, the pitcher said they were walking to the garage where they had parked their car when they were attacked by seven youths.

Lerch said he was hurt while fighting off three of the youths

"As I was falling to the ground, I stuck out my right arm to break my fall and then landed heavily on my shoulder. The other four began beating on my buddy."

Lerch said that with the help of his wife, Janet, he got free and helped free his friend.

Lerch, a left-hander, will not pitch at least until after the July 16-18 All-Star break.

Canada and Argentina dampen U.S. holiday

SAN JUAN (CP) — Canada and Argentina made an unneighborly contribution to the July 4 holiday Wednesday at the Pan-American Games.

While the United States shooting team fired off an Independence Day salute by winning three events and the American roller skaters picked up two more gold medals, Canada enjoyed its most successful day at the Games with victories in cycling, synchronized swimming and judo and the Argentines kept pace with three roller skating triumphs.

Gord Singleton of Niagara Falls won the first Canadian gold of the day in the 1,000-metre cycling time trial, an event won by Jocelyn Lovell of Toronto at the 1975 Games in Mexico City, when he finished more than a second ahead of highly-rated David Weller of Jamaica in one minute 7.30 seconds.

Helen Vanderburg of Calgary, the 1978 world champion, came from behind in her optional program to edge Michele Beaulieu of the U.S. for the synchronized swimming solo title and Brad Farrow of Delta defended the featherweight judo championship he won four years ago.

With 45 events completed, the U.S. remained far in front in the gold medal standings with 27 to six for Canada and Argentina. Cuba, with its second victory in judo, moved into a fourth-place tie with Brazil, which has also won two judo events.

U.S. veteran Lones Wigger picked up his third and fourth golds of the Games as he won the individual smallbore rifle three-position event and shared in the team title after doing the same in Tuesday's English match.

Wigger outscored teammate Rod Randolph 1,162 to 1,154 with Guy Lorion of Longueuil, Que., the gold medalist in Monday's air rifle competition, taking the bronze with 1,146.

Canada took the team silver with 4,531 points to the Americans' 4,572.

John Satherwhite, who shared an American victory in team skeet Tuesday, added the individual gold with a score of 196 to 194 for Matthew Dryke of the U.S. and 189 for Firmo Roberti of Argentina.

The Argentine heroine of the day was Nora Vega, who won her second and third roller skating titles in the 500-metre round robin and 3,000-metre race after taking the 500-metre sprint Tuesday.

Argentina also scored its first victory in a men's event as Raul Subilet outskated two Americans in the men's 3,000. Earlier, he was third behind Ken Sutton of the U.S. in the men's 500 round robin.

The U.S. finished 1-2 in the artistic pairs event as Pat Jones and Robbie Coleman edged Paul Price and Tina Kneilly 57.2 to 57.1. Guy Alubin of Montreal and Sylvie Gingras of Granby, Que., took the bronze ahead of Toni Quatrale of Toronto and Wendy Prosser of Mississauga, Ont., outscoring their team-mates 55.6 to 50.1.

While Farrow was wrapping up his featherweight judo title with a decision over Luis Onmura of Brazil in the final, Kevin Doherty of Thunder Bay settled for a silver in the lightweight class when he was outpointed by Guillermo Nelson of Cuba.

Robert Bettauer of Vancouver and Wendy Barlow of Victoria remained unbeaten in two rounds of singles competition in the tennis tournament, Bettauer defeating Marcos Braga of Brazil 7-6, 6-2 while Barlow disposed of Paula Hernandez of Cuba 6-3, 7-5.

Helen Pelletier of Charlesbourg, Que., lost her second-round match 7-6, 6-2 to Marlin Noriega of Venezuela.

The Canadian women's basketball team downed Brazil 102-83 for its second straight victory but the baseball team was beaten 4-1 by the Bahamas for its second straight loss. The women's softball team evened its record at 1-1 with a 4-3 decision over Bermuda and the women's volleyball team lost its first start 3-0 to Peru.

In one of the liveliest bouts of the boxing program, welterweight Martin Mezzara of Toronto dropped a close decision to Wilfred Guzman of Puerto Rico.

There was promise of more gold medals to come as the women's gymnastics team went into today's optional exercises with a substantial lead over Cuba and cyclist Claude Langlois turned in the fastest time in the first round of the 4,000-metre individual pursuit.

Cuba won the team championship in men's gymnastics and swept the three medals in the all-round competition late Wednesday.

The Canadian team won the silver medal, with Owen Walstrom of Victoria as a member, and the bronze went to Brazil. The team scores were 562.30 for Cuba, 550.55 for Canada and 514.90 for Brazil.

The all-round medalists were Sergio Suarez, Jorge Roche and Enrique Bravo. Suarez scored 112.95 points for his gold medal.

Pat Walter and Bruce Ford of Victoria City Rowing Club qualified for Sunday's final with their performance in the double sculls.

Longshots share lead in B.C. amateur golf

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Islanders and defending champion Doug Roxburgh had a rough day in the opening round of the B.C. amateur golf championship Wednesday.

Only three Islanders made the top 10 and Roxburgh, a five-time winner and a two-time Canadian champion, was five strokes off the pace and tied for 24th after struggling to a two-over-par 73 on his home Marine Drive course.

Longshots Rob Laing of Prince George, 19-year-old Brian Eccleston of North Vancouver, a former B.C. high school champion, and Brad Eward of Pitt Meadows scored 68s to share the first round lead.

They were one stroke ahead of three others in the field of 160.

The field will be cut to the low 80 and ties after the second round today and to the best 50 and ties for Saturday's final round.

Tied at 69 were 19-year-old Fred Couples of Seattle, one of the pre-tournament favorites, Fred Kato of Pitt Meadows and Dan Okholm of the host club.

Couples, last year's B.C. junior champion, recently played in the United States Open, where he finished as low amateur. He attends the University of Houston.

Steve Berry, also of the host course, was alone at 70 while there were six players tied at par 71, including Don Budd of Comox, John R. Russell of Glen Meadows in Sidney, Kelly Murray and Dick Zokol of Marine Drive and Portland's Brent Murray.

Murray, who rallied for his 71 with a five-under 30 on the back nine, was runner-up to Roxburgh of Vancouver in last year's B.C. championships at Uplands Golf Club.

Roxburgh three-putted the final two greens for a 73. He had fought back to par after being five-over after 11 holes. He eagled the 12th and birdied the 13th, 15th and 16th before finishing bogey-bogey.

The only other Islander to make the top 20 was Nanaimo's Ian Harper who carded a 72.

Martina, Chris encore Friday at Wimbledon

LONDON (AP) — Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd won one-sided matches in straight sets Wednesday and set up a repeat of last year's Wimbledon women's tennis final.

Navratilova, the reigning champion, won nine games in a row as she downed 16-year-old Tracy Austin 7-5, 6-1.

Lloyd went past Evonne Goolagong 6-3, 6-2 in an error-strewn duel and reached the final for the fifth time in seven years.

They will play Friday.

The ball bounced erratically on the wearing centre court Wednesday and the tennis was not the greatest of the tournament. The 17,000 fans were subdued. Some of them had slept all night on the sidewalks outside the All-England Club to get standing places.

In last year's final, Czechoslovak-born Navratilova defeated Lloyd 2-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Meanwhile, the men were set to play their semi-finals today. Bjorn Borg is to play Jimmy Connors, whom he has beaten in the final here the last two years. And Roscoe Tanner was to take on hard-charging fellow American Pat Dupre.

The bookies made Borg a heavy odds-on favorite to win the men's title for the fourth straight year. Ladbrokes only offered 8 to 13 on the Swede, meaning one would have to bet 13 pounds to win 8 pounds.

Other odds were 11 to 4 against Connors, 9 to 2 against Tanner and 25 to 1 against Dupre, America's 28th ranked player. Among the giants Dupre knocked off were Vitas Gerulaitis and Adriano Panatta.

First prize in the men's division is $40,000, while the women's champion will receive $36,000.

Austin, the schoolgirl prodigy from Rolling Hills, Calif., aimed to be the youngest Wimbledon finalist of this century and for a while Wednesday it looked as though she might succeed.

After trailing 1-3, Tracy took four straight games and led 5-3. But at that point the strong Navratilova took control and won nine games, which took her to 5-0 in the second.

The fast grass court, where the ball skidded and bounced at varying heights, favored Navratilova's serve-and-volley game. Tracy, who plays a steady baseline game on clay, went for broke and attacked at the net.

"She came in on my serve," Navratilova said. "I was asking myself, was this really Tracy playing?"

The teen-ager hit some remarkable passing shots along both sides, but her service was not powerful enough for the fast conditions.

Afterwards, as cheerful as ever, Tracy said: "The main thing is to go back to the match and learn from it. I'm not going to sulk because I got beaten."

She got one doubtful line call when she led 5-4 and was serving for the first set. At 15-30 a long rally ended with Navaratilova winning the point. But one shot from the defending champion appeared to land over the baseline.

Tracy walked over to the umpire to question the call and the crowd shouted "Out." But the linesman thought otherwise and the umpire allowed the call to stand.

"It bothered me a little," Tracy said. "It was only one mistake, but it was a big point."

She had just started her long run of losing games and did not get out of the rut until it was too late.

Lloyd's match against Goolagong never really warmed up. The American won because she made fewer errors. Goolagong, the Wimbledon champion of 1971, was off-target with her first service and erratic with her volleying.

Lloyd won the first three games in the first set and broke service at 2-1 in the second.

Goolagong played thoughtfully and tried to draw her opponent forward. But the Australian went on missing the lines. In the second set, Goolagong won only three points against Lloyd's service.

"She didn't seem very inspired," Lloyd said. "She kept looking for it and trying to find some feel, but she didn't really find it in the whole match."

Crawford new pro at Cedar Hill club

Nearly two months of speculation has ended with the selection of Lyle Crawford as the head professional at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Saanich Municpal Council approved the appointment of the 46-year-old Crawford during an in-camera meeting Tuesday night.

Crawford has been an assistant at Cedar Hill for a year and a half and has been running the pro shop since Bill Goldsworthy, head pro for 14 years, announced his resignation May 7.

Bill Young, director of Parks and Recreation for Saanich, said retaining Crawford will "provide some continuity."

"He is well known to the membership and the club executive was fully supportive in recommending him," said Young.

Crawford has won numerous major tournaments, including the B.C. Open, the B.C. amateur (twice) and the B.C. match-play championship (five times) and as a junior he won the B.C. and Canadian championships.

Goalie Dunc on the mend

VANCOUVER (CP) — Goaltender Dunc Wilson, who became a free agent last month, is recovering from surgery after the removal of a malignant mole from his shoulder, his wife said Wednesday.

Wilson, 31, played last season for Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League after being purchased from Pittsburgh Penguins.

Buddies Harold, Punch together again at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach offically returned to Toronto Maple Leafs on Wednesday, the scene of his greatest National Hockey League triumphs.

Imlach, 61, fired by the Leafs 10 years ago, confirmed at a news conference Wednesday that he has rejoined Toronto as its director of hockey operations.

Imlach said his first priority would be to hire a coach. Owner Harold Ballard released Roger Neilson from the Leafs coaching job last month.

Ballard said Jim Gregory, who has been the Leafs' general manager since Imlach was fired in 1969, will remain in the Toronto organization in an unspecified position. It is believed his responsibilities will be in the area of the club's minor-league development program.

The Imlach hiring did not come as any surprise.

His relationship with Ballard has always been a warm one, despite his dismissal from Toronto, and he is a close friend of King Clancy, Leafs vice-president.

"It wasn't me who fired Punch," Ballard maintained throughout the years. " It was Stafford (Smythe, then Ballard's partner)."

Imlach has had several meetings with Ballard this spring and had been rumored to be coming back to Toronto ever since he was fired as general manager of Buffalo Sabres, Dec. 5, 1978.

Imlach, who joined Toronto in 1959, guided the Leafs to four Stanley Cup championships, three in succession from 1962-64, and one in 1967.

Minutes after Toronto was swept by Boston Bruins in the 1969 playoffs he was fired by Smythe but came back to the NHL as coach and general manager of the Sabres when they joined the league in 1970.

A heart attack in 1972 forced him to relinquish the coaching duties in Buffalo. His high point with the Sabres occurred in the 1974-75 season when Buffalo advanced to the Stanley Cup final, losing to Philadelphia Flyers.

His hiring marks the first success Ballard has experienced this year at signing top hockey executives.

Ballard publicly bid for the services of ex-Bruins coach Don Cherry but lost out to Colorado Rockies. He then went after Scotty Bowman, who coached Montreal Canadiens to four consecutive Stanley Cups. Bowman signed with Buffalo and hired Nielson.

Ballard also struck out in his bid to sign Mike Nykoluk, New York Rangers assistant coach.

Imlach looked relieved to be back in hockey and back in Toronto.

"I'm very happy to be back here," he said. "I suppose I never really left. Harold and I have been friends a long time. He knows me better than anybody and I probably know him as good as anybody."

He also agreed that he has a lot of work to do to bring the team up to a point where they be can called a Stanley Cup challenger.

"You can't do anything if you haven't got the talent," he said. "On the Maple Leafs they have five or six good hockey players and the rest are not as good. Over-all the team is not good enough to win enough hockey games to make you competetive enough to win a Stanley Cup."

Imlach would not discuss a list of possible candidates for the coaching job, even though Marcel Pronovost, who got the axe along with Punch at Buffalo, has been No. 1 in the rumor mill. He did, however, rule out any possibilities that he'd be behind the bench.

"The first priority is to get a coach," he said. "If that coach wants to take an assistant coach, he'll get an assistant coach. I would like to have as coach somebody that has experience in the National Hockey League.

"However, coaching would be too big a risk for me to take," he said, referring to his heart problems. "I'm not prepared to take that risk."

Ballard would not admit Imlach was his second choice behind Bowman, to run the hockey operations.

"I talked to Punch long before I talked to Scotty," Ballard maintained.

Creighton to Bruins?

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins said Wednesday they would announce the National Hockey League team's new coach, expected to be former Atlanta Flames coach Fred Creighton, at a news conference today.

Others who have been mentioned as possible successors to former Bruins coach Don Cherry have included Parker MacDonald, who coached and managed the New Haven Nighthawks of the American Hockey League last year, and former Bruins star John Bucyk.

Creighton, fired two months ago as coach of the Flames, said after meeting with Bruins general manager Harry Sinden last week that, "Harry said he would get back to me, and if I'm officially offered the Bruins coaching job, I will take it."

State Dinner bests Alydar

NEW YORK (AP) — State Dinner took the lead from pace-setting Mr. Brea 40 yards from the finish and won the $131,875 Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park on Wednesday.

Alydar, the 3-5 favorite who was bidding to become thoroughbred racing's 25th millionaire, had to settle for third.

The victory kept alive State Dinner's bid to become the fourth winner of New York's Handicap Triple Crown. He needs now to win the 1½-mile Brooklyn Handicap July 21 to join Whisk Broom II, 1913; Tom Fool, 1953; and Kelso, 1961, as the only horses to win the Metropolitan, Suburban and Brooklyn in the same year.

State Dinner, ridden by Jorge Velasquez, raced the 1¼ miles on a fast track under 118 pounds in 2:01 3-5 for a half-length victory over Mr. Brea.

Young Maritime horseman proving himself at Sandown

BY JIM TANG

He isn't threatening Keith Linton's grip on the driving lead but a young man from Nova Scotia is having a fine season at Sandown Raceway and is steadily establishing himself in the harness-racing career he decided to pursue only a few years ago.

Mike Stymest, who is 25 and used to hail from Sackville, has been racing only four of the pacers in his five-horse stable, but he has been doing exceedingly well. After 26 days of the summer-long meeting he is sixth in the number of victories but third in the Universal driving rating system which determines how drivers stand.

Stymest has driven 57 times, and with 14 victories and eight place and five show finishes has a fine .353 percentage. Only Linton, having an outstanding meet and now at .471, and Joe Hudon, who got away to a great start and has been sidelined since May 31 with a broken leg, have done better.

As a youngster, Stymest lived close to Sackville Downs and played hookey from time to time to go to the track and earn some spending money doing odd jobs. There was also an added interest in that his dad, a navy man, owned a pacer or two and trained and drove as a hobby.

Stymest got a job at the Halifax army base as a sheet-metal worker, and by the time he was 18 had enough money to become an owner by paying $600 for a pacer. He won a couple of races before selling the animal, but was quickly back as an owner with a $900 purchase. This time there were six victories in a row.

"That's when I got hooked," he says.

He decided to leave Nova Scotia in 1976, and because it was the home of an army buddy, his first move was to Edmonton. Stymest got a job at Northlands for standardbred-owner Roy Hennessey, saved his money, became an owner for a third time, raced in Saskatchewan last summer and then moved west to take in the 1978/79 Cloverdale meeting.

Stymest has won at least once at Sandown with the three pacers he owns. Jet Seeman has done the best with three victories and two place finishes in eight starts. Mac Page has a win and a place finish and finished fourth once in seven starts and the four-year-old Sizzler Seeman showed in its first start and won its second.

Also in Stymest's stable are Riverview King and Willie Orbit, owned Mike Ewashko of Regina. Riverview King has yet to win and Willie Orbit, a three-year-old, has yet to start at Sandown.

Stymest has a fine record at Sandown as a catch-driver. Fort Tilden didn't do too well for Victoria-owner Bud Michell until Stymest was given the reins, and there has been a victory and two place finishes since. Stymest has also won with Phantom Dancer, Jefferson Style, Beaver Cash, Callaghan and Spunkey Dale, and to a considerable extent because his driving ability was not yet recognized, he has figured in quite a number of big payoffs.

Beaver Cash was part of a $148.90 Exactor, Phantom Dancer paid $40.50 in its first victory and Jefferson Style set up a $225.60 Exactor payoff.

There were others but the biggest of all, and the biggest of the meet, came on June 9 when a hole opened up on the rail and Stymest was quick to take advantage and get the 4-1 Spunkey Dale across the line first. Photoed out was the 30-1 Mark Missile and the combination was worth $983.80.

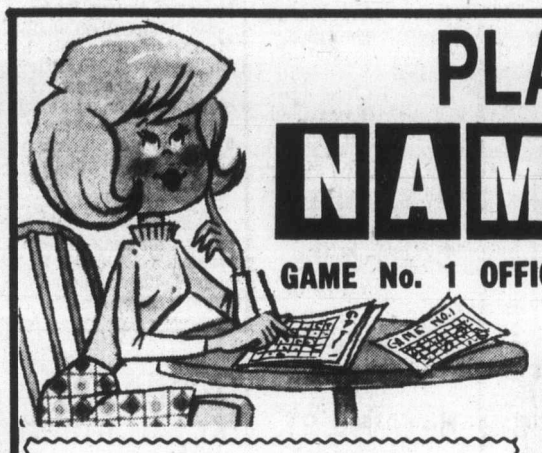
PLAY THE NAMEGAME
GAME No. 1 OFFICIAL ENTRY FORM BELOW!



WIN! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.
1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday and Sunday and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Bonnett snatches win in Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Neil Bonnett daringly drove through heavy traffic on the final lap and edged Benny Parsons by a car length to win the Firecracker 400 on Wednesday.

Bonnett held off Darrell Waltrip through the last 100 miles, keeping Waltrip from regaining a lap he had lost by pitting on the green flag just before rookie Terry Labonte and veteran Bobby Allison brought out the yellow with a spectacular crash on the east 31-degree banking.

Not only did Bonnett have to hold off Parsons and Waltrip to keep his slender lead through the final 28 laps, he also had to worry about rookie Dale Earnhardt, who was right behind Parsons at the finish.

It was Bonnett's first victory at Daytona International Speedway but the second Firecracker in a row for his Wood Brothers Mercury. David Pearson, who won last year, was replaced in the car by Bonnett last April. He promptly won the Mason Dixon 500.

Bonnett set a record speed of 172.890 miles an hour in a race slowed by only two caution flags for a total of nine of the 160 laps.

Neither Allison nor Labonte was injured in their crash, which came just after the halfway point as Allison surrendered the lead with a pit stop and was running fast to catch up. In an earlier wreck, Sandy Satullo and Jimmy Finger tangled on the backstretch. Finger was taken to a hospital for a foot x-ray. Satullo was unhurt.

Pole starter Buddy Baker and Waltrip were exchanging the lead on every third lap in the early stages of the race, but Baker's Daytona luck stayed miserable and he retired after 150 miles with ignition trouble.

Bonnett's record speed broke a mark of 167.247 m.p.h. set by Cale Yarborough in 1968. The 32-year-old Bonnett won $21,705, his biggest payday in four years of Grand National racing.

The lead changed hands 31 times. Seven drivers held first place at least once — A.J. Foyt, Petty, Earnhardt, Parsons, Waltrip, Baker and Bonnett.

CFL puts wraps on pre-season

Winnipeg Blue Bombers scored a touchdown and a field goal late in the fourth quarter to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders 16-10 in one of two games Wednesday night as the Canadian Football League concluded its exhibition schedule.

Each team finishes the pre-season with one win and three losses.

In Ottawa, fullback Brian Duncan scored two touchdowns to power Toronto Argonauts to an 18-13 win over the Rough Riders before 19,450 chilled fans.

Back in Winnipeg, meanwhile, the fourth-quarter touchdown, on a six-yard pass from quarterback Dieter Brock to wide receiver Gord Paterson, was only the second major score for the Bombers in four exhibition games.

Placekicker Bernie Ruoff kept the Bombers in the game with field goals in the second and third quarters, and added another field goal with less than two minutes remaining to play. He also converted Paterson's touchdown.

The Roughriders did all their scoring in the second quarter, on a 12-yard run by Molly McGee and a convert and 45-yard field goal by Reg Boudreau.

Duncan scored on a one-yard run late in the second quarter and caught a 15-yard pass from quarterback Tony Adams midway through the third quarter.

Other Toronto scoring was by Ian Sunter on a 35-yard field goal and a convert and by Ed Thomas, who converted Duncan's second touchdown and seconds later scored a single when Ottawa's Vince Allen conceded his kickoff in the end zone.

Mike Murphy scored the Ottawa touchdown on a 20-yard pass from quarterback Condredge Holloway in the second quarter. Gerry Organ converted and kicked field goals of 42 and 19 yards.

Overskate adds to track laurels

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Overskate, Canada's horse of the year 1978, galloped to a one-length victory as the 1-5 favorite Wednesday in the 51st running of the $55,600 Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington Park.

A holiday crowd of 22,028 saw That's A Nice finish second in the 1 1-16 mile turf race. Bold Standard was third, two lengths farther back in the field of eight.

Overskate, a four-year-old son of No Double and owned and bred by Jack H. Stafford at his King, Ont., farm, is unbeaten in five starts this year. In his previous race he defeated U.S. champion mare, Waya, by four lengths in the Bowling Green Handicap at Belmont Park. Overskate smashed the track record at Belmont for 1⅜ miles in grass by 2:25 seconds.

Overskate, ridden by regular jockey Robin Platts, spurted between horses to take the lead from Cruise On In midway down the backstretch in the Stars and Stripes.

He gradually drew away and won commensurately in 1:44 over a track that had been softened by overnight rain.

The winner, who carried top weight of 125 pounds, is a small horse weighing about 950 pounds. Overskate paid $2.40, $2.10 and $2.10. That's A Nice returned $2.40 and $2.40. Bold Standard paid $3.60.

Overskate earned $33,360 to increase his career earnings to $511,739.

City runners second, third

RICHMOND — Victoria's Mike Creery, running for Vancouver Olympics, placed second in the pre-Master's category of this week's opening round of the Adidas road-race series. Creery clocked a time of two minutes, 38.7 seconds.

Garth Ball of Victoria Flying Y was third in the Masters' division, with a time of 2:49.1, while Don Ball was third in midget at 3:05.2.

Nancy fashions no-hit game

Nancy McLachlan got her troubles out of the way early Wednesday and went on to pitch a no-hitter.

The VI-90 pitcher was tagged for a run in the first inning on a walk and an error but then she retired the next three in order and didn't allow another baserunner as VI-90 downed Butler Bros 5-1 in a Senior Women's League softball game at Hyacinth Park.

McLachlan was given solid defensive help as she struck out only three while Diane Daniels went two-for-three at the plate and Debbie Krantz singled home the winning run.

Pam Jones also had a good night on the mound as she struck out seven and held Strathcona Stingers to three hits in posting a 5-0 win for Island Dryco Breakers.

Sally Hollett and Doreen Newton had two hits apiece and Newton scored the winning run on an error.

Meanwhile in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League, Elks-Athletics held off a seventh-inning challenge to edge Strandlund Bros., 5-3 at Central Park.

Elks were leading 5-1 with two out when reliever Ken Fox was gave up two walks, two singles and two runs but he struck out losing pitcher John Kilgore to end the threat.

Wally Popoff, Mike Wallace and Lou Vermette had two hits each for Elks and Popoff scored twice and drove in a run while Wallace and Vermette drove in one run each.

In a game at Sooke, Mel Nelson pitched a four-hitter and doubled and drove in two runs as K & R Sooke blanked Juan de Fuca Builders 3-0.

In the Heywood Avenue League, Jim Miller hit a home run and a double and pitched a seven-hitter as Victoria Athletics defeated Capital Builders 4-2.

Dwayne Robinson and Bruce Kielbisk also had two hits and Robinson included a home run.

At Macdonald Park, Mayfair Insurance edged Strathcona Hotel 6-5 and Tragalgar Legion downed Saints 3-1 in Men's League action.

Quarterback quits at 25 but could return at 26

WINNIPEG (CP) — Harry Knight, for two years the back-up quarterback of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, announced his retirement from the Canadian Football League Wednesday.

Knight, 25, said he is quitting because a year-old shoulder injury has prevented him from being an effective passer.

Although retired, Knight will remain the property of the Blue Bombers.

"We're not expecting him back this season but we'll be looking at him for next season," said a club spokesman.

Knight joined the team in late 1975 and played behind first-string pivot Dieter Brock in 1976 and 1977. Knight was injured in the second game last season and has seen little action since.

He said retiring at 25 is hard to accept. "If I can get myself healthy again, I'll be back next year."

Bottlers nip Junior Bs

Goodwill Intermediate 'A' Bottlers edged Saanich Junior 'B' 10-9 Wednesday night in an exhibition lacrosse game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Mike Thomas scored four goals for the winners with single goals coming from Frank Wendt, Shawn Deenshaw, Alan Zozula, Gord Christiaens, Leigh Pollock and Doug Barnes.

John Horgan and Chris Clark, with three each, Gerry Bell, Ken Logue and Dwight Davies scored for Saanich.

Vagabonds post win

Vancouver Island Vagabonds defeated Cowichan by two wickets in Cowichan Cricket Week exhibition action on Wednesday.

Cowichan opened and were all out for 155, as Malcolm Ringham managed 36 runs and Peter Clarke added 25. Vagabond bowler Alex Porter took three wickets for 22 while Cec Mayers was two for 14.

In their innings, Vagabonds tallied 156 for eight with Alan Rees collecting 35, Peter Wheaton scoring 29 not out and Dennis Shaw scoring 28.

Peter Wilson took six wickets for 49 bowling for Cowichan.

Dragons cap good season

First-place Dragons capped a successful season with a 2-0 victory over Hawks Wednesday night in boys' little league field hockey play.

Elsewhere, David Hood scored three goals as Eagles bounced Lions 6-0 and Kings edged Panthers 1-0.

In the junior league, Udhe Bassi scored four goals as Eagles bombed Lions 9-0.

Both leagues have playoffs scheduled this weekend.

Official suspended after track meet probe

EDINBURGH (Reuter) — Scottish athletics officials investigating allegations of illegal payments at a track and field meet last year have suspended Bill Walker, assistant manager of Meadowbank Stadium where the meet was held.

Walker, a member of the Scottish Amateur Athletic Association committee, figured in police inquiries earlier this year into the alleged payment to about 40 British and foreign athletes of illegal expenses totalling nearly $25,000 at the Highland Games meet in August.

After a lengthy investigation by police it was decided that no charges would be brought against Walker — at which point the SAAA and the British Amateur Athletic Board launched their own inquiries.

The inquiries are continuing but there was some surprise in athletics circles at the suspension of Walker for allegedly breaking the rules in making illegal payments when there is apparently insufficient evidence at the moment to suspend any athlete for accepting money.

It is understood that several Olympic champions and Commonwealth Games gold medalists were among the athletes interviewed by Scottish police.

Pratte skips court pension

OTTAWA (CP) — Yves Pratte, who retired after being a justice of the Supreme Court of Canada for less than two years, will not apply for a court pension, a spokesman for the court said Wednesday.,

Pratte, 54, former chairman of Air Canada, announced last week he was retiring for health reasons.

At almost the same time, Transport Minister Don Mazankowski said he was asking for a report from Air Canada on the pension Pratte received when he resigned from the crown-owned airline Dec. 1, 1975.

He was responding to published reports that Pratte received a pension based on 20 years' service when he served only seven. The reports said Pratte also received $200,000 when he left the airline.

The court spokesman said there was no question butthat Pratte would not apply for a court pension.

It was reported last week that he might be eligible for such a pension if he applied for it.

Half-fares cut off by Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Transport Commission has ordered American Airlines to stop offering half-fare prices on its flights leaving Canada.

The airline began advertising the half-fares with the use of coupons, a practice frowned upon by the Canadian agency which regulates airlines.

Under commission rules, an airline wanting to advertise special fares must first apply for permission.

"In this case, they informed us after the fact," said a commission spokesman.

Scientist funeral set today

OTTAWA (CP) — Funeral services will be held today for Carl Beals, 80, former Dominion Astronomer and one of the country's foremost scientists, who died in hospital Monday.

Beals was Dominion Astronomer from 1946 until his retirement in 1964, and was one of the first astronomers to investigate the group of hot stars with extended atmospheres, known as Wolf-Rayet stars.

He was the only Canadian to serve as president of the American Astronomical Society and was a pioneer in spectral techniques to study interstellar clouds in outer space.

Knowledge of interstellar matter is essential for measuring distances to stars and dimensions of the universe.

Beals' contributions to science also earned him the highest award of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada in 1952, the gold medal of the Royal Society of Canada in 1957, and the Leonard Medal of the Meteoritical Society in 1966.

He was also a fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society of England.

M. V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

No garden of any size can be considered properly furnished without a shade tree or two. If you contemplate planting one or two this fall or next spring, this midsummer season is a very good time to do a little thoughtful planning — first, what kind of tree you will select, and second, where you will plant it.

Personally, I don't care much for the kinds of trees that cast a dense, gloomy shade, for nothing will grow under such low-branched, heavily leafed or needled subjects, and lawn maintenance becomes an impossible chore. I like a tree which will provide a cheerful, dapplied shade, dotted with little spots of sunshine filtering through the leafy canopy. Grass and most woodland plants grow happily under such light conditions.

In deciding where to plant your tree, it is a good idea to figure out, during the midsummer season, just where you want its shadow to fall and work back from there to determine the exact planting site. It isn't any good picking a spot where the tree will look nice from the living room window if its shade will be cast on your flower beds or on the house next door.

The shade should fall on just that part of the lawn where you want it, or on the patio or terrace or other sitting-out space, and at the same time of day when you are in the habit of sitting there. This kind of planning can only be done in midsummer.

My own favorite shade tree for the front lawn is the triple-stemmed birch. Small birches trained to three stems can be purchased fairly reasonably at most plant nurseries, or at a pinch you could buy three small birch trees and bung them all in the same planting hole. This crowding causes the trees to grow very tall and slender, arching away from one another as they put on height, making a most graceful vase-shaped grouping.

The birch is a singularly happy choice in any case, for the leaves are small and fluttery, creating the desired dappled pattern of sunlit spots, and the roots are not invasive or greedy. If it has any fault at all, it is the habit of dropping its golden autumn foliage after you have raked up all the other fallen leaves, for they hang on later than any other deciduous tree.

In past years, birch trees have been plagued with two serious pests — a leaf miner and a wood-boring caterpillar that tunnels into the main trunk, sometimes killing the tree. Since the introduction of Cygon 2-E, a paint-on systemic insecticide, these pests are no longer serious problems.

Another of my favorite shade trees is the linden, known also as the basswood or lime tree. Several varieties are available, including the Little Leaf Linden, with smaller, neater foliage than the big boulevard trees which gave Unter den Linden in Berlin its name. The lindens are sweetly fragrant when in blossom and attract bees by the hundreds, and it is a singularly soporific experience to sit under a linden when the bees are working the blossoms. The combination of dappled shade, sweet fragrance and the hypnotic humming of the bees is guaranteed to set you dozing off.

The Mountain Ash or Rowan tree is another excellent choice for a shade tree. Here again, the foliage is light and airy, with the branches well up off the ground, and the clusters of coral red berries are a sheer delight in fall and winter.

None of these trees is particularly expensive. One nursery catalogue which lies before me as I write offers single-stemmed birch trees at $10 to $30 depending on size and age, and multi-stemmed birches at $15 to $30. Linden trees, listed under their botanical name, Tilia, run from $12 to $21.50 each, while specimens of Mountain Ash are priced at $9 for a 3-foot sapling to $24 for a specimen 8 feet tall.

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The one thing all of us in this country prided ourselves on was "American Know-How." No matter how messed up things got politically, we always could say, "What makes this country different is that we've got Know-How."

Now, for the first time, our faith in AKH is under siege and everyone seems to be asking, "What happened to good old American Know-How?"

I found American Know-How taking a coffee break under a tree.

"How do you feel?" I asked.

"Not so good," Know-How said. "I keep goofing up. I guess it must be age."

"Don't say that. You're as young as you feel."

"Nothing seems to go right lately. Skylab won't stay up, they grounded the DC-10s, 5 nuclear energy plants are under fire, and they've recalled all the Firestone 500 radial tires. I guess I'm no longer infallible."

"No one is infallible, but you're still pretty good. Everyone makes mistakes."

"Sure, but you never heard about them before. Now a day doesn't go by when someone somewhere doesn't screw up, and everyone says, 'That's American Know-How for you.' It isn't all my fault."

"Whose fault is it?"

"I can't get good help. I've inherited a whole generation of people who don't give a damn."

"Why?"

"I know you're going to think I'm nuts, but I blame it on the day that parents stopped insisting children clean up their rooms."

"I'm not sure I understand."

"In the Sixties and Seventies people gave up asking their kids to do anything around the house. It was too much of a hassle. The kids dropped their clothes all over the floor, they left a mess everywhere they went and they got away with murder. Now they're grown up and they're a bunch of slobs. How can someone design a safe automobile when he doesn't even know how to make up his own bed?"

"I can't believe that's the answer to the problem."

"Have you been in a college dormitory in recent years? It looks as if a typhoon hit it. These kids, who live in their own debris for four and six years, have come out of school to be our doctors, lawyers, engineers and scientists. We're putting people in charge of nuclear plants who don't know how to hang their own clothes on a hanger. We have engineers designing dams who have never shined their shoes. We have doctors doing open-heart surgery who have never washed out a bathtub. Sooner or later they're bound to mess up."

"What you're saying is that we lost the race for know-how in the bedrooms and bathrooms of the American home."

"It has to start somewhere," he replied. "You can't put a person in charge of quality control if he doesn't know how to shave."

"It's frightening when you put it in those terms," I said. "Is there any hope?"

"We have to raise a whole new generation that cares. There was a time when American know-how could get a man on the moon. Now I can't even guarantee that I can find anyone to fix your washing machine."

Thoughts at Large:

● I can resist almost any kind of advertising, except for those two quietly seductive words: "Reduced to . . ."

● Sensible cremation will not take the place of barbarous burial until it becomes mandatory to inscribe utterly truthful epitaphs on tombstones.

● Those persons called "loners" are not nearly so lonesome at bottom as those with a compulsive necessity to be surrounded by acquaintances and constantly involved in activities. (Thoreau was in closer touch with himself than was Emerson.)

● Whenever a weekend approaches, I am reminded of Susan Ertz's observation: "Millions of persons long for immortality who do not know what to do with themselves on a rainy Sunday afternoon."

● Happy (and prosperous) is that husband whose wife is satisfied with her hair exactly as it is.

● Perhaps the most poignant passage Shakespeare ever wrote was compressed into 10 words, all of them one-syllable: "Put out the light, and then put out the light," in Othello.

● It's the uninvited guest who usually seems to be having the best time.

● A successful spy, after all, is merely someone who couldn't make it being who he is.

● Far more often than not, when a person says or writes "prerequisites," what he means is simply "requisites."

● News stories about potential presidential candidates for 1980 call to mind Clarence Darrow's sardonic comment of more than a half-century ago, which is even truer now: "When I was a boy, I was told that anybody could become president; I'm beginning to believe it."

● Couples who persist in disagreeing quietly, with deadly politeness, never resolve their basic differences: for as long as they remain "reasonable," the deeply irrational nature of their conflict cannot come to light.

● The miserable poor drink to forget what they do not have; and the miserable rich drink to forget what they have has not brought them.

● The indolent person wrongly supposes that being can take the place of doing; while the energetic person makes exactly the opposite error. (You are incomplete if the two are not commensurate in some way.)

● After a time, enemies come to resemble each other as much as lovers do.

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Danny Thomas should make a TV series about his family's work with St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis. It could be called Family Affair.

Rosie Thomas, Danny's wife, is chairing the big bash at the Beverly Hilton Friday with daughter Marlo here from New York for the dinner dance-art auction gala. Marlo also got George Steinbrenner of The New York Yankees to head the Big Apple part of Sunday's national telethon, which is being readied by son Tony. And daughter Terre has gotten the Florida Jaycees involved in the hospital.

Meanwhile, Ronald Jacobs, Danny's nephew, took Wink Marindale, the telethon co-host, to Memphis to tape some promos at the hospital.

I've visited the hospital. Believe me, they are doing great work there in children's catastrophic diseases. No fees are charged. That's why Danny has the whole family working for the hospital. They don't get paid, either.

Dropped over to the Friars Club the other night where Milton Berle, Friars president, and Jerry Axelrod, president of Southwest Leasing Corporation, worked up a surprise for Jonie Taps.

Jonie, along with George Jessel, invented the famed Friars Roasts which later made Dean Martin a millionaire. Jessel is still poor.

For his years of meritorious service, Jonie was presented with a plaque along with some unprintable words from Milton.

Jonie, along with Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Jessel, started the Friars back in 1947. That was back when Jessel only had one medal—the Purple Heart he got from George Washington at Valley Forge.

In those days Jonie was Harry Cohn's right-hand man at Columbia. Harry wanted to know if Jonie was making a movie he didn't know about because he had Crosby and Hope in his office.

"No, Harry, said Jonie, "we're forming a Friars Club."

"Shall I join?"

"You are, Harry," said Jonie, who knew something about job security.

Harry Cohn was the first president of the Friars and the only one who wasn't elected.

ORR ROER of Colwood Pharmacy shows Kodak Colorburst camera that will be given to Colonist subscriber who catches heaviest chinook salmon of six-month-long fishfest. Current leader is George Goy, with a 55½-pounder from Beechey Head.

George Hancock of 2920 Glen Lake Road is 78 years old and partially blind, but that didn't stop him landing a 31¾-pound chinook by drift fishing off Pedder Bay's Bentinck Island.

He was using a Stingsilda, a Daiwa mooching rod and reel and 15-pound-test line, and it took him half an hour to bring his fish to net.

He will be entered in the Molson's Fish of the Month category, but for now wins a Silver Anniversary King Fisherman fun decal.

Overhaul of track for E & N

Double traffic for Dayliner

NANAIMO — CP Rail officials will begin a routine maintenance program Monday along Vancouver Island's Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway.

The decision was made Wednesday by CP Rail following a British Columbia Pesticide Appeal Board ruling last week to cancel its permit to spray herbicides bromacil and tebuthiuron on the line.

Workers, using tamping machines and a ballast regulator, are expected to take about three months as they move north along the line from Victoria to Courtenay.

The tamping machine lifts rails and ties, then smoothes out the undersurface so the rails can be laid level. The ballast regulator picks up and cleans ballasts along the track and shoulders.

Approximately 29,000 passengers rode the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Dayliner in the first six months of this year, almost double the figure for the same period last year, according to the latest report of the E & N Steering Committee.

Committee chairman John Cooper said the six-month passenger load was just slightly short of that recorded for a three-year period from 1975 to 1977.

Cooper says the committee feels it is reasonable to forecast a passenger load of 75,000 for this year, compared with 45,000 for last year.

The Canadian Transport Commission originally approved a CP Rail application to abandon the Dayliner as an economic loser, but the decision was reversed after a campaign by Cooper's committee and others was credited with increasing business.

Provincial Court

A 23-year-old inmate at the Jordan River forestry camp had two months tacked onto his sentence after pleading guilty Wednesday in Victoria provincial court to being unlawfully at large last month.

Robert Zeilstra was given the sentence after Judge Fred Green learned it was Zeilstra's second conviction this year for the same kind of offence. Zeilstra was convicted Feb. 21 in Burnaby of escaping lawful custody and was given a 30-day sentence consecutive to a term he was serving.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court Zeilstra was convicted of two counts of arson and three counts of theft Oct. 31 and was given terms totalling 16 months.

On June 11, Laughton said, Zeilstra was noticed missing during an afternoon head count at the forestry camp. A subsequent search of the area was unsuccessful.

About midnight, an off-duty guard who was going home spotted Zeilstra walking along West Coast Road about 800 metres from Jordan River and apprehended him.

Defence lawyer Scott Hall told the court the offence was not premeditated and that Zeilstra spent most of the time on the road. He said Zeilstra "may have some mental problems."

A SIDNEY man who turned 21 today was given a 15-day jail term by Judge Blake Allan after pleading guilty to causing a disturbance in the Sidney Hotel on Jan. 17.

Richard Wayne Davis of 2190 Amelia Avenue was also placed on six months' probation and ordered to pay for damage to the hotel.

Crown counsel Clint Kittle told the court Davis was escorted out of the hotel about 10 p.m. after being involved in a fight and tearing two shirts and some styrofoam.

He returned to the hotel later that evening and asked a waitress why he wasn't being served. She told him he was barred until June 6, at which he became verbally abusive to the woman. Davis then shoved a waiter carrying a full tray of beers, causing him to hit his head on a table and lose consciousness momentarily, and destroy the entire tray of beer.

TWO TEENAGERS who wouldn't leave Dunsmuir Secondary School when requested by vice-principal Fred Pye were fined $200 each by Allan, who found both guilty of failing to leave school property when requested under the Public Schools Act.

Pye spotted 18-year-old Gregory Robert Twyman of 2632 Shelbourne, and 17-year-old Ernest Gerald West of 1736 Duchess, inside the school about 11:25 a.m. Nov. 30. They said they were visiting a student, but were told to leave.

Pye spotted them again shortly afterward inside the school and they became abusive when requested again to leave. Pye told Colwood RCMP the pair stopped near a classroom and disrupted a class by waving.

Police were called and found them near the west doors of the school. They were taken to the principal's office, interviewed and arrested.

GREEN DENIED bail to a 26-year-old man charged with possession of cocaine for the purpose of trafficking.

Ronald Norman MacAulay, of 3266 Cook, was arrested June 16 near Mount Tolmie and had been in custody since that date.

Defence lawyer Derek Brindle elected trial by judge without jury and a preliminary hearing was set for July 13.

FINED FOR drinking-driving offences were Hugh Pritchard, 52, of 1716 Haultain, $350; James Clinton Isaac, 19, of 3281 Galloway, $350; and Michael Jacques Richer, 24, of 2513 Fernwood, $325.

Jury back today

After a three-day absence, the jury in the B.C. Supreme Court murder trial in Victoria of Tommy Ross, Jr., is expected to return today.

The jury was excused last Thursday to allow Mr. Justice Alan Macfarlane to decide matters of law.

A decision on the legal points is expected this morning, and then the jury will be recalled.

Ross, 20, of Los Angeles, is charged with the Mother's Day slaying, May 14, 1978, of a 26-year-old mother of two, Janice Forbes, in her apartment at 207 1017 Queens.

The main trial has so far run 8½ days and is expected continue for more than a week.

City won't try moving bank

Victoria's urban development officer Joseph Elkin worked out a plan which might have enabled the city to turn a quick $100,000 profit, but aldermen wouldn't bite.

The scheme involved the vacant Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce building at Bay and Douglas.

The building was vacated by the bank recently and has been offered to the city for $1.

Elkin suggested that the city accept the offer, move the building to a publicly-owned site at Bay and Blanshard, fix it up and sell the package at a net profit of $100,000.

City council's land-use committee tabled the matter at Tuesday's meeting after Ald. Robert Wright expressed some reservations about Elkin's development scheme.

Wright said he doubted whether it was the right thing to do in the first place, and added that the two senior levels of government were sure to reject the plan.

The proposed site is the last piece of land assembled years ago for that area's urban renewal development, and it is still owned by the federal and provincial governments and the city of Victoria.

Although not a heritage structure, the bank building is considered worth saving because it's one of the few remaining prefabricated bank buildings manufactured in Vancouver and used across Western Canada.

Victoria taxpayers rush to beat penalty deadline

As Victoria taxpayers rushed to beat the deadline for payment of their 1979 property taxes, City Hall coffers had swelled considerably by Tuesday night.

City comptroller Mason Sheldrick said Wednesday that $29,232,000 of this year's total tax levy had been collected by 5 p.m. Tuesday.

He said that represented 91.75 per cent of the total levy, about the same as the collection at this time last year.

There was a steady stream of property-owners paying their taxes before deadline to avoid the four-per-cent penalty on unpaid taxes which went into effect Wednesday morning.

At 8:30 a.m. Sept. 28, a second penalty of six per cent is added to the unpaid portion of the taxes.

The 10-per-cent penalty is in effect in all four core municipalities, but the application differs slightly.

Oak Bay added five per cent Wednesday morning and will impose another five per cent in September, while Esquimalt adds first six and then four per cent. Saanich operates on the same basis as Victoria.

Salt Spring loses top businessman

A family memorial service was held at First United Church in Ganges Wednesday for Laurence Gilbert Mouat, prominent Salt Spring Island businessman and sportsman.

Mouat, from a well known pioneer family, was for many years until his retirement in 1969, manager of Mouat Brothers Ltd., a family business established in 1905 by his father and grandmother.

Mouat, who played an integral part in the island's growth, was a keen outdoorsman and noted athlete. He was an honorary life member of the Salt Spring Rod and Gun Club.

Young retires after 31 years

E.L. Young has retired from the ministry of forests after 31 years' service with the organization. Born in Vernon, and a forest engineering graduate of UBC, he started his career with the ministry in 1948 after several years with the coastal forest industry.

After a series of promotions which saw him in the Vancouver, Nelson, Prince George and Cariboo forest regions, Young was named chief forester for the province in 1974. Early in 1978, he became special forestry advisor for the ministry. He started his retirement leave June 26.

'Expert' on crime

Cinderella tale turns robber into preventer

By VICTORIA IRWIN
Colonist—Monitor News Service

Ray Johnson has a lot to say about preventing robberies and burglaries, and he should know what he's talking about. Johnson has spent 25 years in prison for committing armed robberies, theft, burglary and forgery.

Now he makes his living by telling people how to prevent these crimes.

"Go home tonight and pretend you lost your keys," he says. "You could probably find a way in, couldn't you? So fix those things."

WHEN Johnson was released from a California prison in 1968, he decided he would rather work than steal. And he says it is a much easier life.

With his "expertise," he has helped develop a robbery prevention program for a national chain of convenience-food stores. Johnson also has written a book titled Too Dangerous to Be at Large, a charge a judge made about him when he was young.

He has appeared on the Tonight Show and has plugged products on television. Johnson advises commercial clients and at least one wealthy family through his company, Crisis, Inc., on how to reduce the risk of becoming a crime victim.

But Johnson is impatient with people who expect him to have a magical solution to crime.

"EVERYONE wants to hear something new. It just takes plain common sense and organization," he says.

The ex-convict believes people simply need to use their heads more often.

"People leave their keys in the car. Families buy $50 locks and then leave their door open."

Precautions he lists include better outdoor lighting and better locks ("But don't buy an expensive lock to put on a $10 door"), an alarm system that goes off inside and outside the home, and timers that turn lights on and off.

BUT HE also warns that would-be burglars are not thick-headed.

"We often send fake messages that they decipher. If they see lights on, they might just go up and ring the doorbell. If someone answers, they'll say they were looking for someone." He recommends alarms that alert not only the intruder, but people outside.

"Burglars don't like noise or light. An aerosol foghorn near the bed will not only scare the wits out of a burglar, but will wake up neighbors."

Ex-criminal Johnson leads easier life

AND HE scorns people who try to "catch" a burglar.

"A wife will wake up in the middle of the night and whisper, 'George, there is someone in the house.' Then they will sneak around until they blunder into the burglar." That's dangerous, he says. Instead he suggests making a lot of racket to alert the intruder.

"It's inbred to try to catch the guy. But you should get the creep out before he hurts you."

JOHNSON also suggests deadbolt locks on bedroom doors, particularly for single people. Bolts on windows or nails pounded through their frames are a help, but he warns people not to imprison themselves in their own home, in case they need to make a quick exit.

Appearance of a home is important, too. A well-lighted lot will discourage burglars.

He points out that local police departments often are willing to send an officer into a home to check it for "weak" points, giving suggestions to tighten security. And when a family goes on a vacation, police often will watch the house more carefully if notified.

JOHNSON bemoans the fact that the public generally doesn't concern itself with crime prevention. "The common attitude is to leave it to the police departments, who will catch the criminal, put him in jail, and he'll never do it again. It just doesn't work that way.

Johnson believes that neighbors should get together to keep a watch for strangers of unusual activity.

"A WOMAN came home to a neighbor who said, 'I didn't know you were moving.' And she wasn't. Those vans that afternoon were not the local moving company."

An alert neighborhood watch also could benefit children. "Children are being picked up and molested by strangers," he says. "If parents would just tell them that they could go to a certain house if someone tries to bother them, it would be a big help."

Johnson admits his is a Cinderella story. After spending so many years in jail, living the straight life has not always been easy. It was touch and go for a while after his release.

"I COULDN'T get a job, so I had to lower my sights." He ended up digging ditches awhile. "The only thing I could steal there was a shovel."

Eventually he landed a job with the Western Behavioral Sciences Institute in La Jolla, Calif., where he helped develop the robbery prevention program for Southland Corp., owners of the 7-Eleven food store chain. Now he helps the corporation apply the program nationwide. Southland Corp. officials claim robberies in their stores have been reduced 20 per cent nationally and up to 50 to 60 per cent in some regions.

Certificate needed to own gun

If you are acquiring a gun this year, for the first time or to add to a collection, remember you first need a firearms acquisition certificate.

Chief firearms officer for B.C., Lorne Newson, issued the warning.

The certificate is required under the Criminal Code of Canada for any person who comes into possession of a new or used gun, "whether it be bought, bartered or otherwise acquired."

Newson said he was concerned that hunters, either first-timers who plan to buy a gun this year or seasoned hunters who are simply acquiring another gun, will cause such a rush as the hunting season draws close "that local police stations who issue the certificates won't be able to handle the applications in time."

The certificates, which cost $10, must be applied for in person at any police station. Only those people who have a history of criminal violence or serious emotional disorders will be refused the certificates, but Newson warned that it takes at least a week to process an appliction.

"So far this year only 9,000 certificates have been issued, which is less than 20 per cent of the 50,000 to 75,000 certificates expected to be issued before year end," Newson said.

TORONTO (CP) — Just as you pulled your spring and summer wardrobe together and you're down to your last dollar, along comes a clairvoyant to predict next spring's designs and the bad news is — they're somewhat different.

But take heart, says Virginia Huber, 33, the Canadian agent of Prism, a London-based company which forecasts fashion stylings a year ahead.

By shopping the summer sales carefully, consumers probably can come fairly close to next spring's looks. Then when spring 1980 rolls around, it will just be a matter of adding up-to-date accents and accessories and making a few alterations.

Mrs. Huber, of Montreal, said in an interview that manufacturers rely on her company's up-to-date research and reports advising them on what fabrics and colors to watch for in women's and menswear.

"By being in the right place, in touch with the right people and observing the same things that are inspiring creative designers, Prism's team is able to predict and report on the commercial and realistic side of the fashion picture," she says.

The colors for next spring are an evolution of previous seasons, she says.

"The hard primary colors seen so extensively this spring will be whitened to a prettier, clearer level for a much softer mood.

"However, sharper brights such as lime, orange, turquoise and lemon will be significant particularly when combined with white, black or dark navy."

For evening, there will be deeper and more sumptuous colors developing out of fall '79.

"In fact the 'cabaret colors' as we call them are almost vulgar in their hard-edged elegance," she says. "And they include garnet, through to burgundy, amethyst to darkest indigo, gold to deep copper and forest to dark pine."

Mrs. Huber says that there seems to be two schools of thought for styling.

"One is hard-edged, severe and sophisticated. The other is soft and gentle both in line and color."

She says the strongest "tangible influences effecting the trends is the 1960s and in contrast the futuristic atmosphere as the world enters the 1980s."

So watch for space age looks such as one-piece jumpsuits in symmetrical lines with slashes of geometric colors.

Skirts, still slim, will be much shorter (just below the knee) and shoulders which were squared and padded will be even more so, says Mrs. Huber.

Buttons will be everywhere — on the backs of dresses and skirts and down the sides. Dress and jacket combinations will be strong and suits will be back because of their importance to the working woman.

In fact, Mrs. Huber advises consumers to invest in at least one good suit when shopping the sales in the next few weeks.

"The styling can be altered somewhat for next spring," she says, "but there is nothing smarter than getting an $800 suit for $400 and it's possible now."

By MARILYN McCALL

Victoria-Saanich horse trials held a two-day combined event over the holiday weekend. Ron Trickett was chairman, and technical delegate was E. B. Graham, from Calgary.

Ground jury consisted of Borg Olson, from Vedder Crossing, Berta Michel, from Summerland and Betty Donaldson, from Cowichan Station. Riders competed in three events — dressage, stadium jumping, and cross country jumping — in one of four categories.

Pam Arthur of Langley, won the intermediate division, riding Dan D Lion. Second went to Brenda Sloan, on Muffin, also of Langley. Ann Smith and Miss Lady Wave, a Victoria pair, were third. Lynn Trickett, also of Victoria, was fourth, on her horse Harvester. Barry Oland of Vancouver, riding Frosty Harvey, was fifth.

IN THE PRELIMINARY division, Marion Thomas and Barbados III, of Vancouver were first. Second went to Bridget Flynn, of Parksville, who rode Questor. Janet Hadland of Kelowna, was third, riding Mister Bradel. Karen MacDonald, riding Sundance Kid, was fourth, and Rhonda Sztehlo, riding Ms. Little B, was fifth, both from Maple Ridge. Jill Seely and Refract, from Washington, were sixth. Seventh went to Christine Van Horn and Amira Nigma, a pair from Parksville. Morley Marshall and Tantivy of Duncan took eighth.

THE GARDEN CITY Horseman's Club's summer ride finished up in the Koksilah area this past weekend. Beginning at Northwest Bay up Island, the intention was to ride to Sooke, but fire closures halted the riders at Shawnigan Lake. Ches Spencer organized the ride.

Child's stomach pains laid to milk intolerance

BOSTON (AP) — Mysterious, recurring tummy aches that plague children may be caused by an inability to digest milk, a study shows.

Researchers say intolerance to milk more frequently causes pain in the digestive systems of youngsters than doctors had realized.

Other studies have shown that about 10 per cent of all school children have episodes of unexplained abdominal pain. Their doctors usually assume the problem is caused by an underlying disease or emotional stress.

Instead, the survey concludes that in many cases the problem will go away if the kids drink less milk.

The study, published in this month's New England Journal of Medicine, was directed by Dr. Ronald G. Barr at Children's Hospital Medical Centre in Boston.

The researchers examined 80 children ranging in age from 4 to 15 who complained of bouts of abdominal pain. Using a newly-developed breath test, they found that 40 per cent of them suffered from lactose intolerance, an inability to properly digest milk sugar.

When the children were put on a lactose-free diet, 70 per cent of them said they had less of the unpleasant symptoms, which include diarrhea, gas, bloating and cramps.

Lactose intolerance increases as people get older. It is common to some degree in about 80 per cent of black adults and seven per cent to 20 per cent of older whites.

"The results imply that many children who have recurrent abdominal pain are predisposed to the phenomenon due to an isolated decline in intestinal lactase activity," the study said. Lactase is the enzyme necessary for digestion of lactose.

Barr, who is now on the staff of Montreal Children's Hospital, said doctors should rule out lactose intolerance before they perform other, more involved tests for belly aches.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 28-year-old married woman with two kids. A few months ago I noticed some hairs on my breast around the nipples. Now they have grown larger. I don't know what to do. Please advise me. I am really worried. — Mrs. K.

Growth of breast hair is almost always a matter of heredity, with little to do but remove the unwanted hairs. Everyone has hair follicles about the areola - the dark-pigmented area of the nipples and these may be more developed in some women than in others. But there are other matters to be considered in your specific case.

At your age, any sudden appearance of hair of this kind should be reported. Glands, such as the ovaries or adrenals, can affect such hair growth. Sometimes, a doctor can tell by other non-hair symptoms (and special tests) whether something more than heredity is involved. Because of this and your anxiety you should set up an appointment. I don't want to scare the wits out of millions of women who have a few unwanted breast hairs. Many natural events can be involved, such as menopause in some women or, in young girls, puberty. It is the sudden, unexplained growth of such hair that I am concerned about.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I had two ectopic pregnancies, one in each tube. As of this writing I am seven and one half months pregnant with everything going good so far. My curiosity arises from a remark my doctor made: "This is a miraculous pregnancy, and should probably be reported." What do you think? — Mrs. C.P.

The miracle is that the ovum (egg) was able to get to the uterus (womb) after such serious problems in both tubes.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have always been self-conscious about the appearance of the backs of my hands. They have large blue veins close to the surface. Is there anything I can do about them? I am 38.— Mrs. J.R.

Nothing to do and nothing you should want to do. At your age the veins represent nothing but healthy blood circulation. You probably are light-skinned, so your veins show more prominently than in dark-skinned individuals.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Just what is psyllium, which I find as an ingredient of a powdered bulk producer? Does it contain calories? — B.E.

The husks of the psyllium seed are used as the basis for some bulk-producing medicines. It's the seed of a kind of grain (Indian wheat) grown in the southwestern part of the country. There aren't enough calories in it to bother any weight restriction diet, only a handful per gram of mix.

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I attended a party. I'm an OK-looking lady and had lots of men around me. A woman (I'll call her Pearl) wanted desperately to be included in the conversation. I tried my best to give her openings but nothing worked. She fell flat and left the party early looking depressed. Maybe if you print this letter, she and five million other "Pearls" will get the message.

"Dear Pearl: Let your hair go back to its natural color and get it cut in a fresh wash-and-wear style. Wear skirts that aren't so short and tight. Use eye makeup in natural earth tones, not blue, green or lavender. If you must wear roughe, blend it in so it doesn't look like some kid's rag doll. And please — don't look like such a loser. When you beg with your eyes to be included, it turns people off." Thanks, Ann. — A.G.

Dear A.G.: Most "Pearls" out there need more than a haircut and earth-tone eye shadow. (I rather like blue, myself.)

The women you describe need to memorize some key questions to get people talking about themselves. (a) How did you get started in your work? (b) Who in all the world would you change places with if you had the chance? A smiling face plus my suggestions will help the Pearls of the world a great deal more than the superficialities you mention.

Dear Ann Landers: Our home was burglarized last week. We lost a great many valuable items — family heirlooms, jewelry and silver.

Several years ago you ran a letter written by a convict who was serving time for a series of break-ins. He told people how they might protect themselves against being burglarized. I read that article with interest. I should have torn it out and memorized it.

It's too late for us, but I'm sure it would help a great many people if you printed it again. Will you, please? — Heartsick In Winnetka

Dear Win: Yes, I will. Sad to say, the topic is as relevant now as when it first ran seven years ago. Here it is:

Always something new—and lacking

Colonist review
By JIM GIBSON

No matter how many productions anyone is fortunate enough to see of Wilde's triumph, The Importance of Being Earnest, there's always a couple of lines in each new show that were missed in earlier ones. But still that perfect production in which every twist and nuance of speech comes rhapsodically from the players remains somewhat elusive, particularly in Victoria.

Wilde's devastatingly funny comedy of Victorian society is undoubtedly one of the great tests in theatre for both actor and director. As one of its characters reminds another, it's style, not sincerity, which is important.

THERE'S LITTLE for either a director or actor to fall back on, once that essential style evaporates. Certainly its plot (concerning two young men—one flippant, the other sincere and both deadly earnest in their approaches) while amusing enough is still rather vaporous. Any attempts at buffoonery or cartooning the characters will eventually fail. It is a play of wit that should never be mistaken for satire.

Victor Bohlmann and his student cast do surprisingly well with Earnest. It certainly rates as the most enjoyable and probably one of the best staged by the Phoenix Summer Theatre in recent years.

BOHLMANN SHOWS some affinity for Wilde and the society he writes about. There is an obvious concern for both nuance in speech and gesture. Over-all, there is an awareness of the needed restraint particularly evident in such scenes as Gwendolen and Cecily's meeting and taking of tea.

But still there was an air of a director who might have spent too much time on the individual notes and selected passages but not enough on the whole score. The evening seemed surprisingly long, and while never quite tedious, unquestionably lacked a sustained, vibrant rythm.

BOHLMANN'S BLOCKING of characters seemed surprisingly uninventive, belonging to that school which sets actors up roughly in a line across the back of the stage. It is further marred here by designers Paul Van Deursen and Linda Del Rosario's black curtain backdrop, against which they placed some suitably elegant if occasionally garish-colored set pieces. Never has the Phoenix stage looked so vast and the actors so far away. Neither effect is particularly advisable for Earnest.

Kerry Hackett's costumes—with one stunning exception, Gwendolen's country dress—ranged from the tatty to the tacky for her men, while generally the latter was applicable for the women. The needed richness and elegance could have been achieved through good tailoring and restraint in design.

WENDY DONALDSON makes her entrance as Lady Bracknell in something so totally unsuitable that were it not for her strained, imperious voice, she could be mistaken for something from the music hall. Over-all, Donaldson's Braknell is the most unsatisfying of the performances. She lacks the genuine rigidy or restraint that the character requires. Much of the enjoyment of Bracknell is her ability to snub and reduce her daughter's poor suitor with the merest of looks and the most indifferently delivered phrase. Donaldson's Bracknell not only sticks the knife in, but twists it with obvious delight.

UNDOUBTEDLY Donaldson is handicapped by having to play a character much older than she, but then both Peter Smith and particularly Kristen Eaton as Chasuble and Prism manage quite well, relying on very few affectations.

Lorna Olafson's Cecily is suitably guileless, while Lori Hallier is quite impressive as the urbane and so attractive Gwendolen.

RUSSELL BENTLEY and David Wallace make for a good contrast as Algernon and Jack, the two young men who discover how important it really is to be earnest. Wallace, dashingly handsome in the role, is handicapped by a limited voice and staccato delivery which is quite often unintelligible. Bentley has few apparent problems as an actor, and despite superb restraint, steals the show.

Royal Ballet stuns

MONTREAL (CP) — Britain's Royal Ballet, back in Montreal for the first time in 12 years, stunned audiences and critics with its opening production of Swan Lake.

Not since Expo 67—the last time the troupe visited—had Montrealers "had the opportunity to see such an elegant corps de ballet," said The Star's Myron Galloway.

The performance drew ovations after a "spectacular" pas de deux in Act III by leads Anthony Dowell and Lesley Collier, and again at the end of the program.

Critics were overwhelmed by the dancing of Dowell as Prince Siegfried.

Dowell, who returned to the Royal Ballet recently after a year with American Ballet Theatre, "danced with his eyes shining with pleasure," wrote Jean-Paul Brousseau of La Presse.

Collier's handling of the dual role of Odette and Odile was "exquisite . . . trembling, delicate and yielding," wrote The Gaz-ette's Linda Howe-Beck.

The critics praised the company's decision to eliminate guest stars to give its own dancers more opportunities.

Audience sometimes baffled by same old Hope

PEKING (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope, with a Chinese translator at his side, joked about chopsticks, laundry and bicycles in a Fourth of July show with the Philadelphia Boys' Choir, three Chinese entertainers and Sesame Street's Big Bird.

"As part of a cultural exchange program the state department sent me here," Hope said in his opening monologue, "and the Chinese sent back a yak that can count to 10 . . . I'm the fifth thing the Chinese are going to modernize."

Hope's performance was the highlight of the first U.S. Independence Day celebration since the establishment of diplomatic relations between the U.S. and China. American festivities began with an open house at the U.S. embassy, which served hamburgers and hot dogs.

The audience of 2,000, mostly the foreign community and a scattering of Chinese, roundly applauded the 76-year-old comedian's first live performance in China. The show, in the old Capital Theatre, with its red velvet curtains and red star chandelier, was filmed for American audiences as part of an NBC special to be telecast this fall.

Some of the humor was lost on the audience. Many missed Hope's references to Billy Graham, Col. Sanders, Caesar's Palace, the Santa Monica Freeway, Raquel Welch and California Governor Jerry Brown.

The translator occasionally said in Chinese, "I don't understand," and asked, "Who is Billy Graham?"

The audience was reserved in its applause for Peaches and Herb, a black disco duo. Peaches wore clinging transparent blue and gold pants and tunic. Many in the audience simply stared.

Other performers included the Philadelphia Boys' Choir, ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov, mimes Shields and Yarnell, Big Bird, singer Crystal Gayle, three Chinese comedians and a Chinese magician.

In his jokes, Hope turned to old standbys. He said his wife bought a dress in Peking, "and I have to button up the back with chopsticks. I'm getting so good that in a week my guide says he'll let me start using two of them."

And on laundry: "The Peking Hotel does great laundry. Yesterday they washed my pajamas while I was still in them."

And on bicycles: "They gave me a great ride from the airport to the hotel. Twice I fell off the handlebars . . . I've never seen such crowded streets, but it's so well organized that slower traffic is on the bottom layer."

The show ended with a magic show in which a pretty Chinese sleight-of-hand artist pulled American and Chinese flags from a bouquet of flowers. Then she pulled out a banner which said: "Long live the friendship between the Chinese and American people."

Europe Hanoi aid to go to refugees

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — The European Community will divert food aid planned for Hanoi this year to feed Vietnamese refugees in other countries, Common Market officials said Wednesday.

The decision was formally approved Wednesday by the community's 13-man commission and is certain to be endorsed by the nine member countries.

The food aid planned for Vietnam this year, worth about $34 million at world market prices, includes about 34,000 tons of rice and 15,000 tons of milk powder.

Wednesday's action follows the decision at last month's community summit in Strasbourg to give top priority to relieving the plight of the Vietnamese boat people.

Officials believe they could soon number a million, spread around Southeast Asia.

High-level commission officials admitted the halting of food aid to Hanoi could speed up the flow of refugees and thus worsen the problem for the rest of the region, but it was against Western policy to ask Hanoi to stop refugees leaving.

Community officials said the commission proposed to send 8,000 tons of rice and 1,500 tons of milk powder to the United Nations High Commission for Refugees to help meet immediate needs.

This would cover more than half its rice needs and all its milk powder needs to feed 300,000 refugees for three months in Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Macao.

The commission proposed to keep up supplies of rice for 50,000 Cambodian refugees in Vietnam, so long as it could be channelled through the UNHCR.

The Cambodian refugees in Vietnam fled there before the fall of the Pol Pot regime, and community officials fear that if food aid to them were stopped they would be sent back to probable death in Cambodia.

The community is also sending food for Cambodian refugees in Thailand and Laos. Besides food, it has earmarked aid worth $6.8 million for UNHCR operations in the region in 1979.

A commission spokesman said there were proposals to halt all direct aid for Vietnam. That would free more than $6 million to help relieve the refugee problem.

Senior commission officials said they saw no chance of the decision to divert food aid affecting Hanoi's policy.

The departure of the refugees followed its decision to nationalize small businesses, a move which particularly affected citizens of Chinese descent, they added.

DONATION OF $20,000 is to be given toward refugee help by Martha Guigard and Jay Jackson of Toronto. Couple won $100,000 in February Wintario lottery and are challenging other Canadians to make donations.

Western refugee policy pressed

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Southeast Asian countries, faced with the expected arrival of another one million boat people, want Western countries, including Canada, to make a long-term commitment to take in refugees, says a Canadian political scientist.

Prof. Richard Stubbs, who teaches Asian political studies at St. Francis Xavier University, spent a month in Southeast Asia discussing with government officials the impact of economic developments on political stability.

Stubbs visited the Philippines, Malaysia, Singapore, and Indonesia, but spent most time in Malaysia.

The Malaysian government sees the major problem of the boat people as one of integrating the refugees into Malaysian society, he said in an interview Wednesday.

With another one million refugees expected to land on Southeast Asian beaches over the next few years, Southeast Asian countries are concerned that they will face a long-term problem after interest in refugees wanes in the West.

The arrival of so many refugees is a strain on the economy of the developing countries and on their social and political fabric.

In Malaysia, there already is a precarious racial balance between the Malays who represent 50 per cent of the population and the Chinese who represent 37 per cent.

Stubbs said the government feared that the arrival of a great many ethnic Chinese—the refugees are about 80 per cent ethnic Chinese—would trigger racial and political unrest.

Malaysian authorities had reached the point where their tolerance had gone, he said.

Viets attempt to burn boat

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Four hundred Vietnamese refugees who eluded the Malaysian naval blockade and landed on the east coast damaged the engine of their wooden boat beyond repair and tried to set the craft afire to avoid being put back to sea, refugee officials said Wednesday.

Malaysian officials, under government policy announced June 18, said they would put the 400 refugees in other boats, probably those abandoned by earlier arrivals, and tow them back out into the South China Sea.

The Malaysian navy has towed more than 15,000 refugees out to sea in 80 boats since it announced last month it would accept no more boat people. There are already about 76,000 Vietnamese in camps in Malaysia.

In Canberra, Australia, Wednesday, Dick Clark, the U.S. co-ordinator for refugee affairs, said if the nations of the world would double the number of refugees they accepted—to a total of 250,000 annually—the problem would be solved.

"Clearly we have the ability to do it. The only question is if we have the will to do it," he said.

Meanwhile, Malaysian Interior Minister Ghazali Shafie said he would lead the Malaysian delegation to the special July 20 United Nations conference on refugees in Geneva, where he said his government would call for the establishment of a giant refugee centre in Vietnam.

He spoke of a facility capable of housing 1.2 million refugees who could be taken out of Vietnam for resettlement without having to make the dangerous boat journey.

Brutal slaying shock for town

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Durham Regional Police were waiting Wednesday for results from the Centre of Forensic Sciences in Toronto to see whether any new light would be shed on the death of 16-year-old Kathleen Wels.

Police sent to the laboratory some articles found Tuesday at the scene of the death, hoping the results would determine the age, sex and hair color of her attacker.

"We believe we have a murder weapon but we don't want to disclose what it is," Inspector Dave Fleming said.

Carl Wels found the body of his daughter Monday about one kilometre from their home in this community just west of Oshawa.

She had been jogging, as she did every night, and when she did not return home after dark, he called police. He found the body before police arrived.

Fleming said Wednesday police had located a reddish-orange pickup truck seen in the area the night Miss Wels was killed. "We are interviewing the people."

There was evidence the girl put up a fight before she was beaten to death, police said, and the person who attacked her might have been scratched or scarred.

An autopsy showed Kathleen was not raped. Investigators believe the attacker may have hit the girl in the head to subdue her for rape but panicked after discovering she had died.

Police said Miss Wels jogged along the same route each evening, often accompanied by her mother, and that someone might have been waiting for her.

This town of about 28,000 was in shock over the death of the pretty and popular teenager.

Wels said the picture of his dead daughter lying by the road was etched in his mind and "It will never go away."

"Every time I try to close my eyes I see her. She wasn't a pretty sight. I picked her up, but I knew she was dead."

Neighbor Jim Taylor looked down the path Kathleen took each evening.

"I've been down that way 1,000 times and I never thought there was anything there that would hurt anybody."

David O'Connor, vice-principal of the high school where Kathleen was an honor student preparing to enter grade 12 in September, said her death was the worst tragedy the school had ever had. He said the school planned to honor her in some way.

Jocelyn Barber, one of the girl's teachers, said: "This is just a terrible, terrible waste.

"I feel very ashamed that a human being could do that sort of thing."

The funeral will be Friday. Kathleen will be buried in a Whitby cemetery.

Driver-jogger clash brings out bat, gun

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — An early-morning confrontation Wednesday between a motorist with a baseball bat and a jogger with a gun put the motorist in the hospital and the jogger in jail.

Police said Mark Kastens, 18, began arguing with the unidentified jogger at about 6:30 a.m. because he felt the man had almost caused an accident between Kastens' car and another vehicle.

The argument escalated and the jogger ran off to his home and Kastens followed him in his car.

While the jogger disappeared into his home, Kastens pulled a baseball bat from the back seat of his car and began moving toward the house. The jogger came back outside, produced a pistol and fired twice. Police said Kastens apparently turned as the shots were fired and was hit twice in the back.

Kastens got back inside his car and drove to Minor Emergency Centre-South for treatment. He collapsed when he stepped from his car and was taken by ambulance to the Wessley Medical Centre.

He was reported in good condition after surgery.

Police refused to identify the jogger, pending possible charges of assault in the incident.

Winds wreck blimp

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa (UPI) — The Goodyear blimp Mayflower was destroyed by high winds that tore it from its mooring and blew it into a beanfield, the blimp's pilot says.

Mount Pleasant Airport officials said the airship was torn from its anchor by high winds Tuesday. Police said it was in town to take part in the Fourth of July celebration.

"I haven't had a chance to assess the damage yet and I'll try and put a dollar value on it today," said pilot Ron Bell, "but judging by what I saw last night, it will run over a million dollars."

Bell said another Goodyear blimp, also named the Mayflower, was involved in similar freak accident less than a year ago at Augusta, Ga..

"A windstorm caused damage to the airship almost exactly like this one," he said. "It's unusual to lose two airships in a year's time."

Ransom frees businessman

SASSARI, Sardinia (Reuter) — Italian businessman Pupo Troffa, kidnapped eight months ago, was released by his abductors after his family was reported to have paid a ransom of about $700,000 U.S.

Deportation case stops for review

TORONTO (CP) — Immigration Minister Ronald Atkey has ordered that the deportation of a Jamaican woman with three Canadian-born children be postponed until he reviews the case, a spokesman in his office said Wednesday.

Julie Farquharson, 28, was to have been expelled today because she had been unemployed and living on welfare intermittently since arriving in Toronto in 1971.

Charles Roach, co-chairman of the Committee Against Racism, had accused the immigration appeal board of discrimination in ordering deportation of a black woman.

He said Canadian society accepted that a single parent with young children would probably need social assistance. The appeal board did not accept that in Miss Farquharson's case, and he suggested racist motives.

The woman came to Canada as a visitor in 1971 and became a landed immigrant in 1975. She also has a child in Jamaica.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

309 IN MEMORIAM

LONGTON - In loving memory of my dear husband Lawrence Longton (Larry) who passed away July 5, 1976.
As long as I live I will cherish your name,
Deep in my heart you are with me yet,
I loved you too dearly to ever forget,
Ever remembered and sadly missed by his loving wife, Constance Longton.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Sleep on dear
good mother,
it has been long years

Since you left
our hearts
filled with sadness
and tears

Yours was a heart
that was blithesome
and gay

Scattering sunshine
all along the way

You know how we love
you
and, yes,
love you yet

Though God took you
from us,
we cannot forget.

Leggatt would bar industrial lie tests

Canadian Press

Stu Leggatt (NDP—Coquitlam-Moody) introduced a bill Wednesday in the Legislature to ban the use of lie detectors in private industry.

The opposition MLA said there have been several examples of large corporations, such as banks, using the device to get information from employees.

In one case, he said, the Bank of Montreal gave its employees lie detector tests after a union tried to organize the workers. This is an invasion of privacy, he said.

Leggatt said he is not opposed to the use of lie detectors by police forces, but there is no reason why a bank should be afforded the same privilege. However, his bill, if passed by the legislature, would permit voluntary lie detector tests.

Labor supports larger terminal

Figuratively speaking, the Victoria Labor Council climbed aboard both the E & N Dayliner and the Victoria-to-Seattle cruise ship Princess Marguerite Wednesday night, by supporting an integrated transportation terminal for Victoria and continued service for the Marguerite.

The council strongly backed John Cooper's E & N Steering Committee concept of a major terminal in downtown Victoria to serve rail and bus transportation, as well as providing links with sea and air.

Delegates were thus rejecting the plan of Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier for an E & N station at the foot of Pandora near the Johnson Street bridge.

Underlining Cooper's idea of bringing the buses and trains together and extending service to the Western Community, labor council secretary Larry Ryan said:

"I think it's very advisable to take a look at the complete picture."

Council is going to let the B.C. Steamship Co. Ltd. and the provincial government know it is worried about what it sees as a threat to continuation of the long-standing service of the Princess Marguerite.

Car-chase juvenile charged

A Saanich juvenile was charged with criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle following a high-speed chase early Wednesday morning by Oak Bay and Victoria police.

The youth, whose name cannot be used because he won't be 17 until August, appeared before Judge Harold Alder in family division of Victoria provincial court and was released on his own undertaking. He is to reappear July 15 for a probation officer's report.

The chase began when an Oak Bay police officer tried unsuccessfully to pull over a car containing four persons near Willows Beach.

Victoria police came to the assistance and the pursuit reached speeds of 140 kilometres an hour along Oak Bay streets before the pursued vehicle hit another vehicle and came to rest against a tree.

Thieves rifle Gorge Road parked cars

In the past two months there have been more than 40 complaints of motor vehicle break-ins and theft of items in the 100 and 200-block stretch of Gorge Road East. Main targets were underground parking lots.

Three youths were apprehended Tuesday after an apartment manager noticed them loitering in the area.

Investigating officers later recovered approximately $5,000 worth of stolen articles, including stereo equipment, cameras, tapes, tape-players, speakers and even a radar detector from three Saanich area residences.

Police said three 17-year-olds would appear in court July 17.

Motorcyclist badly hurt

A young motorcyclist was reported in serious condition at Victoria General Hospital early Thursday, several hours after his machine left Esquimalt Road near Head Street and crashed into a utility pole.

Identity of the injured man, reported to be a member of the armed forces, was being withheld pending notification of family.

Rapists and victims products of society

By JIM HUME
Colonist reporter

Society has conditioned men to be rapists and women to be the victims of rape, according to a 232-page report on rape in B.C. released Wednesday.

After two years' research for the attorney-general's ministry, author Nancy Goldsberry says rape "may well be a learned behavior" because "definitions conducive to violence are learned and our culture condones the use of physical aggression and violence under certain circumstances. That this aggressiveness, if not open violence, is nearly exclusive to men in our society has also been substantiated as the norm and not the exception."

Goldsberry
. . . two years' work

GOLDSBERRY, a long-time co-ordinator of the Rape Relief Centre in Victoria, was commissioned to write the report under contract to the Justice Development Commission more than a year ago.

The report, tabled in the legislature Wednesday afternoon, says that "rooted in the same social structure that characterizes male sexuality as aggression is the process which moulds and legitimizes the role of women as victims."

The detailed report adds that in learning female roles, "young girls are taught to value sexual favors as 'an item of exchange.' "

THE AUTHOR says that while men are expected to initiate sexual overtures, women are seen as responsible for defining how far these overtures will go.

"Young women, particularly, with apparent sophistication but limited skills, are left with an unsolvable conflict," she says. "If she refuses she is a manhater, cold or a . . . tease. If she plays along, further confusion sets in as she is open for further advances.

". . . As men are conditioned to be rapists, women are conditioned in our society to be rape victims."

THE REPORT dismisses as a myth the suggestion that sexual permissiveness leads to less rape in society.

"It is suggested by the authors of this study that, contrary to common belief, an increase in sexual permissiveness in society will increase the incidence of rape. The so-called sexual revolution has diminished traditional and moral justification for limiting sexual interactions to prescribed situations and individuals."

The detailed report on B.C.'s least-reported crime says that most rapes occur on a Saturday or Thursday night, that rape is most often committed in the months of October, August, June and May.

STUDIES IN Vancouver showed that while "no clear seasonal pattern emerges . . . the warmer months have a slightly higher percentage of the total rapes for a year. Of greater significance are patterns of hour and day occurrence, with Thursday and Saturday providing 42 per cent (in study A) and 36 per cent (in study B) of the totals.

"Rape is a night-mare crime, with the peak hours of 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

The report notes a sharp increase in rapes at full moon, the same time "there tends to be a rise in the number of all violent crimes committed and traffic accidents."

THE REPORT confirms that B.C. is similar to other areas of North America in that the largest percentage of rapes are committed by acquaintances of the victim, especially where child rape is concerned.

In 1978, between January and June, 32 child sex abuse cases were reported to the ministry of human resources. Of that total, 59 per cent involved a paternal relationship between the child and the suspect ranging from natural and legal father to common-law.

The report says that while the sexually abused child was statistically more prevalent than the battered child, information as with rape was scanty.

THE PERPETRATORS and victims in child sex abuse are found in all levels of society, with the majority of cases among "conventional families."

"Families that are marginal, socially and economically, are more subject to exposure by social workers and the courts, while better-off families can hush things up," the report says.

"There are very few people in British Columbia, in professional or non-professional capacities, prepared to deal with sexually assaulted children or the children's parents.

"ONE SOCIAL worker who is willing told me that sexual assault of children that she sees is 'only the tip of the iceberg and that there is need for public education of a massive sort.' "

Native Indian women are also among the many unnumbered victims of rape. Other studies quoted by Goldsberry say native women are discouraged from proceeding with charges because they fear police bias.

"It may be that, even more than white women, native women do not believe that treatment at the hands of the police and courts will benefit themselves as the victims of a crime, and that it is this belief that keeps the reporting rate low and filters out the cases which might ultimately go to court . . .

THE AUTHOR believes that "native women experience rape as a fact of life at an even younger age than the 'average' white victim."

The report says that, according to statistics, "the street, the home and the automobile emerge as dangerous places for women. Being too young or too old to attract a rapist is not safe either."

In a study at Quesnel, of all 15 rapes reported, females between the ages of 10 and 16 were the victims. During similar study periods in Vancouver, the victims were 40 or older.

The report also dismisses the oft-stated claim that rape is a big-city crime.

"RAPE IS relatively more frequent in rural than urban environments," the report says. "If we use what is called the 'rape rate' (per 100,000 people there are X number of police-reported rapes), in 1977 there were these rates for the following B.C. census divisions: Vancouver, 69; Nanaimo, 105; Kamloops, 74, and Victoria, 33.

Goldsberry says that men, while being the main perpetrators of rape, find it difficult to accept "that rapists have no ugly characteristics. It is a rare man who will admit that he, to, given the right circumstances, could be a potential rapist."

SHE IS ALSO critical of those who say that women who complain of rape are actually more to blame and may be unbalanced.

". . . Rape precipitation is defined thus," she says: "A woman's behavior, if passive, may seem worthy to suit the action, and if active, may be taken as an actual promise of success to one's sexual intentions.

"What woman can win in this situation? If she is passive, she provokes. If she is active, she provokes. The fallacy is (that) it is not her behavior that precipitates rape at all, but the rapist's interpretation of her behavior."

WHILE THE report will be studied first by his staff, Attorney-General Garde Gardom did promise the legislature that he would take a hard look at its major recommendations.

Among those recommendations are:

- Establishment of a child sexual abuse response clinic to establish and monitor procedures for dealing with sexual assaults on children.
- Victims of sexual assault be given the choice of being interviewed by a male or female investigator.
- Where a female police officer is not available, the victim be provided with a "victim advocate" to assist in the investigation.
- Police develop strict guidelines for classifying rape reports as unfounded.
- Standard procedures be adopted by all hospitals for the handling of suspected rape cases.

The report notes that in many hospitals doctors are reluctant to get involved in suspected rape cases because of eventual time lost in court cases.

IT RECOMMENDS some changes in the law as it concerns rape, and stresses that crown prosecutors should provide more support to rape victims before and during trial.

Goldsberry recommends that victims be consulted by crown counsel before a plea on a lesser charge is allowed, and that where possible the same crown counsel appear at both preliminary hearings and trial in the higher courts.

Airline flexes wings

West Coast Air, one of two airlines operating between Victoria and Vancouver Harbor, is exploring the possibility of expanding its land-based services.

Lynn Thow, president of West Coast Air Holdings, and Newell Morrison, chairman of the board of directors, announced their future plans Wednesday.

As a first step, West Coast Air is attempting to find areas of the province where a land-based airline could serve as a third-level carrier link with established airlines.

Morrison said that if the need for a feeder airline was established, larger aircraft of the De Havilland Dash 7 type would be used.

Search finds missing six

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Six Vancouver hikers were found early Wednesday after being reported missing on Hollyburn Mountain.

Police said all were in good condition when reached by an Emergency Measures Organization search team about 8 a.m. They spent Monday night in temperatures which dipped to 5 C.

Walkouts spread in forest dispute

A walkout by members of a second union added to the pressure Wednesday as forest industry negotiators moved closer to the hour of reckoning.

Some 750 members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union shut down the Eurocan Pulp and Paper Mill at Kitimat in strike action that was legal, but which didn't have the approval of the union. Similar action by pockets of International Woodworkers of America members continued to idle some operations in the Port Alberni area.

The IWA and a third union, the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, expect answers this afternoon to positions they presented to the industry Wednesday.

After mulling over the industry's "final" contract offers over the holiday weekend, the IWA and PPWC returned to the bargaining table Wednesday with changes they said would be necessary before acceptance could be recommended to their memberships.

The "problem areas" were different, as were the bargaining teams the unions faced—Forest Industrial Relations for the IWA, and the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau for the PPWC.

Leaders of all three unions have indicated they thought industry proposals provided the framework for settlement, but all have stipulated that certain changes would be needed before agreement could be reached.

Angus MacPhee, national president of the PPWC, couldn't be reached for comment, but another PPWC spokesman hinted that the question of strike or peace in the industry could rest on today's meetings.

"We gave them the items that had to be resolved," said Stan Shewaga of Nanaimo. "It all depends now on what the industry has to say tomorrow (Thursday)—if it is negative, if they still say it was their final offer, well . . . "

The IWA has counted on taking a recommendation for acceptance or rejection to its membership this week. That, too, would presumably depend on the outcome of today's meeting.

The CPU is scheduled to meet with the pulp and paper bureau today.

All three unions have strike mandates as the result of recent votes.

The IWA represents close to 40,000 woodworkers in the coast and southern interior regions, the CPU, 7,500 members, and the PPWC, about 6,000.

Contracts of all have expired.

The industry's wage offer, increased considerably last week, is the same for all three unions—a boost of 90 cents an hour in the first year and 9½ per cent in the second.

Enough women for two harems

LONDON (UPI) — Horace Langford, the lonely millionaire who advertised for a wife, said Wednesday he had narrowed the choice to three out of 800 applicants.

"My big double bed is absolutely littered with applications," said the 72-year-old Champagne Horace. "I have had calls from all over the world."

"Very lonely" since his divorce two years ago, he advertised for a "housekeeper with view to marriage."

Applicants should be, he specified, about 30, brunette, measure 36-24-36 and be "witty and able to look after an intelligent man in his old age."

Langford, director of five companies, said the response was "staggering."

"Please, please, no more," he said. "I have got enough women to start two harems. It's going to take my secretary and me several weeks to make a final choice."

Langford said the frontrunner was a young woman from Middlesex. "Unfortunately, I can't seem to remember her first name," he said, "but she is very nice indeed, a dark, Indian sort of lady, very pretty indeed."

Second was a young woman from Amersham whom "I took out to dinner and we had lots to talk about." The third was from Windsor, "most attractive and very charming.

"I really want something I can grab," he said. "I am only five feet, five inches tall and I want a cuddly woman."

THE ACES® IRA G. CORN, JR.

"The useful and beautiful are never separated." — Periander.

Often it's useful to surrender a trick one doesn't have to. And under the right conditions, the useful can be also truly beautiful.

West leads the diamond nine and dummy's ace wins. West's trump ace is knocked out and West leads his last diamond, which declarer ruffs. A second trump reveals the nasty trump break and declarer is in trouble.

If he draws all of West's trumps, East can cash his diamonds when he wins the ace of clubs. And if he tries the clubs first, a third diamond lead by East will force declarer to lose control of the trump suit.

Declarer can make the game if he knocks out East's club ace before he touches trumps. However, there are dangers in the play and another play is much more beautiful.

Instead of winning dummy's diamond ace at trick one, declarer ducks and East wins the 10. The diamond king comes back and declarer discards a spade, this time winning the ace in dummy.

The trump ace is knocked out, but West cannot attack. He has no diamond to force declarer to ruff and declarer retains control. He can afford to knock out the club ace together with drawing trumps and he takes his 10 tricks with ease.

Of course, the beauty of the play would have been tarnished if West had started with a singleton diamond. Now West would ruff the second diamond and two more aces would mean a one trick set.

Geologists search life's beginnings

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A Danish geologist is heading for southwestern Greenland to join American colleagues in the hope of establishing that organic life existed on earth 3.8 billion years ago—500 million years earlier than previously believed.

Dr. Peter Kappel of the University of Copenhagen's Institute of Geology said before leaving that he had been informed by West Germany's Max Planck Institute that signs of organic life had been found in some of the 1.5 tons of stones he collected in Greenland for the institute in 1976.

"The discovery by the Max Planck specialists of two specific hydrocarbons makes it 99 per cent certain that 3.8 billion years ago there was organic life on what is now an Arctic island," Kappel said. "But this summer we will be after the unmistakable proof—a fossil."

Kappel will join geologists of the University of Maryland with whom he worked last summer in the Isua area bordering on the Greenland icecap. The area is strewn with rocks and stones that have been identified as the oldest material ever found on earth.

Until now, the earliest proof of organic life on earth had been established in South African sediments dating back 3.3 billion years. The age of the earth itself is about 4.5 billion years.

The old iron ore-bearing stones that cover about one-third of the vast 34,000 square kilometres in the Godthaab district on Greenland's west coast were first discovered in the 1950s by Danish mining prospectors.

But it was Vic McGregor, a geologist from New Zealand, who, during field studies in 1972, was convinced he was on the oldest soil on earth. Dating specialists at England's Oxford University proved him right.

Now a naturalized Dane, McGregor has made Greenland his home, spending his winters as a hunter and sheep breeder, his summers as a geologist roaming the Isua area.

Make us jeans, Russia asks U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has given up trying to copy American-style jeans and is negotiating with three U.S. firms to build a plant to turn out millions of brand-name denims.

The three main contenders for the contract are the makers of Lee, Levi, and Wrangler jeans.

Representatives of the companies were in Moscow this week at a consumer goods exhibition and were touring possible sites for the factory.

All three have made proposals to set up a plant to turn out jeans under their American label.

A contract is expected to be signed this year or early in 1980 and production could start six months later if the equipment can be set up in an existing building.

The decision to woo American firms is a clear admission that the Soviet attempt to turn out jeans was a dismal failure.

The Soviets have been plagued with lack of quality denim, shoddy construction and designs that fall far short of American standards.

The sad state of the Soviet jeans business has been evident for years. Soviet teen-agers snub them for American jeans, paying as much as $200 on the black market.

Viking-style ship sails into Man

PEEL, Isle Of Man (Reuter) — A replica of a Viking ship sailed into Peel harbor Wednesday, completing a 2,400-kilometre journey from Norway to celebrate the millenium of the Isle of Man's Tynwald Parliament, founded by Norsemen.

An estimated 18,000 people packed the beaches to watch the crew of 11 islanders and five Norwegians in Viking regalia step ashore after their 42-day voyage from Trondheim, Norway.

The 17-metre Odin's Raven followed the route marauding Vikings took in the 9th Century before they settled on Isle of Man and founded what has become the world's longest continuous legislature.

The crew, fed largely on a traditional Viking diet of dried reindeer meat, oat cakes, vegetables, milk and honey, navigated from Norway to the Shetland and Orkney islands and then followed Scotland's western coast to this Irish sea isle, stopping at nine ports.

The only accident occurred June 14 when a storm overturned the vessel off the Isle of Skye, forcing the crew to abandon plans to stop off in Ireland.

Use of the shelter of Scotland's western isles allowed Odin's Raven to beach as planned one day before the climax of the millenium celebrations, when Queen Elizabeth will attend a proclamation of laws at the original Tynwald site.

The Isle of Man, a tax haven and tourist resort, is a largely self-governing crown dependency that is not part of the United Kingdom.

All Man legislation needs royal assent to become law but there is growing pressure from islanders to challenge London, particularly over the island's now defunct practice of birching —beating violent young offenders with a bundle of branches.

The European Court of Human Rights dubbed the practice degrading last year and it was stopped. But several Man residents are expected to petition the queen today to seek exemption from the relevant clause of the European Human Rights Convention so that birching can be continued.

Mounties fret over embassy bugs

Hampered by treaty? they ask

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP Security Service has learned that it may be violating an international treaty by bugging foreign embassies here, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing was told Wednesday.

Michael Dare, director-general of the Security Service, testified that there is "some question" whether the Mounties, even with a judicial warrant to do so, can bug embassies without violating the treaty.

The treaty, ratified by Canada in the early 1970s, aims at protecting diplomatic personnel.

"Am I going to knock on an embassy door and ask 'Please may I come in'?" the 62-year-old chief of counterespionage in Canada growled.

Dare himself raised the subject of embassies as he was questioned about the legalities of bugging.

He said security service operations have become difficult as a result of "increased sensitivities in recent months," an apparent reference to the spotlight cast on the service by public inquiries. He gave the embassy situation as an example.

Efforts by reporters to question Dare after the hearing were blocked by Pierre Lamontagne, lawyer for the RCMP.

Dare gave no indication which embassies have been bugged and when.

He said the RCMP hasn't yet received a reply on whether or not the practice is legal. Government lawyers were checking with Washington and London to find how their counterespionage agencies handled the problem.

GARDOM DEFENDS DEPUTY'S CALL

NDP asks probe of interference charge by judge

Canadian Press

The New Democratic Party has called for an independent investigation into allegations that Deputy Attorney-General Richard Vogel interfered with the judicial process by telephoning a judge.

Stu Leggatt (NDP—Coquitlam-Moody), a lawyer, said an inquiry should be held into charges by Judge Phil Govan of Richmond that he had been been asked to disqualify himself from a case because a ruling he had made would be an administrative inconvenience to the attorney-general's department.

Vogel said in an interview that the judge misinterpreted his intentions. The call to Govan was to inform him what action his department was taking, he said.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said he would consider the NDP request and probably would announce a decision today.

He defended Vogel, noting that Govan, the lone family court judge in Richmond, ruled April 1 on a case before him that a section of the Family Relations Act was unconstitutional—without hearing any arguments.

The judge refused to hear any more cases related to the act, in effect throwing dozens of actions in the Richmond court in legal limbo until his ruling could be challenged in a higher court.

Gardom said the ministry disagreed with the ruling because the judge had not served notice as required under the Constitutional Questions Determination Act and because no arguments for or against the ruling were heard.

He said the ministry then asked the B.C. Supreme Court to order Govan to proceed with the case under the act, and the higher court did so on April 23.

The attorney-general said that on May 9, when the case was to be heard, Govan was asked by the ministry to disqualify himself because of his earlier judgment. The judge declined and presented his judgment the next day.

In his ruling, Govan said the transfer request was made beween April 1 and April 10, and he inferred from it that the attorney-general's ministry was looking for a "more complacent judge who would hear and make orders without enter-

Society moulds rapist, victim

Society has conditioned men to be rapists and women to be their victims, according to a report tabled in the Legislature.

"Our culture condones the use of physical aggression and violence under certain circumstances," it says.

The document arises from a year-long study of rape in British Columbia by Nancy Goldsberry, long-time co-ordinator of Victoria's Rape Relief Centre, for the attorney-general's department.

Its findings and recommendations are detailed on Page 42.

Ottawa bending on servant slash

OTTAWA (CP) — The government now seems willing to be flexible in implementing a plan to cut 60,000 public service jobs, Andy Stewart, president of the 180,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, said Wednesday.

After meeting Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens, Stewart reported: "I think there is more flexibility."

The jobs are to be eliminated by attrition over three years, but the government has not said when the three years will start, and may even lengthen the period, Stewart said.

However, it was clear the government still intended to cut 60,000 jobs, and Stewart repeated earlier warnings that this "will seriously impede operations of the public service."

Stevens has said 40,000 jobs will be cut by attrition in the regular public service and another 20,000 jobs will be eliminated by selling crown corporations to the private sector.

The government was to announce later this week a number of crown corporations to be turned over to the private sector, Stewart said.

Stewart and other PSAC executives went into Wednesday's meeting demanding full disclosure of the government's future staffing plans.

He would not say later whether he got it. "I can only report that there were some positive aspects" to Stevens' response.

Stewart would not elaborate, but he said progress was made on two other issues: job security for public service and a PSAC demand that all employees on long-term contracts be made permanent public service employees.

He would not give any details, but reported that "we had a very reasonable exchange with the minister and I believe something positive will come of it."

The PSAC demanded that the government immediately end a two-month hiring freeze which is to end in August. The freeze was imposed to give departments time to decide where cuts can be made.

The alliance wanted the government to give permanent employment to persons on long-term contracts because in many cases they are doing the work of full-time public servants, Stewart said. The PSAC also wanted the government to cease contracting work out to private companies.

Stewart said morale in the public service was at its lowest level ever.

Guard downs planes

Colonist wire services

MANAGUA — Nicaragua's National Guard (army) on Wednesday shot down four planes reported to be flying arms and ammunition to Sandinista guerrillas, a senior parliamentarian said.

Luis Pallais Debayle, National Assembly vice-president and a cousin of President Anastasio Somoza, said two of the aircraft, both downed 19 kilometres south of Managua, were carrying arms from Costa Rica for the guerrillas.

Pallais said the other two aircraft were downed near guerrilla-held Leon and Matagalpa in the north.

Military sources said one pilot was captured and was being interrogated.

Meanwhile, Somoza sent National Guard reinforcements to southern Nicaragua where his troops are caught between two guerrilla forces, one entrenched along the Costa Rican border and the other battling for control of the provincial capital of Rivas, where unconfirmed reports said the rebels held all but the guard headquarters.

A government source said, "Realistically, we're looking to another three months of fighting."

He said President Somoza, who is under heavy pressure from the Organization of American States—including the United States—to resign, had reaffirmed his vow not to step down until he wins a military victory.

Carter suddenly cancels tonight's energy speech

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Carter abruptly cancelled his nationwide energy address Wednesday, catching top aides by surprise. A senior official said the president was apparently unhappy over the draft of the speech.

Press secretary Jody Powell telephoned a terse cancellation message to reporters from Camp David.

The speech was originally scheduled for tonight.

Carter telephoned Vice-President Walter Mondale during the afternoon, apparently to explain the cancellation, but not Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal or domestic affairs aide Stuart Eizenstat, all heavily involved in preparing the address.

U.S. pressing whaling ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will propose a ban on all commercial whaling at an international conference next week, officials said Wednesday.

They said the U.S. delegation planned to ask the International Whaling Commission, at its July 9-13 meeting in London, to impose a moratorium until about half a dozen conditions were met.

The conditions include a end to "pirate" whaling—that done by ships of nonmember nations in disregard of IWC quotas, often using ships purchased from IWC nations.

Officials said the United States also wanted a new plan on which to base whale kill quotas, better estimates of whale populations and a doubling of the IWC budget.

In addition, the Americans wants nations to be required to provide commission scientists with information on whale stocks they have been withholding.

On the other hand, the U.S. government is also expected to request continued clearance for Eskimos to kill the endangered bowhead whale off Alaska, pending a 1981 review of bowhead population data.

The Eskimos say the hunt is essential to their nutrition and culture.

The United States needs a three-quarters vote for approval of its commercial moratorium proposal.

The commission will also be considering Australia's call for a complete ban on commercial whaling.

Air collision kills seven

ASHDOWN, Ark. (AP) — Bodies of seven persons, including that of a four-year-old girl, have been recovered from the wreckage of two light planes that collided in the air Tuesday and plunged into Millwood Lake in southwestern Arkansas.

Held 14 years, Ben Bella free

ALGIERS (Reuter) — Ahmed Ben Bella, the flamboyant rebel who became first president of independent Algeria, was released from detention Wednesday more than 14 years after his overthrow by the late Houari Boumedienne.

The Algerian news agency said Ben Bella, 62, was released for the 17th anniversary of independence.

He vanished from public view in the dawn coup of June 19, 1965, and had been under house arrest ever since.

The tall, athletic intellectual started his campaign for Algeria's independence from France in 1949, but spent most of the bitter seven-year rebellion in a French prison.

He became president in 1963. Boumedienne, who succeeded him after the virtually bloodless 1965 coup, died last December.

Ben Bella had been reported living under strict military guard at a villa 40 kilometres south of Algiers, with his wife and two adopted children.

Well capping fails

CIUDAD DEL CARMEN, Mexico (UPI) — Divers tried but failed in bad weather Wednesday to cap a runaway oil well with chemicals and cement before it becomes the world's worst oil spill.

A Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex) spokesman said chances were "good" that the effort would eventually succeed though "we don't have a time limit. It depends on many factors."

The BLOB

It dwarfs whole clusters of galaxies and we may collide with it some eon

LONDON (Reuter) — Two British astronomers say they have discovered evidence of a mysterious blob of matter deep in outer space, 10 times larger than the biggest cluster of galaxies yet perceived by scientists.

Andy Fabian of Cambridge University and Bob Warwick of Leicester University said X-rays detected by a British satellite, Ariel 5, indicate the existence of a huge, unexplained mass located perhaps 10 billion light years from Earth.

Our galaxy's nearest neighbor, the Andromeda Galaxy, is two million light years away.

The mystery object might be pulling our own and our neighboring galaxies toward it by the force of its gravity, the astronomers say in a report in Nature Magazine.

The report says a hitherto unlocated galaxy, much closer to earth than the supposed blob, might be the source of the X-rays.

But other recent evidence, from scientists at the University of California at Berkeley, suggests that Earth is moving relative to background microwave radiation from space.

The gravitational pull of the blob would explain this.

Will the Earth collide with the mystery object, or "inhomogenity" as the researchers call it?

Fabian said this would depend on the nature and duration of the universe. If it did happen it would not be for millions of years.

Malaspina selects its principal

NANAIMO — Gerald Sylvester, former Vancouver Community College dean of instruction at Langara campus, Wednesday was appointed principal of Malaspina College.

Sylvester's appointment, effective Sept. 4, ended a year's vacancy created by the resignation of Dr. Carl Opgaard, Malaspina's first chief.

A program for small businessmen might be one venture the college could pursue, he said, because small business employs nearly 50 per cent of the province's people.

Bridge talks provide no lift

COURTENAY — A disappointed Mayor William Moore has returned from a trip to Victoria and a meeting with Transportation Minister Alex Fraser.

Not only did Moore learn the tenders for a new second crossing would not be called until next spring, but also that the proposed 17th Street site would be moved upstream and the bridge would be a lift span.

Such a bridge had not been mentioned in any of the talks on the matter, but it was reported to be mentioned now because of opposition from the federal government, which first granted approval for a low bridge on condition the provincial government paid $750,000 to relocate fishboats in the freshwater Courtenay slough.

The new bridge would go straight across the river rather than at an angle and only one section on the Comox side would lift and would not require any pilings in the river.

The new proposed site upstream from 17th Street could affect some homeowners, but as yet this had not been determined. Moore was busy matching up the highway map and the city maps. He said when and if any homeowners were affected, they would be contacted immediately.

Moore cited general opposition in the community as one possible reason for delay. He added there was nothing major the city could do to ease the traffic problem, which was reaching epidemic proportions and growing daily.

However, the Comox Valley Citizens Traffic Advisory Committee, which has fought the proposed bridge, was continuing its fight to have a bypass built in place of a bridge.

Moore said, however, that neither an inland highway nor a bypass had been discussed with Fraser.

But Comox Ald. Alice Bullen, a member of the citizen committee, said a letter was sent recently to Fraser and Comox MLA Karen Sanford, in which the findings of a recent study indicated the new road to the bridge could be subject to flooding.

She, along with committee members, still maintained traffic conditions could be improved if the present traffic patterns were changed.

Meanwhile, the three-pronged battle, city, citizen committee and Fraser, continues, while traffic keeps piling up.

Fun days are here again

School is surely over when annual sports or fun days are held, and it was no different at Nanaimo's Hammond Bay elementary, except there the event was school's third annual Olympics. Above, kindergarten pupil Jason Nelson gets assistance in sack race while below, Greg McRae is given helping hand from older students while walking on large juice cans.

Junior high brief

Smaller better, school staffers inform trustees

By DONNA REIMER
Colonist correspondent

NANAIMO — High school students should be grouped in smaller schools with grades 8 or 9 through 12.

That was the recommendation that staff of John Barsby junior high school has delivered to the district 68 school board.

The Barsby staffers presented their brief in response to a district-wide grade-level organization survey, which found most people were content with the present setup.

Now, most of the students in the district attend grades 8 through 10 at four junior high schools, while grades 11 and 12 students attend Nanaimo District senior high school.

In addition, about 500 students are enrolled in grades 8 through 12 at Ladysmith high school.

Barsby staff members present at the board meeting said that they were very concerned about the possibility the grade level organization would remain the same.

They cited a number of advantages to both the students and staff that would result from a change.

These included giving students a greater sense of continuity, development of school pride, desirable influence from older students, and fewer problems of adjustment to a new situation every few years.

The teachers also mentioned that they would be able to develop better rapport with students at various levels of their development and have the satisfaction of seeing the results of teaching the challenging junior grades.

There would also be more opportunity for teacher transfer under such a system, the Barsby brief said.

The brief was signed by 41 of the school's 53 teachers.

Trustees referred the matter to the board's education committee, which is now considering the results of the survey.

Trustee Joy Leach commented to the teachers that she was happy to hear their point of view, because she shares their convictions and would like to find evidence to override the overwhelming statistical evidence in the survey that supported no change.

The topic will likely be discussed at a special meeting of the education committee in the fall.

Another topic in the district that has been the focus of a survey is educational goals.

The needs assessment committee conducted a survey of students, teachers and community on what was expected of the school district.

Last week, a preliminary report on the survey results was given to the school board.

A total of 2,044 responded to the questionnaire. They were asked to rate goals of the school system as very important, fairly important, not too important, not at all important or no opinion.

In addition, participants were asked to rate the five most important and least important goals.

Rated most important by the community and teachers was the goal of developing good characters, self-respect and pride in work. Students ranked that goal second.

Mastering basic education skills was the second-rated goal by community, fourth by teachers and third by students.

Developing a desire for learning was given third place by community and teachers and fourth by students.

Most interestingly, while teachers and community ranked the goal of job selection and preparation for work sixth and 10th, respectively, students ranked it on top.

A massive amount of numbers and graphs was generated by the study, and the needs assessment committee asked for, and received, an extension of its life to complete work on the study.

The committee was a joint project of the school board and the Nanaimo District Teachers Association, and both groups have voted to ask the committee to continue its work in the fall, and draft a proposed statement of educational philosophy for consideration.

Another report presented to the board last week was critical of trustees themselves for poor communication with the public.

The public relations committee, made up of trustees, teachers, principals, district staff and CUPE representatives, chided trustees for launching a whole range of initiatives from reorganization of bus routes to assessment procedures, but not doing an effective job of communication about them.

The committee recommended that the board launch a year of dialogue, during which board members would make an attempt to spend more time in a variety of positive and informal ways with the teachers, students and staff on whose behalf the board governs the district."

In addition, the committee asked that one staff member be identified as the community contact person to assist in implementing better communications within the district and with the media.

The committee also recommended a fall workshop, as well as a district-wide professional development-seminar day.

The public relations committee also asked that its continued existence be authorized.

The board decided to delay any decision on the public relations recommendations until the next regular board meeting.

Two rescues excelled in teamwork

Well co-ordinated teamwork by Gulf Islands Emergency Program volunteers, an Inshore Rescue Boat crew and RCMP may have saved two lives in separate incidents recently.

When a Vancouver teenager lost consciousness while camping on Galiano Island, both IRB 502, Ganges, and GIEP agents Horst and Sandra Klein of North Pender Island were on the scene in 12 minutes.

The Kleins brought with them an oxygen unit, recently received from the Emergency Health Service. Joyce Klein, who remained at Otter Bay, arranged for a doctor and additional medical equipment from Pender.

It was determined that the camper, identified later as 16-year-old Karen Lysyck, was suffering from a brain hemorrhage and that immediate hospital care was essential.

RCMP boat 29GI, returning from Salt Spring Island to Otter Bay, was rerouted to Montague Harbor, Galiano.

The RCMP boat was chosen to transport Lysyck to an ambulance waiting at Swartz Bay.

By the time they reached Swartz Bay, the victim was in a coma. Without knowledgeable care, Dr. Don Sutherland told the Colonist, Lysyck might not have survived the ride.

At Royal Jubilee Hospital, a neurosurgeon had been alerted and treatment began immediately

The second incident began at 8:10 a.m. when the Kleins and the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Racer responded to a mayday call from the U.S. ferry Columbia.

The Columbia, en route from Alaska to Seattle, was just off Pender Island.

One of her passengers, 20-year-old Tom Olson, was in insulin shock. According to a doctor travelling on the ferry, Olson could live a maximum of two to three hours without attention.

The Kleins, in their Boston whaler, and two coast guard seamen in a rubber boat arrived on the scene less than 15 minutes later. By that time the Columbia had been stopped and the patient, already comatose, prepared for evacuation.

At Sidney dock, a fully-equipped life-support ambulance manned by paramedics, was waiting to rush Olson to Victoria General. As of Tuesday, Olson was out of intensive care, his condition much improved.

Help for Boat People not so simple in Cowichan

DUNCAN — A request on behalf of the Vietnamese Boat People from Duncan resident E.S. Price received little response from Cowichan Valley Regional District directors at their meeting.

Price said he was making his request for consideration by the board to allow his property, now within the agricultural land reserve (ALR) to be used to accommodate the "boat people."

In a letter to the board, Price said: "We own 1.85 acres (which we realize is within ALR), but under the circumstances we as retired citizens feel we would like to share with some of less fortunate circumstances."

Price said as his own home "was not big enough to share." He was thinking in terms of a small mobile home.

He said he had two wells on his property and only used about one-half acre. The rest is fallow land.

Price, who said he was a member of the Canadian Control Commission to Vietnam during 1956-1957 said, if granted, it "would be used solely for the use of distressed immigrants and for no other purpose."

Director Bill Cools, who said that only one single family residence per parcel was allowed in the ALR, stated "if Price wishes to pursue the placement of additional residences for this purpose on the property, that he be advised to make application through the correct channels."

Lake Cowichan director Olive Baird read a report on the Lake Cowichan and district activity centre, stating the centre's administrator Douglas Denton-Howes had resigned, being disheartened by massive cuts in spending.

His resignation takes effect July 30, a month after emergency funds for the community resources and activity centre were to be used up.

Director Baird said: "In order to get the feel of the people in the area, a public meeting should be held with a view to possibly going to a referendum.

Denton-Howes had previously indicated that, as far as he could see, no funds would be made available for the usual September start-up for the centre, following the traditional two-month closure during the summer.

"It won't be opening," he said. "It is defunct until wefind some more funding. The prospects of opening as we were are very dim."

Howes said appeals were being made for funds to a provincial government interministerial committee, which he said might make more funds available, and also to Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy, head of the ministry which was responsible for the rejection of a $48,000 grant sought locally for the centre.

Denton-Howes is expected to return to his teaching post at Lake Cowichan senior high school next term.

Director Baird moved that a public meeting be held for areas F and I and the Village of Lake Cowichan with a view to obtaining public support in the area for the centre and to establish whether it would be feasible to proceed to referendum or funding of the centre.

Baird suggested that the referendum should be for the raising of a one-mill levy for the areas concerned.

Provincial Court

A 23-year-old inmate at the Jordan River forestry camp had two months tacked onto his sentence after pleading guilty Wednesday in Victoria provincial court to being unlawfully at large last month.

Robert Zeilstra was given the sentence after Judge Fred Green learned it was Zeilstra's second conviction this year for the same kind of offence. Zeilstra was convicted Feb. 21 in Burnaby of escaping lawful custody and was given a 30-day sentence consecutive to a term he was serving.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court Zeilstra was convicted of two counts of arson and three counts of theft Oct. 31 and was given terms totalling 16 months.

On June 11, Laughton said, Zeilstra was noticed missing during an afternoon head count at the forestry camp. A subsequent search of the area was unsuccessful.

About midnight, an off-duty guard who was going home spotted Zeilstra walking along West Coast Road about 800 metres from Jordan River and apprehended him.

Defence lawyer Scott Hall told the court the offence was not premeditated and that Zeilstra spent most of the time on the road. He said Zeilstra "may have some mental problems."

A SIDNEY man who turned 21 today was given a 15-day jail term by Judge Blake Allan after pleading guilty to causing a disturbance in the Sidney Hotel on Jan. 17.

Richard Wayne Davis of 2190 Amelia Avenue was also placed on six months' probation and ordered to pay for damage to the hotel.

Crown counsel Clint Kittle told the court Davis was escorted out of the hotel about 10 p.m. after being involved in a fight and tearing two shirts and some styrofoam.

He returned to the hotel later that evening and asked a waitress why he wasn't being served. She told him he was barred until June 6, at which he became verbally abusive to the woman. Davis then shoved a waiter carrying a full tray of beers, causing him to hit his head on a table and lose consciousness momentarily, and destroy the entire tray of beer.

TWO TEENAGERS who wouldn't leave Dunsmuir Secondary School when requested by vice-principal Fred Pye were fined $200 each by Allan, who found both guilty of failing to leave school property when requested under the Public Schools Act.

Pye spotted 18-year-old Gregory Robert Twyman of 2632 Shelbourne, and 17-year-old Ernest Gerald West of 1736 Duchess, inside the school about 11:25 a.m. Nov. 30. They said they were visiting a student, but were told to leave.

Pye spotted them again shortly afterward inside the school and they became abusive when requested again to leave. Pye told Colwood RCMP the pair stopped near a classroom and disrupted a class by waving.

Police were called and found them near the west doors of the school. They were taken to the principal's office, interviewed and arrested.

GREEN DENIED bail to a 26-year-old man charged with possession of cocaine for the purpose of trafficking.

Ronald Norman MacAulay, of 3266 Cook, was arrested June 16 near Mount Tolmie and had been in custody since that date.

Defence lawyer Derek Brindle elected trial by judge without jury and a preliminary hearing was set for July 13.

FINED FOR drinking-driving offences were Hugh Pritchard, 52, of 1716 Haultain, $350; James Clinton Isaac, 19, of 3281 Galloway, $350; and Michael Jacques Richer, 24, of 2513 Fernwood, $325.

Jury back today

After a three-day absence, the jury in the B.C. Supreme Court murder trial in Victoria of Tommy Ross, Jr., is expected to return today.

The jury was excused last Thursday to allow Mr. Justice Alan Macfarlane to decide matters of law.

A decision on the legal points is expected this morning, and then the jury will be recalled.

Ross, 20, of Los Angeles, is charged with the Mother's Day slaying, May 14, 1978, of a 26-year-old mother of two, Janice Forbes, in her apartment at 207 1017 Queens.

The main trial has so far run 8½ days and is expected continue for more than a week.

City won't try moving bank

Victoria's urban development officer Joseph Elkin worked out a plan which might have enabled the city to turn a quick $100,000 profit, but aldermen wouldn't bite.

The scheme involved the vacant Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce building at Bay and Douglas.

The building was vacated by the bank recently and has been offered to the city for $1.

Elkin suggested that the city accept the offer, move the building to a publicly-owned site at Bay and Blanshard, fix it up and sell the package at a net profit of $100,000.

City council's land-use committee tabled the matter at Tuesday's meeting after Ald. Robert Wright expressed some reservations about Elkin's development scheme.

Wright said he doubted whether it was the right thing to do in the first place, and added that the two senior levels of government were sure to reject the plan.

The proposed site is the last piece of land assembled years ago for that area's urban renewal development, and it is still owned by the federal and provincial governments and the city of Victoria.

Although not a heritage structure, the bank building is considered worth saving because it's one of the few remaining prefabricated bank buildings manufactured in Vancouver and used across Western Canada.

Victoria taxpayers rush to beat penalty deadline

As Victoria taxpayers rushed to beat the deadline for payment of their 1979 property taxes, City Hall coffers had swelled considerably by Tuesday night.

City comptroller Mason Sheldrick said Wednesday that $29,232,000 of this year's total tax levy had been collected by 5 p.m. Tuesday.

He said that represented 91.75 per cent of the total levy, about the same as the collection at this time last year.

There was a steady stream of property-owners paying their taxes before deadline to avoid the four-per-cent penalty on unpaid taxes which went into effect Wednesday morning.

At 8:30 a.m. Sept. 28, a second penalty of six per cent is added to the unpaid portion of the taxes.

The 10-per-cent penalty is in effect in all four core municipalities, but the application differs slightly.

Oak Bay added five per cent Wednesday morning and will impose another five per cent in September, while Esquimalt adds first six and then four per cent. Saanich operates on the same basis as Victoria.

Salt Spring loses top businessman

A family memorial service was held at First United Church in Ganges Wednesday for Laurence Gilbert Mouat, prominent Salt Spring Island businessman and sportsman.

Mouat, from a well known pioneer family, was for many years until his retirement in 1969; manager of Mouat Brothers Ltd., a family business established in 1905 by his father and grandmother.

Mouat, who played an integral part in the island's growth, was a keen outdoorsman and noted athlete. He was an honorary life member of the Salt Spring Rod and Gun Club.

Young retires after 31 years

E.L. Young has retired from the ministry of forests after 31 years' service with the organization. Born in Vernon, and a forest engineering graduate of UBC, he started his career with the ministry in 1948 after several years with the coastal forest industry.

After a series of promotions which saw him in the Vancouver, Nelson, Prince George and Cariboo forest regions, Young was named chief forester for the province in 1971. Early in 1978, he became special forestry advisor for the ministry. He started his retirement leave June 26.

Always something new—and lacking

Colonist review
By JIM GIBSON

No matter how many productions anyone is fortunate enough to see of Wilde's triumph, The Importance of Being Earnest, there's always a couple of lines in each new show that were missed in earlier ones. But still that perfect production in which every twist and nuance of speech comes rhapsodically from the players remains somewhat elusive, particularly in Victoria.

Wilde's devastatingly funny comedy of Victorian society is undoubtedly one of the great tests in theatre for both actor and director. As one of its characters reminds another, it's style, not sincerity, which is important.

THERE'S LITTLE for either a director or actor to fall back on, once that essential style evaporates. Certainly its plot (concerning two young men—one flippant, the other sincere and both deadly earnest in their approaches) while amusing enough is still rather vaporous. Any attempts at buffoonery or cartooning the characters will eventually fail. It is a play of wit that should never be mistaken for satire.

Victor Bohlmann and his student cast do surprisingly well with Earnest. It certainly rates as the most enjoyable and probably one of the best staged by the Phoenix Summer Theatre in recent years.

BOHLMANN SHOWS some affinity for Wilde and the society he writes about. There is an obvious concern for both nuance in speech and gesture. Over-all, there is an awareness of the needed restraint particularly evident in such scenes as Gwendolen and Cecily's meeting and taking of tea.

But still there was an air of a director who might have spent too much time on the individual notes and selected passages but not enough on the whole score. The evening seemed surprisingly long, and while never quite tedious, unquestionably lacked a sustained, vibrant rythm.

BOHLMANN'S BLOCKING of characters seemed surprisingly uninventive, belonging to that school which sets actors up roughly in a line across the back of the stage. It is further marred here by designers Paul Van Deursen and Linda Del Rosario's black curtain backdrop, against which they placed some suitably elegant if occasionally garish-colored set pieces. Never has the Phoenix stage looked so vast and the actors so far away. Neither effect is particularly advisable for Earnest.

Kerry Hackett's costumes—with one stunning exception, Gwendolen's country dress—ranged from the tatty to the tacky for her men, while generally the latter was applicable for the women. The needed richness and elegance could have been achieved through good tailoring and restraint in design.

WENDY DONALDSON makes her entrance as Lady Bracknell in something so totally unsuitable that were it not for her strained, imperious voice, she could be mistaken for something from the music hall. Over-all, Donaldson's Braknell is the most unsatisfying of the performances. She lacks the genuine rigidy or restraint that the character requires. Much of the enjoyment of Bracknell is her ability to snub and reduce her daughter's poor suitor with the merest of looks and the most indifferently delivered phrase. Donaldson's Bracknell not only sticks the knife in, but twists it with obvious delight.

UNDOUBTEDLY Donaldson is handicapped by having to play a character much older than she, but then both Peter Smith and particularly Kristen Eaton as Chasuble and Prism manage quite well, relying on very few affectations.

Lorna Olafson's Cecily is suitably guileless, while Lori Hallier is quite impressive as the urbane and so attractive Gwendolen.

RUSSELL BENTLEY and David Wallace make for a good contrast as Algernon and Jack, the two young men who discover how important it really is to be earnest. Wallace, dashingly handsome in the role, is handicapped by a limited voice and staccato delivery which is quite often unintelligible. Bentley has few apparent problems as an actor, and despite superb restraint, steals the show.

Royal Ballet stuns

MONTREAL (CP) — Britain's Royal Ballet, back in Montreal for the first time in 12 years, stunned audiences and critics with its opening production of Swan Lake.

Not since Expo 67—the last time the troupe visited—had Montrealers "had the opportunity to see such an elegant corps de ballet," said The Star's Myron Galloway.

The performance drew ovations after a "spectacular" pas de deux in Act III by leads Anthony Dowell and Lesley Collier, and again at the end of the program.

Critics were overwhelmed by the dancing of Dowell as Prince Siegfried.

Dowell, who returned to the Royal Ballet recently after a year with American Ballet Theatre, "danced with his eyes shining with pleasure," wrote Jean-Paul Brousseau of La Presse.

Collier's handling of the dual role of Odette and Odile was "exquisite . . . trembling, delicate and yielding," wrote The Gaz-ette's Linda Howe-Beck.

The critics praised the company's decision to eliminate guest stars to give its own dancers more opportunities.

Brutal slaying shock for town

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Durham Regional Police were waiting Wednesday for results from the Centre of Forensic Sciences in Toronto to see whether any new light would be shed on the death of 16-year-old Kathleen Wels.

Police sent to the laboratory some articles found Tuesday at the scene of the death, hoping the results would determine the age, sex and hair color of her attacker.

"We believe we have a murder weapon but we don't want to disclose what it is," Inspector Dave Fleming said.

Carl Wels found the body of his daughter Monday about one kilometre from their home in this community just west of Oshawa.

She had been jogging, as she did every night, and when she did not return home after dark, he called police. He found the body before police arrived.

Fleming said Wednesday police had located a reddish-orange pickup truck seen in the area the night Miss Wels was killed. "We are interviewing the people."

There was evidence the girl put up a fight before she was beaten to death, police said, and the person who attacked her might have been scratched or scarred.

An autopsy showed Kathleen was not raped. Investigators believe the attacker may have hit the girl in the head to subdue her for rape but panicked after discovering she had died.

Police said Miss Wels jogged along the same route each evening, often accompanied by her mother, and that someone might have been waiting for her.

This town of about 28,000 was in shock over the death of the pretty and popular teenager.

Wels said the picture of his dead daughter lying by the road was etched in his mind and "It will never go away."

"Every time I try to close my eyes I see her. She wasn't a pretty sight. I picked her up, but I knew she was dead."

Neighbor Jim Taylor looked down the path Kathleen took each evening.

"I've been down that way 1,000 times and I never thought there was anything there that would hurt anybody."

David O'Connor, vice-principal of the high school where Kathleen was an honor student preparing to enter grade 12 in September, said her death was the worst tragedy the school had ever had. He said the school planned to honor her in some way.

Jocelyn Barber, one of the girl's teachers, said: "This is just a terrible, terrible waste.

"I feel very ashamed that a human being could do that sort of thing."

The funeral will be Friday. Kathleen will be buried in a Whitby cemetery.

Driver-jogger clash brings out bat, gun

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — An early-morning confrontation Wednesday between a motorist with a baseball bat and a jogger with a gun put the motorist in the hospital and the jogger in jail.

Police said Mark Kastens, 18, began arguing with the unidentified jogger at about 6:30 a.m. because he felt the man had almost caused an accident between Kastens' car and another vehicle.

The argument escalated and the jogger ran off to his home and Kastens followed him in his car.

While the jogger disappeared into his home, Kastens pulled a baseball bat from the back seat of his car and began moving toward the house. The jogger came back outside, produced a pistol and fired twice. Police said Kastens apparently turned as the shots were fired and was hit twice in the back.

Kastens got back inside his car and drove to Minor Emergency Centre-South for treatment. He collapsed when he stepped from his car and was taken by ambulance to the Wessley Medical Centre.

He was reported in good condition after surgery.

Police refused to identify the jogger, pending possible charges of assault in the incident.

Winds wreck blimp

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa (UPI) — The Goodyear blimp Mayflower was destroyed by high winds that tore it from its mooring and blew it into a beanfield, the blimp's pilot says.

Mount Pleasant Airport officials said the airship was torn from its anchor by high winds Tuesday. Police said it was in town to take part in the Fourth of July celebration.

"I haven't had a chance to assess the damage yet and I'll try and put a dollar value on it today," said pilot Ron Bell, "but judging by what I saw last night, it will run over a million dollars."

Bell said another Goodyear blimp, also named the Mayflower, was involved in similar freak accident less than a year ago at Augusta, Ga..

"A windstorm caused damage to the airship almost exactly like this one," he said. "It's unusual to lose two airships in a year's time."

Ranson frees businessman

SASSARI, Sardinia (Reuter) — Italian businessman Pupo Troffa, kidnapped eight months ago, was released by his abductors after his family was reported to have paid a ransom of about $700,000 U.S.

Deportation case stops for review

TORONTO (CP) — Immigration Minister Ronald Atkey has ordered that the deportation of a Jamaican woman with three Canadian-born children be postponed until he reviews the case, a spokesman in his office said Wednesday.

Julie Farquharson, 28, was to have been expelled today because she had been unemployed and living on welfare intermittently since arriving in Toronto in 1971.

Charles Roach, co-chairman of the Committee Against Racism, had accused the immigration appeal board of discrimination in ordering deportation of a black woman.

He said Canadian society accepted that a single parent with young children would probably need social assistance. The appeal board did not accept that in Miss Farquharson's case, and he suggested racist motives.

The woman came to Canada as a visitor in 1971 and became a landed immigrant in 1975. She also has a child in Jamaica.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

LONGTON - In loving memory of my dear husband Lawrence Longton (Larry) who passed away July 5, 1976.
As long as I live I will cherish your name,
Deep in my heart you are with me yet,
I loved you too dearly to ever forget.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by his loving wife, Constance Longton.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Sleep on dear
good mother,
it has been

Since you left
our hearts
filled with sadness
and tears

Yours was a heart
that was blithesome
and gay

Scattering sunshine
all along the way

You know how we love
you
and, yes,
love you yet

Though God took you
from us,
we cannot forget.

Region delays Tillicum action

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist reporter

The Capital Region District appears to be backing down in its attempts to force Saanich into line by court action aimed at enforcing the official regional plan.

The district is considering legal action to quash a bylaw that will allow a 295,000 square foot shopping centre at Tillicum—described as bigger than Town and Country, but smaller than Hillside.

The centre would include a Simpsons-Sears department store, which would not be as big as the Hillside store, a junior department store, such as Fields, and a food market.

Members of the finance and personnel committee shied away Tuesday from any decision on a recommendation for the full board to consider next Wednesday.

They asked Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier to ask his council if it will be bound by results of an impact study, if one is carried out and shows that a major shopping centre at Tillicum would have a detrimental effect on the economy of other parts of the region.

Couvelier said he would get legal counsel before talking to fellow council members.

Committee members are hoping that they will have some kind of an answer from Saanich before they meet again to make a recommendation to the board.

Tuesday's meeting reiterated previously stated positions, with directors led by Outer Gulf Islands director Jim Campbell accusing Saanich of "violating the spirit and intent of the regional plan" in going ahead with a regional shopping centre at Tillicum.

Couvelier insisted that the proposed development would not be a regional centre as defined by the plan, because it would not have a full-line department store, nor would it have office space.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young suggested that the region has to consider the effect upon Saanich if the region goes ahead with legal action, and is successful in the courts in having the bylaw quashed. He asked if Saanich would then be open to legal action from either the developer or from tenants such as Simpsons-Sears.

Couvelier said the biggest problem facing Saanich was revenue-sharing. The municipality would be content to remain as "the bedroom" of the region, if it could get some of the money generated by commercial enterprises in other places.

Campbell said the proposal has been considered, but core municipalities have regarded the suggestion as being too close to amalgamation.

He insisted that Couvelier was using the revenue sharing proposal as a red herring, since the real question was whether or not Saanich should be allowed to go ahead with a development without prior consultation with the region.

Police seek subject of rescue

The Victoria police would like to commend 14-year-old Russell Roemer for a medal, but they first need to know who he rescued.

Russell, of Sydney Avenue in Coquitlam, is staying with his grandmother, Mrs. L.J. Carlsen of 27 Erie, just a block or so from Fisherman's Wharf.

About 6 p.m. Tuesday, a boy about 10 fell off the wharf into about two metres of water, and was rescued at great pains by Russell, according to witnesses who reported the incident to police.

Unfortunately, Russell lost his prescription glasses, wallet containing $14 holiday spending money, and his identification cards during the rescue, and he intends to go back at low tide today to try and recover them.

City police say they'd like to commend Russell for a medal and ask that the rescued boy or his parents contact them so they can round out the commendation.

Building no loss for CBC

There's a lot of interest in the sale of the Victoria CBC building and the corporation will recover all the money spent on construction, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Len Lauk, provincial director for the CBC, said interest was running high since the building went on sale to the highest bidder.

He was commenting on a report that CKVU president Daryl Duke was interested in putting together a group to purchase the building at Blanshard and Kings. So far, construction of the building has cost $2 million.

Rapists and victims products of society

By JIM HUME
Colonist reporter

Society has conditioned men to be rapists and women to be the victims of rape, according to a 232-page report on rape in B.C. released Wednesday.

After two years' research for the attorney-general's ministry, author Nancy Goldsberry says rape "may well be a learned behavior" because "definitions conducive to violence are learned and our culture condones the use of physical aggression and violence under certain circumstances. That this aggressiveness, if not open violence, is nearly exclusive to men in our society has also been substantiated as the norm and not the exception."

GOLDSBERRY, a long-time co-ordinator of the Rape Relief Centre in Victoria, was commissioned to write the report under contract to the Justice Development Commission more than a year ago.

The report, tabled in the legislature Wednesday afternoon, says that "rooted in the same social structure that characterizes male sexuality as aggression is the process which moulds and legitimizes the role of women as victims."

The detailed report adds that in learning female roles, "young girls are taught to value sexual favors as 'an item of exchange.' "

THE AUTHOR says that while men are expected to initiate sexual overtures, women are seen as responsible for defining how far these overtures will go.

"Young women, particularly, with apparent sophistication but limited skills, are left with an unsolvable conflict," she says. "If she refuses she is a manhater, cold or a . . . tease. If she plays along, further confusion sets in as she is open for further advances.

". . . As men are conditioned to be rapists, women are conditioned in our society to be rape victims."

THE REPORT dismisses as a myth the suggestion that sexual permissiveness leads to less rape in society.

"It is suggested by the authors of this study that, contrary to common belief, an increase in sexual permissiveness in society will increase the incidence of rape. The so-called sexual revolution has diminished traditional and moral justification for limiting sexual interactions to prescribed situations and individuals."

The detailed report on B.C.'s least-reported crime says that most rapes occur on a Saturday or Thursday night, that rape is most often committed in the months of October, August, June and May.

STUDIES IN Vancouver showed that while "no clear seasonal pattern emerges . . . the warmer months have a slightly higher percentage of the total rapes for a year. Of greater significance are patterns of hour and day occurrence, with Thursday and Saturday providing 42 per cent (in study A) and 36 per cent (in study B) of the totals.

"Rape is a night-mare crime, with the peak hours of 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

The report notes a sharp increase in rapes at full moon, the same time "there tends to be a rise in the number of all violent crimes committed and traffic accidents."

THE REPORT confirms that B.C. is similar to other areas of North America in that the largest percentage of rapes are committed by acquaintances of the victim, especially where child rape is concerned.

In 1978, between January and June, 32 child sex abuse cases were reported to the ministry of human resources. Of that total, 59 per cent involved a paternal relationship between the child and the suspect ranging from natural and legal father to common-law.

The report says that while the sexually abused child was statistically more prevalent than the battered child, information as with rape was scanty.

THE PERPETRATORS and victims in child sex abuse are found in all levels of society, with the majority of cases among "conventional families."

Goldsberry
. . . year's work

"Families that are marginal, socially and economically, are more subject to exposure by social workers and the courts, while better-off families can hush things up," the report says.

"There are very few people in British Columbia, in professional or non-professional capacities, prepared to deal with sexually assaulted children or the children's parents.

"ONE SOCIAL worker who is willing told me that sexual assault of children that she sees is 'only the tip of the iceberg and that there is need for public education of a massive sort.' "

Native Indian women are also among the many unnumbered victims of rape. Other studies quoted by Goldsberry say native women are discouraged from proceeding with charges because they fear police bias.

"It may be that, even more than white women, native women do not believe that treatment at the hands of the police and courts will benefit themselves as the victims of a crime, and that it is this belief that keeps the reporting rate low and filters out the cases which might ultimately go to court . . .

THE AUTHOR believes that "native women experience rape as a fact of life at an even younger age than the 'average' white victim."

The report says that, according to statistics, "the street, the home and the automobile emerge as dangerous places for women. Being too young or too old to attract a rapist is not safe either."

In a study at Quesnel, of all 15 rapes reported, females between the ages of 10 and 16 were the victims. During similar study periods in Vancouver, the victims were 40 or older.

The report also dismisses the oft-stated claim that rape is a big-city crime.

"RAPE IS relatively more frequent in rural than urban environments," the report says. "If we use what is called the 'rape rate' (per 100,000 people there are X number of police-reported rapes), in 1977 there were these rates for the following B.C. census divisions: Vancouver, 69; Nanaimo, 105; Kamloops, 74, and Victoria, 33.

Goldsberry says that men, while being the main perpetrators of rape, find it difficult to accept "that rapists have no ugly characteristics. It is a rare man who will admit that he, to, given the right circumstances, could be a potential rapist."

SHE IS ALSO critical of those who say that women who complain of rape are actually more to blame and may be unbalanced.

". . . Rape precipitation is defined thus," she says: "A woman's behavior, if passive, may seem worthy to suit the action, and if active, may be taken as an actual promise of success to one's sexual intentions.

"What woman can win in this situation? If she is passive, she provokes. If she is active, she provokes. The fallacy is (that) it is not her behavior that precipitates rape at all, but the rapist's interpretation of her behavior."

WHILE THE report will be studied first by his staff, Attorney-General Garde Gardom did promise the legislature that he would take a hard look at its major recommendations.

Among those recommendations are:

- Establishment of a child sexual abuse response clinic to establish and monitor procedures for dealing with sexual assaults on children.
- Victims of sexual assault be given the choice of being interviewed by a male or female investigator.
- Where a female police officer is not available, the victim be provided with a "victim advocate" to assist in the investigation.
- Police develop strict guidelines for classifying rape reports as unfounded.
- Standard procedures be adopted by all hospitals for the handling of suspected rape cases.

The report notes that in many hospitals doctors are reluctant to get involved in suspected rape cases because of eventual time lost in court cases.

IT RECOMMENDS some changes in the law as it concerns rape, and stresses that crown prosecutors should provide more support to rape victims before and during trial.

Goldsberry recommends that victims be consulted by crown counsel before a plea on a lesser charge is allowed, and that where possible the same crown counsel appear at both preliminary hearings and trial in the higher courts.

Airline flexes wings

West Coast Air, one of two airlines operating between Victoria and Vancouver Harbor, is exploring the possibility of expanding its land-based services.

Lynn Thow, president of West Coast Air Holdings, and Newell Morrison, chairman of the board of directors, announced their future plans Wednesday.

As a first step, West Coast Air is attempting to find areas of the province where a land-based airline could serve as a third-level carrier link with established airlines.

Morrison said that if the need for a feeder airline was established, larger aircraft of the De Havilland Dash 7 type would be used.

Terror gang pair jailed

ROME (AP) — Two reputed members of the Red Brigades terrorist gang each were sentenced to seven-year prison terms for illegal possession of weapons. Adriana Faranda and Valerio Morucci were arrested in a Rome apartment filled with weapons.

Walkouts spread in forest dispute

A walkout by members of a second union added to the pressure Wednesday as forest industry negotiators moved closer to the hour of reckoning.

Some 750 members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union shut down the Eurocan Pulp and Paper Mill at Kitimat in strike action that was legal, but which didn't have the approval of the union. Similar action by pockets of International Woodworkers of America members continued to idle some operations in the Port Alberni area.

The IWA and a third union, the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, expect answers this afternoon to positions they presented to the industry Wednesday.

After mulling over the industry's "final" contract offers over the holiday weekend, the IWA and PPWC returned to the bargaining table Wednesday with changes they said would be necessary before acceptance could be recommended to their memberships.

The "problem areas" were different, as were the bargaining teams the unions faced—Forest Industrial Relations for the IWA, and the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau for the PPWC.

Leaders of all three unions have indicated they thought industry proposals provided the framework for settlement, but all have stipulated that certain changes would be needed before agreement could be reached.

Angus MacPhee, national president of the PPWC, couldn't be reached for comment, but another PPWC spokesman hinted that the question of strike or peace in the industry could rest on today's meetings.

"We gave them the items that had to be resolved," said Stan Shewaga of Nanaimo. "It all depends now on what the industry has to say tomorrow (Thursday)—if it is negative, if they still say it was their final offer, well . . ."

The IWA has counted on taking a recommendation for acceptance or rejection to its membership this week. That, too, would presumably depend on the outcome of today's meeting.

The CPU is scheduled to meet with the pulp and paper bureau today.

All three unions have strike mandates as the result of recent votes.

The IWA represents close to 40,000 woodworkers in the coast and southern interior regions, the CPU, 7,500 members, and the PPWC, about 6,000.

Contracts of all have expired.

The industry's wage offer, increased considerably last week, is the same for all three unions—a boost of 90 cents an hour in the first year and 9½ per cent in the second.

Mounties fret over bugging treaty

Embassies off-limits? they ask

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP Security Service has learned that it may be violating an international treaty by bugging foreign embassies here, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing was told Wednesday.

Michael Dare, director-general of the Security Service, testified that there is "some question" whether the Mounties, even with a judicial warrant to do so, can bug embassies without violating the treaty.

The treaty, ratified by Canada in the early 1970s, aims at protecting diplomatic personnel.

"Am I going to knock on an embassy door and ask 'Please may I come in'?" the 62-year-old chief of counterespionage in Canada growled.

Dare himself raised the subject of embassies as he was questioned about the legalities of bugging.

He said security service operations have become difficult as a result of "increased sensitivities in recent months," an apparent reference to the spotlight cast on the service by public inquiries. He gave the embassy situation as an example.

Efforts by reporters to question Dare after the hearing were blocked by Pierre Lamontagne, lawyer for the RCMP.

Dare gave no indication which embassies have been bugged and when.

He said the RCMP hasn't yet received a reply on whether or not the practice is legal. Government lawyers were checking with Washington and London to find how their counterespionage agencies handled the problem.

GARDOM DEFENDS DEPUTY'S CALL

NDP asks probe of interference charge by judge

Canadian Press

The New Democratic Party has called for an independent investigation into allegations that Deputy Attorney-General Richard Vogel interfered with the judicial process by telephoning a judge.

Stu Leggatt (NDP—Coquitlam-Moody), a lawyer, said an inquiry should be held into charges by Judge Phil Govan of Richmond that he had been been asked to disqualify himself from a case because a ruling he had made would be an administrative inconvenience to the attorney-general's department.

Vogel said in an interview that the judge misinterpreted his intentions. The call to Govan was to inform him what action his department was taking, he said.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said he would consider the NDP request and probably would announce a decision today.

He defended Vogel, noting that Govan, the lone family court judge in Richmond, ruled April 1 on a case before him that a section of the Family Relations Act was unconstitutional—without hearing any arguments.

The judge refused to hear any more cases related to the act, in effect throwing dozens of actions in the Richmond court in legal limbo until his ruling could be challenged in a higher court.

Gardom said the ministry disagreed with the ruling because the judge had not served notice as required under the Constitutional Questions Determination Act and because no arguments for or against the ruling were heard.

He said the ministry then asked the B.C. Supreme Court to order Govan to proceed with the case under the act, and the higher court did so on April 23.

The attorney-general said that on May 9, when the case was to be heard, Govan was asked by the ministry to disqualify himself because of his earlier judgment. The judge declined and presented his judgment the next day.

In his ruling, Govan said the transfer request was made beween April 1 and April 10, and he inferred from it that the attorney-general's ministry was looking for a "more complacent judge who would hear and make orders without enter-

Society moulds rapist, victim

Society has conditioned men to be rapists and women to be their victims, according to a report tabled in the Legislature.

"Our culture condones the use of physical aggression and violence under certain circumstances," it says.

The document arises from a two-year-long study of rape in British Columbia by Nancy Goldsberry, long-time co-ordinator of Victoria's Rape Relief Centre, for the attorney-general's department.

Its findings and recommendations are detailed on Page 12.

Guard downs planes

Colonist wire services

MANAGUA — Nicaragua's National Guard (army) on Wednesday shot down four planes reported to be flying arms and ammunition to Sandinista guerrillas, a senior parliamentarian said.

Luis Pallais Debayle, National Assembly vice-president and a cousin of President Anastasio Somoza, said two of the aircraft, both downed 19 kilometres south of Managua, were carrying arms from Costa Rica for the guerrillas.

Pallais said the other two aircraft were downed near guerrilla-held Leon and Matagalpa in the north.

Military sources said one pilot was captured and was being interrogated.

Meanwhile, Somoza sent National Guard reinforcements to southern Nicaragua where his troops are caught between two guerrilla forces, one entrenched along the Costa Rican border and the other battling for control of the provincial capital of Rivas, where unconfirmed reports said the rebels held all but the guard headquarters.

A government source said, "Realistically, we're looking to another three months of fighting."

He said President Somoza, who is under heavy pressure from the Organization of American States—including the United States—to resign, had reaffirmed his vow not to step down until he wins a military victory.

Carter suddenly cancels tonight's energy speech

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Carter abruptly cancelled his nationwide energy address Wednesday, catching top aides by surprise. A senior official said the president was apparently unhappy over the draft of the speech.

Press secretary Jody Powell telephoned a terse cancellation message to reporters from Camp David.

The speech was originally scheduled for tonight.

Carter telephoned Vice-President Walter Mondale during the afternoon, apparently to explain the cancellation, but not Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal or domestic affairs aide Stuart Eizenstat, all heavily involved in preparing the address.

U.S. pressing whaling ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will propose a ban on all commercial whaling at an international conference next week, officials said Wednesday.

They said the U.S. delegation planned to ask the International Whaling Commission, at its July 9-13 meeting in London, to impose a moratorium until about half a dozen conditions were met.

The conditions include a end to "pirate" whaling—that done by ships of nonmember nations in disregard of IWC quotas, often using ships purchased from IWC nations.

Officials said the United States also wanted a new plan on which to base whale kill quotas, better estimates of whale populations and a doubling of the IWC budget.

In addition, the Americans want nations to be required to provide commission scientists with information on whale stocks they have been withholding.

On the other hand, the U.S. government is also expected to request continued clearance for Eskimos to kill the endangered bowhead whale off Alaska, pending a 1981 review of bowhead population data.

The Eskimos say the hunt is essential to their nutrition and culture.

The United States needs a three-quarters vote for approval of its commercial moratorium proposal.

The commission will also be considering Australia's call for a complete ban on commercial whaling.

Air collision kills seven

Ottawa bending on servant slash

OTTAWA (CP) — The government now seems willing to be flexible in implementing a plan to cut 60,000 public service jobs, Andy Stewart, president of the 180,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada, said Wednesday.

After meeting Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens, Stewart reported: "I think there is more flexibility."

The jobs are to be eliminated by attrition over three years, but the government has not said when the three years will start, and may even lengthen the period, Stewart said.

However, it was clear the government still intended to cut 60,000 jobs, and Stewart repeated earlier warnings that this "will seriously impede operations of the public service."

Stevens has said 40,000 jobs will be cut by attrition in the regular public service and another 20,000 jobs will be eliminated by selling crown corporations to the private sector.

The government was to announce later this week a number of crown corporations to be turned over to the private sector, Stewart said.

Stewart and other PSAC executives went into Wednesday's meeting demanding full disclosure of the government's future staffing plans.

He would not say later whether he got it. "I can only report that there were some positive aspects" to Stevens' response.

Stewart would not elaborate, but he said progress was made on two other issues: job security for public service and a PSAC demand that all employees on long-term contracts be made permanent public service employees.

He would not give any details, but reported that "we had a very reasonable exchange with the minister and I believe something positive will come of it."

The PSAC demanded that the government immediately end a two-month hiring freeze which is to end in August. The freeze was imposed to give departments time to decide where cuts can be made.

The alliance wanted the government to give permanent employment to persons on long-term contracts because in many cases they are doing the work of full-time public servants, Stewart said. The PSAC also wanted the government to cease contracting work out to private companies.

Stewart said morale in the public service was at its lowest level ever.

Held 14 years, Ben Bella free

ALGIERS (Reuter) — Ahmed Ben Bella, the flamboyant rebel who became first president of independent Algeria, was released from detention Wednesday more than 14 years after his overthrow by the late Houari Boumedienne.

The Algerian news agency said Ben Bella, 62, was released for the 17th anniversary of independence.

He vanished from public view in the dawn coup of June 19, 1965, and had been under house arrest ever since.

The tall, athletic intellectual started his campaign for Algeria's independence from France in 1949, but spent most of the bitter seven-year rebellion in a French prison.

He became president in 1963. Boumedienne, who succeeded him after the virtually bloodless 1965 coup, died last December.

Ben Bella had been reported living under strict military guard at a villa 40 kilometres south of Algiers, with his wife and two adopted children.

Well capping fails

CIUDAD DEL CARMEN, Mexico (UPI) — Divers tried but failed in bad weather Wednesday to cap a runaway oil well with chemicals and cement before it becomes the world's worst oil spill.

A Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex) spokesman said chances were "good" that the effort would eventually succeed though "we don't have a time limit. It depends on many factors."

The BLOB

It dwarfs whole clusters of galaxies and we may collide with it some eon

LONDON (Reuter) — Two British astronomers say they have discovered evidence of a mysterious blob of matter deep in outer space, 10 times larger than the biggest cluster of galaxies yet perceived by scientists.

Andy Fabian of Cambridge University and Bob Warwick of Leicester University said X-rays detected by a British satellite, Ariel 5, indicate the existence of a huge, unexplained mass located perhaps 10 billion light years from Earth.

Our galaxy's nearest neighbor, the Andromeda Galaxy, is two million light years away.

The mystery object might be pulling our own and our neighboring galaxies toward it by the force of its gravity, the astronomers say in a report in Nature magazine.

The report says a hitherto unlocated galaxy, much closer to earth than the supposed blob, might be the source of the X-rays.

But other recent evidence, from scientists at the University of California at Berkeley, suggests that Earth is moving relative to background microwave radiation from space.

The gravitational pull of the blob would explain this.

Will the Earth collide with the mystery object, or "inhomogenity" as the researchers call it?

Fabian said this would depend on the nature and duration of the universe. If it did happen it would not be for millions of years.

B.C. ombudsman hears beefs Oct. 1

Canadian Press

B.C. has its first ombudsman but he won't be opening up shop yet.

Dr. Karl Friedmann, 40, was sworn into office Wednesday but he said he would not be ready to accept complaints until Oct. 1 because he has to hire staff and because the law which governs his office would not be effective until that date.

Any complaints received before then—and he has received more than 200 so far—are being returned to the person making them in case alternative action can be taken before it is too late.

Friedmann, an associate professor of political science at the University of Calgary, is an acknowledged expert in his new job.

He was appointed to the six-year, $52,000-a-year position on the unanimous recommendation of an all-party legislative committee. That decision was ratified unanimously this year by the legislature.

"This will give me a chance to put into practice what I have been preaching for years," said Friedmann.

He said he believes the ombudsman should keep in close touch with the public and the press, noting that each time he was interviewed, complaints flowed.

The ombudsman's basic function is to investigate complaints from people who feel they have been shafted by government. And in cases where there has been an unfair decision or practice, he is empowered to make enquiries, gather all necessary information and make recommendations to the authority concerned, the provincial cabinet or to the legislature.

Friedmann at swearing-in

Friedmann said advisers told him that he was being optimistic in expecting to open his Victoria and Vancouver offices in three months. They suggest that it would be more realistic to think in term of six months.

He said he did know whether his $300,000 budget for the first six months would be sufficient but hopes to hire the best people for the job.

As his staff acquires expertise and expands, his jurisdiction will be increased to include such areas as municipal government, school districts, hospital boards, and organizations such as the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Friedmann said he could not order anyone to right any wrong he might find because "no ombudsman in the world can tell a government what to do."

But he expects that his suggestions will be accepted by the body involved 98 to 99 per cent of the time.

Failing acceptance there, he can then take the case to cabinet and ultimately to the legislature.

He said he hoped to make access to the office of ombudsman accessible to all in B.C. and, once his powers are enlarged, he hopes to open branches in smaller communities such as Prince George, Kamloops and Kelowna because "it will be easier to have a man on the spot than to send someone in from Victoria or Vancouver."

Boy, 7, saved

It was seven-year-old Kerry Manhas of 322 Beckley who was rescued Tuesday from the Inner Harbor by 14-year-old Russell Roemer of Coquitlam, Victoria police said Wednesday.

The previously unidentified child fell into two metres of water at Fisherman's Wharf about 6 p.m. Tuesday and was rescued by Russell. He was shaken but unhurt in the incident, and police said Russell's quick action prevented a possible tragedy. Kerry is a non-swimmer.

Russell, who lost a wallet and prescription glasses in the rescue, found his wallet at low tide Wednesday, but his glasses are still missing.

Use fighter jet cash for social ills—labor

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

Organized labor in Victoria, concerned with what it sees as the madness of the arms race, wants Canada to shift $4 billion in planned spending from fighter planes to social needs.

Secretary Larry Ryan told the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night that the plan to purchase 125 such planes for $4 billion over 10 years was in conflict with principles voiced by the United Nations. At a special session on disarmament last summer, the UN took the stand that no enduring security could be based on a continuing accumulation of weapons.

Ryan was speaking on an executive recommendation that the council urge Prime Minister Clark, through the Canadian Labor Congress, to review the military commitments the recently defeated Liberal government made to the strengthening of the NATO fighter forces.

The labor council resolution, passed unanimously by delegates, asks Clark to consider policies "more in line with the national and human requirements of a changing world."

It calls for the re-allocation of the $4 billion to the fight against unemployment, improvement of the unemployment insurance system, home construction projects, the establishment of a Canadian merchant marine and the funding of health and welfare services.

Delegates were told the Clark government appeared to favor the Liberal plan, something that would mean purchasing the planes from the U.S. This, in turn, would provide few new jobs for Canadian workers, would worsen the country's international trade deficit and add to inflation, the executive resolution said.

Ryan, noting that Conservative policy called for a reduction by 60,000 in the federal employee work force, as well as cutbacks in unemployment insurance and other areas, described the multi-billion-dollar defence plan as "a great irony, a great contradiction."

On other matters, the council:

- Called on local Conservative MPs Allan McKinnon (defence minister, Victoria) and Donald Munro (Esquimalt-Saanich) to take a stand against the "denationalization of PetroCan;
- Agreed to inform the CBC it was deeply disappointed with its decision to abandon its plan for a Victoria TV station;
- Joined the CLC and Ontario Federation of Labor in in opposing Candu reactors for Argentina because of that country's suppression of organized labor.

Robber gets $2,000

A lone robber got away with about $2,000 Wednesday afternoon from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at 1555 McKenzie in Saanich.

Saanich police said the man entered the bank about 1:30 p.m., went up to teller Leona Erickson with a brown paper bag and a note which read: "Put all the bills in the bag. Don't say anything."

After getting the bag back with the money in it, the robber fled out the Shelbourne Street entrance to the bank.

He is described as having a dark complexion, brown eyes and a round, heavy face.

His height is estimated at five feet, eight inches, he is of medium build and believed to be in his mid-20s.

Labor backs General

The Victoria Labor Council joined the growing health care squabble Wednesday night, coming out on the side of Victoria General Hospital against Health Minister Robert McClelland.

Budgeting guidelines which have created a province-wide controversy over reported alleged hospital staff reductions and curtailed services, moved into the local arena last week when the Victoria General Hospital Board decided to ignore the restrictions. When McClelland accused it of being irresponsible, the board challenged him to dismiss it and take over himself. It said it would not cut back and see needed services deteriorate.

Acting on a motion from the floor, labor council delegates condemned the attitude of McClelland and the provincial government. It also quickly passed another motion commending the Victoria General board for its "courageous" stand.

In so doing, however, it aimed some criticism at the board of Victoria's other major hospital—Royal Jubilee. It found deplorable the Jubilee board's position that the hospital must operate within the budget even if it means staff cuts and a limitation on surgery.

Director should quit–MD

The chairman of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board should resign following reports that he had said Victoria physicians were clogging the hospital with unnecessary operations, Dr. Scott Wallace said.

The former Oak Bay MLA said Terry Prentice had "just added another unnecessary burden to the doctors and nurses who are trying to put a gallon in a pint pot" at the crowded hospital.

Prentice was reported to have made the comments while suggesting that Royal Jubilee, unlike Victoria General, is going to attempt to stay within its budget, even if it could mean closure of addtional wards. The hospital closed a 16-bed surgical ward last month because of a lack of staff.

"Would Prentice care to list any of these unnecessary operations?" Wallace asked. "He should come with me for one day and see the real problems of people who need to be in hospital and can't get in."

The chief of the medical staff at the Jubilee, Dr. Elinor Powell said she had talked with Prentice following publication of his remarks, and Prentice (who has since left the Victoria area until July 16, according to his office) had denied making some of the remarks attributed to him.

"I'm not sure what there is to comment on," she said.

But Powell said no unnecessary operations were performed at the hospital.

"In fact the pressures on the hospital for these operations are extreme, and even our urgent cases have to put the census up to 105 (per cent of capacity)."

"The cases that come in are needing the surgery done," Powell said.

Many people waiting for elective surgery have disabling illnesses which prevent them from working, such as hernias, gallstones, or heart conditions. Their conditions sometimes deteriorate to the point where they finally get the surgery done—after they come in as emergency cases, Powell said.

Touchy subject goes behind closed doors

Capital Region Board directors have discovered that no one wants sewage lagoons or disposal plants in their neighbourhood, so they went behind closed doors Wednesday to talk about that discovery.

They emerged after about an hour, tightlipped but calm.

It seems they have decided to use land at Macaulay Point, which they have always claimed was available for a sewage treatment plant. They hope to build a reception station there for septic tank trucks, so that effluent can be pumped out into the ocean.

Dave Hill, chairman of the solid waste handling committee, was evasive when questioned by reporters.

He did say, however, that the CRD would be unpopular if it tried to put septage disposal plants or lagoons anywhere in the region.

"That solution is pretty well down the tube," he said.

The committee had discussed various sites where a receiving station could be built, and had decided that a different approach to the problem was necessary.

Directors, he said, were no longer considering any type of lagoon, but had been looking at various treatment plant sites. Federal officials, he said, will be consulted and a solution offered to the board by next Wednesday.

The only treatment plant site mentioned by the CRD in the past has been ten acres at Macaulay, adjacent to the pumping station.

Directors have claimed that they have an option on the property, but no confirmation of this claim has been available.

Hill said the CRD is allowed to spend up to $200,000, including capital costs, to solve the problem of disposal of the contents of septic tanks.

However, the federal government has not yet put a price tag on the property, or said that it is in fact willing to sell.

ARSONIST BLAMED

Victoria fire inspector Pat Graham said Wednesday he was certain three fires Tuesday night in Market Square were the work of the same arsonist.

The fires occurred within an hour but caused no injuries or serious damage.

Intensive care beds short

Only four of Royal Jubilee's 11 intensive-care beds are available to new patients, the hospital's acting director said Wednesday.

John Clark said seven of the hospital's intensive-care beds were filled with long-term patients needing intensive care.

"We can't predict at this time when they will be discharged."

He said the intensive-care ward was primarily used by open-heart surgery patients, and the lack of beds was creating problems in accommodating them.

The small size of the hospital's intensive-care ward has been a bone of contention for some time, with many physicians urging expansion of the facility. Renovation plans for the hospital call for expanding it to about 40 beds.

Occupation of beds by long-term-care patients has been a constant problem for the hospital over the past few years, especially since the long-term-care program was introduced last year. Currently about 150 long-term-care patients are in acute-care beds at Jubilee.

The hospital has about 550 medical and surgical acute-care beds.
